New Jersey—For Sale or To Let.

In one week I sail for the Orient under contract for at least eight years' service; before leaving I must sell my home, a quaint, delightful, very well constructed place of unusual individuality and charm, the result of three years of thought and intelligent care; the plot is 150 feet by 150 feet, with beautiful shade trees and many flowers and shrubs; also a vegetable garden; the first floor has a conservatory, living room, dining room, library, pantry, and kitchen; the second floor contains four splendid bedrooms, a bath, and sleeping porch; the property is only 6 minutes' walk from an express station on the D., L. & W.; fine commuting service; in Jersey's most beautiful and exclusive residential section; will take $9,250, most of which can remain on mortgage; it has cost me considerably more than this, and presents an unusual opportunity for any one desiring a suburban home. More details can be obtained by writing J. M. B., 41 Times Downtown, New York City.

SPLENDID OPPORTUNITY TO OWN YOUR OWN HOME OR FOR INVESTMENT.
I am offering for sale at a real bargain a beautiful three-story, three-family apartment house, high up in the residential section of Ridgefield Park, N. TRY FOR JUNIOR ACCOUNTANCY OCTOBER, 1919.

AND FOR SENIOR ACCOUNTANT, OCTOBER, 1920.

October 15 to November 15 is the period during which one-fourth of the year's business changes, readjustments, and building up of staffs are made.

If you have a faculty for figures and the crude stuff for the making of an accountant, there is just about time between now and October 15th this year for you, thru suitable intensive training—during your spare hours at home—to qualify for a Junior Accountancy position that will pay at least $35 a week.

And ample time to qualify before October, 1920, for position of Senior Accountant, Auditor, or Income Tax Expert, at a salary of at least $75 a week—with possibilities of more than twice that amount.

It is only a question of raw ability and industry, a resolute purpose to devote five spare home hours a week to intensive training in accordance with the most successful business-training system ever devised, under the tutelage of a corps of eminent Certified Public Accountants who are renowned as practical teachers.

We have given hundreds of ambitious, earnest men and women the start that has put them over the top, and have their records to point to with just pride. We can do as much for you if you are made of the right stuff. It is worth your while to investigate.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Pressure is generally low tonight except in the Atlantic and East Gulf States and the extreme Northwest, with centres of moderate depression over Southern Michigan and the north plateau. General and substantial showers occurred in the lake region, the Ohio Valley, the Middle and South Atlantic States, and local showers in the Gulf States, while over the central and west portions of the country the weather was fair. Temperatures are lower in the Middle Atlantic States and New England, nearly normal in the lake region and the South, and remain high elsewhere.

There will be showers Thursday in the lower lake region, the upper Ohio Valley, and the East Gulf and Atlantic States, continuing Friday in New England, New York, and the South. The weather will be fair Thursday and Friday in the upper lake region and the lower Ohio Valley, and on Friday in the lower lake region, the upper Ohio Valley, and the Middle Atlantic States south of New York. It will be somewhat warmer Friday in the Middle Atlantic States.

Winds for Thursday and Friday—North of Sandy Hook moderate south and southwest winds, showers Thursday over south portion and Friday over north portion; Sandy Hook to Hatteras moderate south winds, showers; Hatteras to Florida Straits, east gulf coast, moderate winds, mostly south, showers.

FORECASTS FOR TODAY AND FRIDAY.

Northern New England—Showers Thursday, except fair East Maine; Friday showers, cooler in interior Maine.

New Jersey, Delaware—Showers Thursday; Friday probably fair, warmer interior.

Eastern Pennsylvania—Showers Thursday; Friday fair, warmer.

Western New York—Local showers Thursday, Friday probably fair, little change in temperature.

Eastern New York, Southern New England—Showers Thursday and probably Friday.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at 11 P. M., taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

3 A. M.	77	71	4 P. M.	74	70
6 A. M.	74	70	6 P. M.	72	72
12 M.	76	68	11 P. M.	67	65

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 72; for the corresponding date last year it was 69; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 71. The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 69; at 8 P. M. it was 70. Maximum temperature, 77 degrees at 2:30 P. M.; minimum, 67 degrees at 7:15 A. M. Humidity, 84 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 77 per cent. at 8 P. M.

The barometer at 8 A. M. yesterday registered 30:16 inches; at 8 P. M. it stood at 30.17 inches.

Education Notes.

Borough President Henry Bruckner and a large number of officials, business men of the Bronx, appeared before the Board of Education yesterday to urge the appointment of another district superintendent in that borough and the erection of new elementary schools. Mr. Bruckner said that the population there was nearly 800,000, and that there were more children in the Bronx on part time than in any other borough of the city. P. S. 33, Third Avenue and 183th Street, was so dark that classes were taught by electric light, and the passing of trains rendered the voice of the teachers inaudible." President Prall and Frank D. Wilsey promised that relief would be soon forthcoming.

Mayor Hylan yesterday agreed to let Building Superintendent Snyder have about seventy-four additional draftsmen to carry on properly the work of preparing plans for new school buildings.

The Board of Education yesterday postponed action on the nomination of Ernest L. Crandall as Director of Lectures at a salary of $6,000 a year.

A letter has been received by City Superintendent Ettinger from President Henry R. Linville of the Teachers' Union saying that the testimony taken at the trial of Benjamin Glassberg, teacher of history in the Commercial High School, Brooklyn, tended to show that charges should be preferred against Gilbert J. Raynor, Principal of the school, and C. W. Campbell, a teacher in it.

Henry T. Butler, an electrical inspector in the Bureau of School Buildings, was fined one month's pay yesterday by the Board of Education for accepting bread from the baker of the Parental School.

Emily L. Blaesius, a teacher in P. S. 18, the Bronx, was dismissed from the service yesterday for absence without permission.

PREVENT HOLDUP OF THEODORE ROBINSON

Police Arrive in Time to Save Nephew of Colonel Roosevelt; Arrest Three Men.

BREAKS JEWELRY WINDOW

Daylight Attempt to Steal $20,000 in Jewels at Broadway and 39th Street Is Foiled.

The daily chronicle of crime in this city contained yesterday two bold attempts at robbery. One was a hold-up that had for its intended victim former State Senator Theodore Douglas Robinson, a real estate broker, and nephew of the late Colonel Roosevelt. In the other attempt, one or more men, in daylight, smashed the plate glass window of the jewelry store of Camperfield & Cleveland, in the Casino Building, at Broadway and Thirty-ninth Street. In the window were jewels said to have been worth $20,000, which were not taken. After the attempt one man was arrested. He gave his name as Andrew Leary, a laborer, of 677 Eighth Avenue. The police say he confessed breaking the window, but said he had done it to be arrested, and not to rob. Domestic differences, he is alleged to have said, were responsible for his yearning for a cell. One of the proprietors of the store was hit by glass, and Leary was also charged with felonious assault.

The attempt to rob Mr. Robinson was made Tuesday night, but it did not become known publicly until Mr. Robinson appeared yesterday in the Yorkville Court against three young men accused of attempted robbery. The prisoners were Harold Vogel, 17 years old, of 429 East Eighty-third Street; Arthur Plum, 23, 514 East Eighty-first Street, and Edward Henebry, 18, of 517 East Eighty-first Street.

Mr. Robinson was approaching his home at 750 Park Avenue, when three men stopped him with the order that he put up his hands. One of them pushed a revolver against his body. A pedestrian saw them and began to cry for help. Police Lieutenants Frank Brady and Patrick McCarthy, who were standing at Seventy-first Street and Park Avenue, ran toward the group, whereupon the highwaymen fled.

Two of the prisoners were caught after a short chase, Plum by Policeman James Monohan of the East Sixty-seventh Street Station and Henebry by Policeman Leopold Salomon. The arrest attracted a crowd, and Lieutenant Brady, while making his way through it, saw Vogel, who was breathing heavily, as though he had been running. He put his hand over the boy's heart and found it was throbbing.

"You seem to have been running," he said, as he ran his hand over the boy's pockets. "And no wonder," he added, as he took a revolver from his pocket. Vogel was identified by Mr. Robinson as the man who had ordered him to throw up his hands and had threatened to shoot if he did not obey. All three were placed under $3,000 bail each by Magistrate Sims to await the action of the Grand Jury.

STOCK FRAUD CASE UP TO GRAND JURY

H. C. Loup of Accused Concern to Assist Prosecution on Sixty Complaints.

Several more of the customers who had lost $100 to $12,000 in their trading with the promoting firm of H. C. Loup & Co., at 50 Broad Street, told the details of their losses at the District Attorney's office, yesterday, making a total of sixty complaints thus far against the concern. Assistant District Attorney John T. Dooling said the evidence had been prepared to present to the Grand Jury today.

Miss Margaret McCabe, a public school teacher, of 545 West 152nd Street, who lost $12,000, will be one of the chief witnesses, he said.

Herbert C. Loup, the nominal head of the firm, according to District Attorney Swann, will assist the prosecution.

"Loup will be a material witness," Dooling announced. "We expect an arrest soon, and pending that we shall place the case before the Grand Jury. There appears to be little or nothing in the way of assets. We learned today that on Saturday, when Frank Taylor, the active manager, and Joseph Kesley, a partner, disappeared, a customer's Liberty Bond for $1,000 was converted into cash. A broker tells us that on the same day he loaned the concern $3,000. The money of the customers seems to have gone into a speculative pool, which figured on the wrong side of the market."

After Herbert Loup had told District Attorney Swann that he had been the nominal head only of H. C. Loup & Co., allowing the managers to use his name, and that he knew little about the affairs of the concern, the District Attorney started an inquiry to determine if there are other similar concerns operating in the financial district by using "dummy" heads and names. Mr. Swann directed Dooling and E. P. Kilroe of the Bureau of Commercial Frauds to go thoroughly into this feature of the investigation.

Mr. Dooling said that charges of grand larceny, "bucketing," and probably a charge of forgery would be made in the presentment of the evidence to the Grand Jury.

"One of the out-of-town claims against the firm which I shall try to get before the jury will include the loss of $125,000 by Joseph Kaye, a merchant of Emporium, Penn.," asserted Dooling. "From certain witnesses and from an examination of the books of the firm I find that Mrs. E. J. Mounts of Smithmill, Penn., has lost at least $100,000. Her total transactions reach approximately $725,000. She dealt in the best securities, but without her knowledge her orders for stocks were bucketed."

James I. Cramer, 33 years old, who said he lived at the Pennsylvania Hotel, pleaded guilty before Judge Wadhams in General Sessions yesterday to a charge of larceny growing out of a stock deal. He was remanded for sentence. Cramer, who is the first of the stock promoters to plead guilty since the District Attorney began his investigation, was accused by Mrs. Ada Newberger of 66 East 83d Street, of getting $2500 for shares in the Record Oil & Refining Company, which, the complainant said, were never delivered.

United States Commissioner Hitchcock held W. H. Cunningham of 506 Fifth Avenue in $2,000 bail yesterday on a charge of alleged conspiracy to defraud investors by use of the mails. It was said that removal proceedings would be brought to have Cunningham taken to Louisville, Ky., where he is under indictment with several others for the crime charged.

According to the indictment, Cunningham and the others are charged with conspiracy to defraud Drs. James D. Jenkins and A. A. Marrett and others, by inducing them by false and fraudulent representations made in letters to purchase shares of oil stocks.

BUILDING?

The hum of the hammer is heard in the land.

Naturally the question: "What system of heating will I use?" is being put up to Richardson & Boynton Co., America's leading manufacturers of boilers, furnaces and ranges for over 80 years.

With their six distinct and different heating systems they are able to guide the home owner, the builder, the heating contractor and the architect as to which system will bear the proper proportion in cost of heating to the entire cost of the residence.

Who gets the increase in prices?

JOHN HOLDEN, in 1915, planned to build a bungalow. The contractor said it would cost $2500. But John postponed the building of his home—because the Government needed materials and labor.

The other day he took the same plans to the same contractor. "It will cost you $4,000 now," said the contractor.

"Somebody is gouging me," said Mr. Holden.

We placed the case with a Washington official who with a score of other experts, has been investigating rising costs in a hundred commodities.

The official went to the bottom of it. The story he tells in this month's NATION'S BUSINESS is as entertaining as a detective yarn—and leaves you with something to apply in your own business day's work.

Little Facts of Big Value

DO you know that Canada is lifting her import restrictions? The only commodities for which individual licenses are now required are listed in a six-line paragraph—one of over 100 nuggets of information in "Little Stories of the Nation's Business" in the July issue. Every month the business news of the country is assembled, reviewed and boiled down to the bone for this department. Just one paragraph may mean volumes—and perhaps fortunes—to you. Get all this information at a glance. You need it in your business.

The Romance of Trade Routes

UNDER the English Channel, across Europe, through a submarine tunnel under Gibralter; across the African desert—and the train from London stands puffing at a dock 1963 nautical miles nearer South America than New York is to the same point. A British plan for bringing European trade closer to South America, as gripping as the wildest midsummer fiction, is described in the July issue.

And twenty other interesting features.

All in the July number.

REMEMBER this: You have a representative in Washington. THE NATION'S BUSINESS is more than the official publication of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. BILL COMPLETED FOR ENFORCEMENT OF PROHIBITION

Wartime and Constitutional Periods Combined, but Under Separate Titles.

PROVISIONS ARE DRASTIC

Elaborate Machinery Created for Making Country Dry, with Multitude of Papers.

EXPECT DELAY IN PASSAGE

If Legislation Is Not Finished by Tuesday Existing Laws Will Be Resorted To.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Unless halted by action of President Wilson, wartime prohibition will go into effect at midnight next Monday, June 30, without complete legislation for its enforcement, in the opinion of Representative Andrew J. Volstead of Minnesota, Chairman of the House Judiciary Committee. He bases his opinion on the probability that Congress will not in the next four days enact the proposed legislation for enforcement.

After weeks of consideration and controversy between its "wet" and "dry" factions, the Judiciary Committee today completed its draft of a bill for enforcement of both wartime and constitutional prohibition. By a vote of 11 to 9 the committee decided to combine legislation for enforcement of both phases of prohibition in one bill. The committee, however, decided to put all references to wartime prohibition into a separate title of the bill. Under this plan there will be less drastic enforcement of wartime prohibition.

Plan of Enforcement Bill.

There will be three titles in the bill, which is scheduled to be reported to the House tomorrow. The first provides for enforcement of wartime prohibition and does not contain any of the radical provisions of Title II. and III., which relate to constitutional prohibition. The third title provides mainly for the manufacture of alcohol for industrial purposes.

"It was decided," said Chairman Volstead, "to incorporate in one bill these two subjects so that it would not be necessary for the House to take up virtually the same subject twice. If the House so desires, however, each title can be taken up separately for consideration."

In the opinion of Chairman Volstead it will be impossible to put the enforcement legislation through the House by July 1, much less through the Senate. While the committee completed the final draft, there may be some further objections urged tomorrow which may put off the reporting of the bill until Saturday.

There appears to be no desire on the part of the House, as a whole, to expedite the passage of legislation for the enforcement of war-time prohibition. It has been asserted that if legislation to enforce war-time prohibition be not passed by July 1 there will be no means of enforcing the prohibition provision, which was carried in the last Agricultural Appropriation bill as a rider, and which specified as a maximum punishment a fine of $1,000 and a year's imprisonment for violation of war-time prohibition. If there be no enforcement legislation enacted by July 1, the Department of Justice will be called upon to enforce the act as in other cases of violation of law; but the machinery available is not considered so effective as that provided in the bill.

While the impression continues to prevail in some Congressional quarters that President Wilson will intervene by Presidential proclamation to halt the application of war-time prohibition, no hint is obtainable from the White House to support any such prediction.

Text of Completed Bill.

Here is the text of the enforcement bill as completed:

A BILL.

To prohibit intoxicating beverages and to regulate the manufacture, production, use, and sale of high-proof spirits for other than beverage purposes, and to insure an ample supply of alcohol and promote its use in scientific research and in the development of fuel, dye, and other lawful industries.

TITLE 1.

That the term "war prohibition act" used in this title shall mean the provisions of any act or acts prohibiting the sale and manufacture of intoxicating liquors until the conclusion of the present war and thereafter until the termination of demobilization, the date of which shall be determined and proclaimed by the President of the United States. The words "beer, wine, or other intoxicating malt or vinous liquors" in

Seize German at Versailles For War Crimes in 1916

PARIS, June 26.—The Journal today prints the following censored paragraph:

"A police commissary called at the Hôtel Vatel, Versailles, at 6 o'clock yesterday evening, and (blank) Scheurmann, correspondent of the Deutsche Tageszeitung, on (blank) concerning acts of larceny and pillage committed in invaded territory in 1916. Herr Brandt protested in the name of the German correspondents, maintaining that Scheurmann accompanied the German delegation and therefore enjoyed diplomatic immunity. GIVES $5,000,000 TO ADVANCE MUSIC

Will of A. D. Juilliard Provides Aid for Worthy Students and for Entertainment.

OTHER PUBLIC BEQUESTS

Gifts of $100,000 Each to Hospitals, Museums, and Philanthropic Societies.

An unusual bequest which will mean much to New York City as a centre of musical education and production, was revealed yesterday when the will of the late Augustus D. Juilliard, who died on April 25, was filed for probate in the office of the Surrogate of Orange County in Goshen. After providing for the immediate relatives and making bequests of $100,000 each to various institutions, the will sets aside the entire residuary estate, conservatively estimated to be considerably more than $5,000,000, for the establishment of the Juilliard Musical Foundation.

According to the terms of the will the general scope of the foundation is to aid all worthy students of music in acquiring complete and adequate musical education either at appropriate institutions now in existence or hereafter to be created, or from appropriate instructors in this country or abroad; to arrange for and to give without profit to it musical entertainments, concerts, and recitals of a character appropriate for the education and entertainment of the general public in the musical arts, and to aid the Metropolitan Opera Company in the City of New York, for the purpose of assisting it in the production of operas. This is said to be the largest single bequest ever made for the encouragement of musical education. The next largest amount for this purpose was $500,000, which created the Loeb Foundation. This in turn supports the Musical Art Society, the aims and purposes of which are to a large degree similar to those of the new Juilliard Foundation.

For many years Mr. Juilliard was interested in the encouragement of art, science, and music. He was a patron of the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the American Museum of Natural History, but his chief interest was in the Metropolitan Opera House. In 1892 he took steps towards the formation of the Metropolitan Opera and Real Estate Company, of which he was President at the time of his death. This organization was a holding company which controlled the affairs of the opera company itself. Despite Mr. Juilliard's close association with the officers of the company, it was said yesterday that no one knew of the contents of the will except one or two members of the family.

It is provided in the will that The Juilliard Musical Foundation must be established during the lives of Frederic A. Juilliard and Robert Westaway, and if for any reason the foundation is not formed, one-half of the residue of the estate is to be given to the American Museum of Natural History and the other half to St. John's Guild of the City of New York. The trustees are to be the President of the Central Union Trust Company, who is at present James N. Wallace; the President of the Guaranty Trust Company, who is at present Charles H. Sabin; Frederic A. Juilliard, Mr. Juilliard's nephew and former partner; and such other persons as these three shall select to assist them in the management of the foundation. These trustees are vested with ample discretion to provide that the Foundation shall have the necessary powers to carry out the expressed wishes and general scheme as outlined by the deceased.

The other bequests of $100,000 each are made to the American Museum of Natural History, the New York Orthopaedic Dispensary and Hospital, the Society of the New York Hospital, the Lincoln Hospital and Home, the New York Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, St. John's Guild of the City of New York, and the

DR. WILKINS'S FATE UNDECIDED; JURY OUT MANY HOURS

Prosecution and Defense Complete Their Summing Up in an Afternoon.

DEATH PENALTY ASKED

JURORS VISIT THE SCENE

Make Careful Examination of House and Grounds Described in the Testimony.

MINEOLA, L. I., June 27, (Friday.)—At 5:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon the fate of Dr. Walter Keene Wilkins, charged with the murder of his wife, Julia, on Feb. 27 last, at Long Beach, went to the jury, which deliberated without reaching a verdict up to an early hour this morning.

At 11:15 o'clock the jury came into the courtroom and informed Justice Manning through the foreman that jurors were at odds in their recollection of Dr. Wilkins's testimony before the Coroner, and desired to have it read. The parts which the jury asked for were read by the stenographer.

One of the jurors then asked for another reading of the Justice's instruction on the subject of circumstantial evidence. His entire charge relating to this subject was read. While the testimony and the instruction were being read, Dr. Wilkins scanned the faces of the jurors with great anxiety and the lawyers on both sides studied the expressions on the faces of jurymen to ascertain the impression made upon them by what they heard. At the end of an hour and fifteen minutes the jury retired again to renew their deliberations. They were not ordered locked up for the night.

Before the summing up of counsel on both sides the jury went in automobiles in charge of the clerk of the court and other court officers to inspect the Wilkins home where the crime was committed. They spent 20 minutes going over the grounds and through the rooms which form the setting of the different stories and theories of the crime which have been advanced during the trial.

The jurors said nothing while they were at the house. They made a close study of the spot where the doctor testified that he had found his wife after the alleged battle with burglars.

District Attorney Charles R. Weeks began the summing up shortly after 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and consumed most of his time with a careful dovetailing of the vast array of details which make up the circumstantial case on which the State asked for a verdict of guilty.

He argued that the doctor's account of a murder by burglars was riddled twenty times by the conflicts, discrepancies and evasions in his own story, and by all the circumstantial details and probabilities. He asserted that every fact brought before the jury pointed in one direction only, to the guilt of the defendant. He pleaded with the jury not to be swayed by sentimentality, but to consider that the facts showed a peculiarly cold-blooded, calculated and atrocious crime.

In his summing up for the defendant Mr. Wysong asserted that the circumstantial evidence was of a very flimsy character and that it established nothing more than that Dr. Wilkins was at the house on the night of the murder. He said that, not being able to catch the burglars and murderers, the State had undertaken to prosecute a man simply because he was present when the crime was committed. He denied that the prosecution had been able to cast any doubt on the doctor's story of the attack on himself and the fatal attack on his wife by burglars.

Justice Manning in his charge told the jury that it was not necessary to establish motive in order to establish guilt of murder. This point was considered important, because evidence and theories of the prosecution on the possible gains to the doctor from his wife's death was thought to be somewhat hazy.

Easier Financial Terms Likely for Austria

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, June 26.—According to authoritative French circles there will be a material amelioration in the financial terms to Austria in the treaty, it being the intention of the allied powers especially to arrange an equitable adjustment of war debts among all the succession States in order to prevent Austria becoming bankrupt.

The Entente's favorable intentions are fortified by the conviction that no further Bolshevist danger is to be apprehended.

The French are determined to assist in rebuilding Austria, provided she does not join Germany.

REDS TERRORIZE AND LOOT HAMBURG

Storm the City Hall and Defeat the Government Troops.

MANY KILLED OR WOUNDED

Jails Stormed and Criminals Freed—Attempt to Set Up Soviet Rule.

HAMBURG, June 26, (Associated Press.)—Hamburg threatens to become a second Munich, with even greater bloodshed.

The city is completely in the power of the Communists and Spartacides, who are utilizing food riots as an excuse for their attempts to gain control. In the rioting yesterday they stormed the City Hall and overcame the Government troops, capturing quantities of ammunition, rifles and machine guns. They then swept over the entire city, plundering, killing and destroying.

Many of Hamburg's fine buildings were badly damaged. The rioters held the railway station for a time, but it was recaptured by the Civic Guard.

The police were utterly helpless, and Government troops are on the way to restore order.

Jails have been stormed and criminals released. The Spartacides are conferring with the idea of establishing a Soviet system.

In addition to the buildings damaged, the streets are littered with all kinds of debris and clothing torn from citizens as they fled. Blood is noticeable in many places, indicating casualties.

The number of dead is unknown, rumors varying between one dozen and sixty. The Spartacides tried unsuccessfully to burn the public buildings, and, with particular vandalism, burned all the automobiles they captured.

BERLIN, June 26.—Details have been received here of the mobbing of the proprietor of a preserved meat factory in Hamburg by a crowd which happened to be present when some refuse that aroused suspicion was carted away from his factory. A multitude entered the buildings where they discovered the remains of dogs, cats, and rats. The proprietor, Herr Heil, to whom the Kaiser years ago awarded the title of commercial councillor, was badly thrashed and compelled to eat cat and dog meat. He was then taken in front of the City Hall with the intention of hanging him to a lamppost, but as no rope could be obtained Heil was thrown into the Alster. He managed, however, to swim across the stream, and the police took him in charge.

Thereupon the crowds returned to Heil's factory and placed his foreman on a wagon which was driven through the city followed by thousands. A poster reading, "I am the foreman of the rottenest meat factory" was placed on his breast, and he was continually fed with meat cut there and then from cats and dogs.

There were serious encounters with soldiers, and for a short time the masses, led by Spartacides, held the main depot of Hamburg.

LONDON, June 26.—The killed in the rioting at Hamburg number 186, an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Copenhagen states.

Twelve representatives of industrial councils have assumed full political and military power in Hamburg and are sitting in the town hall, according to advices from Berlin quoting newspaper dispatches received there. General von Lettow-Vorbeck has been ordered to Hamburg with strong forces to restore order.

The Stock Exchange Building at Hamburg was damaged seriously in the fighting for the possession of the town hall.

MUELLER AND BELL START

German Foreign and Colonial Ministers Due In Paris Saturday.

SIGNING SET FOR TOMORROW

Council Proceeds with Its Arrangements for the Final Ceremony at 3 P. M.

CLEMENCEAU TO SIGN FIRST

After Him Wilson, and Then Lloyd George—Four Documents for Signature.

PARIS, June 26, (Associated Press.)—Dr. Herman Müller, the German Foreign Minister, and Dr. Bell, Minister of Colonies, who have been selected to sign the peace treaty, will arrive at Versailles on Saturday morning, the Havas Agency learns.

Dr. Müller and Dr. Bell are leaving Berlin tonight by the ordinary train.

Efforts were being made today to arrange for the signing of the peace treaty at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The Council of Three is apparently satisfied with the semiofficial assurances that the Germans will be on hand.

It was rumored at one time today that if no official communication was received by nightfall from Berlin relative to the plans of the German Government for signing the treaty, something in the nature of an ultimatum would be sent to Berlin by the Peace Conference.

Haimhausen Without Advices.

Up to 11:25 o'clock this morning nothing had been heard from Berlin, and the conference was in complete ignorance as to Germany's plan. Paul Dutasta, Secretary-General of the conference, went to Versailles this morning seeking information. He was informed by Dr. Haniel von Haimhausen that the German signatories might arrive by Saturday, but he was unable to speak authoritatively on the subject.

Throughout the day yesterday Premier Bauer at Berlin kept Dr. Haniel von Haimhausen posted regarding the difficulties of selecting the delegation for the signing of the treaty, says Le Petit Parisien correspondent at Versailles. The Cabinet met no less than three times the members of the old mission headed by Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau, the members of the Scheidemann Cabinet who recently retired, also being present. It was desired to select a delegation of eight members, the advices stated, but only three were chosen.

The call made upon Haniel von Haimhausen at Versailles on Wednesday by the Secretary General of the Peace Conference is looked upon by the newspapers as being in the nature of an ultimatum. Hope is expressed that the Germans will not persist in their attitude and force the allied powers to compel them to fulfill their obligations.

Approval of the notes sent the German delegation by Premier Clemenceau is voiced by the newspapers, which deduce from it that the allies are sufficiently aware of German bad faith to keep on the lookout.

L'Echo de Paris says that Poland has asked the allied powers for permission to use the army of General Haller against Ukrainian bands.

The Municipal Council, on motion of E. Evain, the new President of the Council, will hold a reception at the Hôtel de Ville in honor of the members of the Peace Conference on the day the peace treaty is signed. The Council will ask the leaders of the allied powers to be present and will request President Wilson to postpone his departure for a few hours so that he may attend.

Clemenceau to Sign First.

VERSAILLES, June 26.—The session of the Peace Conference for the signing of the Peace Treaty with Germany will probably require more time than had been expected because of the necessity of affixing signatures to four different documents.

Besides the main Peace Treaty as delivered to Germany, the representatives of the allied and associated powers and Germany must sign also the protocol or annex covering the points raised by Germany after the delivery of the original text, the Rhine Con-

Bauer Disclaims Complicity in Sinking of Fleet; Expresses Regret and Fear of Added Indemnity

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 25.—A few minutes after his arrival from Weimar Premier Bauer received THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent, despite the fact that he was extremely fatigued by two weeks' incessant work and several anxious nights at the beginning of this week, during which the most portentous decision concerning Germany's fate was reached. Herr Bauer's strong face was sad, although it showed no signs of weariness.

"Has any decision been reached as to who is to sign the treaty?" THE TIMES correspondent asked.

"That will be decided tomorrow afternoon," was the answer. "It is not easy to find the right man, because the Entente has made certain conditions limiting our choice, but I hope to find a man by tomorrow who will be willing to sacrifice his own feelings for the sake of the Fatherland. You may imagine that none of our friends is anxious to perpetuate his name by the signing of such a document as the Versailles treaty."

President Ebert and his family came from Weimar on the same train with the Premier, and throughout the journey the question of the appointment of the man to sign the treaty had been discussed between the two and members of the Cabinet, but no decision was reached.

"How do you regard the sinking of the German ships at Scapa Flow?" THE TIMES correspondent asked the Premier.

"Although some people may consider that a heroic deed, I am very sorry it occurred. Please tell the people of America that the German Government had not the slightest idea of what was planned at Scapa Flow, and was just as much surprised as the rest of the world. The German Government means to fulfill the obligations undertaken by its agreement to the Versailles treaty at all cost, and it is to be regretted if our own seamen have increased the already intolerable burden of our difficulties."

WANT FULL TEXT OF ROOT PROPOSALS

American Peace Delegates Ask Washington to Cable It to Paris.

FEAR EFFECT ON LEAGUE

Some Are Not Hostile to Reservations by Resolution, Others Are Strongly Opposed.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

PARIS, June 25.—In order to obtain a better understanding of ex-Senator Root's proposals of reservations by the Senate to the League of Nations covenant the American Peace Commission has cabled Washington for the complete text. Opinion differs in the American delegation as to whether the Root proposals are designed as amendments to the treaty or covenant or are to be attached in the form of reservations by the United States.

One view is that, as reservations, the proposals would not be a part of the treaty and therefore would not require the acceptance of the other nations signatory to the agreement with Germany. The contrary view—and this is held apparently by the greater number of Americans connected with the peace mission—is that the reservations would be amendatory of the treaty and covenant, and that until they were accepted by all the other signatory nations the entire treaty would remain unratified by the American Government.

But until a better understanding is obtained than has been given in the dispatches received here the members of the American delegation will be unable to determine what will be the effect of the proposals upon American participation in peace with Germany.

Whatever view finally prevails on this subject, however, the fact is acknowledged that the adoption of the Root proposals as reservations to the League covenant would minimize the importance of the League, Article X., to which Mr. Root objects, the approval of which by the United States would be refused if the Senate should adopt his suggestions with regard to it. Is the very heart of the League principles, according to the rather general view in Paris. Some of President Wilson's friends in the peace contingent expressed the hope today that if the necessary number of Senators approved Mr. Root's views they would decide not to attach his proposals to the treaty in the form of reservations, but adopt them in the form of a separate resolution, citing them as expressing the sense of the Senate. In this way the embarrassment of attaching the proposals to the treaty itself would be avoided, and by the same token there would be avoidance of the necessity of waiting for all the other signatory nations to accept the reservations so as to enable the United States to participate in the peace and qualify for membership in the League of Nations.

From what is said in this connection it is gathered that these friends of the President would not object to having the Senate adopt a resolution, separate from the treaty, expressing the Senate's sense with reference to the Root proposals. By this means they seem to

WILSON SEES GAIN FROM PEACE DELAY

Says Long Conference Debates Made for More Effective Co-operation.

NATIONS ARE NEARER NOW

President, at Poincare Dinner to Delegates, Toasts "Closer Communion of Free Peoples."

PARIS, June 26, (Associated Press.)—President Poincaré gave a dinner tonight to President Wilson and all the delegates to the Peace Conference. Mrs. Wilson accompanied the President.

Responding to an address made by M. Poincaré, President Wilson said:

"I thank you most sincerely for the words that you have uttered. I cannot pretend, Sir, that the prospect of going home is not very delightful to me, but I can say with the greatest sincerity that the prospect of leaving France is very painful to me.

"I have received a peculiarly generous welcome here, and it has been pleasing for me to feel that that welcome was intended not so much for myself as for the people whom I represented. And the people of France know how to give a welcome that makes a man's heart glad. They have a spontaneity about them, a simplicity of friendship, which is altogether delightful.

"I feel that my stay here, Sir, has enlightened both my heart and my mind. It has enabled me personally to see the evidence of the suffering and the sacrifices of France. It has enabled me to come into personal touch with the leaders of the French people, and through the medium of intercourse with them to understand better, I hope, than I understood before, the motives, the ambitions, and the principles which actuate this great nation. It has, therefore, been to me a lesson in the roots of friendship in those things which make the intercourse of nations profitable and serviceable for all the rest of mankind.

"Sometimes the work of the Conference has seemed to go very slowly indeed. Sometimes it has seemed as if there were unnecessary obstacles to agreement; but as the weeks have lengthened I have seemed to see the profit that came out of that. Quick conclusions would not have produced that intimate knowledge of each other's mind which I think has come out of these daily conferences.

"We have been constantly in the presence of each other's minds and motives and characters, and the comradeships which are based upon that sort of knowledge are sure to be very much more intelligent not only, but to breed a much more intimate sympathy and comprehension than could otherwise be created.

"These six months have been six months which have woven new fibres of connection between the hearts of our people, and something more than friendship and intimate sympathy has come out of this intercourse.

"Friendship is a very good thing. Intimacy is a very enlightening thing. But friendship may end with sentiment. A new thing that has happened is that we have translated our common principles and our common purposes into a common plan. When we part we are not

Prince's Escape Stirs Paris; Doubt If He Rouses Royalists

PARIS, June 26.—Frederick William Hohenzollern, the former German Crown Prince, has escaped from Holland and made his way into Germany.

News of his escape caused a considerable stir in Peace Conference circles. While it is not felt that he is a figure around which the reactionaries and monarchists would gather enthusiastically, nevertheless his act is regarded as an event of considerable significance in view of other German recalcitrancy.

The Peace Conference has not yet been officially advised of the escape of the Crown Prince, the news coming through British sources.

Pending details, official discussion of the event and its bearing on German affairs and the question whether it involves violation of neutrality by Holland is withheld.

WIERINGEN, Holland, June 24, (via The Hague.)—In spite of rumors that the former German Crown Prince was about to leave Holland, he absolutely denied these to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent today.

He has spread the report about the island that he will remain another three or four months. This is repeated on all sides.

The villagers on the quaint island seem proud of their guest and the Prince has evidently become a sort of Prince of Wieringen. He even controls the police, who dash about the island in a small automobile and immediately report the arrival of all strangers to him.

THE TIMES correspondent was obliged to show papers to prove his identity on landing.

New Stir on Island.

In spite of the denials, there is a new subcurrent of activity on the island. A police agent in civilian clothes travels on the boat from the mainland and another in uniform sternly interrogates all strangers, asking their business and following them to the hotel.

An American lady arriving in a car was immediately taken for a friend of the Prince and was addressed in German.

By the last boat Monday night a special messenger, a Major from the General Staff and a strong friend of the Prince, arrived from Germany, probably with the last message about signing peace. He was met on the quay by Baron von Muldner, once a Major in the former Crown Prince's army, and now his friend and guardian.

In spite of the atrocious weather, von Muldner paced the quay, eagerly awaiting and signaling to the General Staff officer standing next to THE TIMES correspondent on the boat.

There is one person more powerful than the Prince. That is von Muldner. The Prince is completely under the Major's thumb. He can see no one and can receive no letters without authorization from this emblem of Prussian militarism, who guards his door like a bulldog. The Prince has liberty to talk only when out sketching or motorcycling, out of reach of the tyrannical von Muldner.

THE TIMES correspondent was fortunate in seeing the Prince returning with some of the last sketches

he probably was to make on the island. Looking with cheerful curiosity at the stranger, he said:

"I will stay here for at least three months after peace is signed, until everything is in order in Germany. The Entente must not imagine that I am engaged in political intrigue. I will only return to take the throne if the German people want me to and make me."

The Prince refused to talk about the signing of peace, but there was apparently a celebration in his modest residence, for the same automobile which transported the member of the General Staff returned later to the hotel, where it literally loaded up with beer and champagne.

Afterward THE TIMES correspondent approached the small house and asked to speak with the Prince, but was confronted by the enraged von Muldner, who is proud of speaking no English. He snapped his replies in true Prussian manner, refusing to permit any conversation with the Prince and declaring that he was boss.

Inquiry Startles Guardian.

On being asked whether the Prince was leaving immediately after peace was signed, von Muldner was startled and grew breathless and florid. He hesitated and replied:

"That is the first I have heard of it. You must know better than I whether he can go, and where he can go."

He stood out in the rain behind a small locked gate, while the Prince and his servants peered through the window curtains, obviously glad of some distraction on the windy, wet evening.

On warm days the Prince has been going swimming with Burgomaster Peereboom, who speaks well of his skill in the water.

In honor of the twelfth anniversary of his wedding the Prince and his wife exchanged affectionate telegrams and he stated his intention of returning to her.

The Burgomaster gave it as his conviction that the Prince did not intend to leave the island yet, although this was doubtless camouflage.

ALLIES TO CONFER ON ESCAPE.

May Call on Dutch to Demand Prince's Return from Germany.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 26.—Despite a general feeling that the former Crown Prince's return to Germany is unimportant politically or militarily, some indignation is felt by British representatives against the Netherlands Government for having permitted him to escape.

The indignant ones contend that it is a grave breach for a neutral nation not to prevent the escape of a high ranking officer of a belligerent country who had sought refuge in neutral territory to avoid becoming a prisoner of war and possible punishment.

It is learned this evening that the council of the powers had decided to discuss the matter. It is possible that Holland will be called upon to demand that the German Government return the former Crown Prince.

Holland is in a peculiar position not only on account of this incident, but because the powers intend to demand the surrender of the ex-Kaiser for trial, in accordance with the terms of the German treaty.

The indignation of the British is accentuated by the Scapa Flow affair, and recent German efforts to irritate the Allies.

Reports of a monarchial revolutionary movement in Germany have not attracted much attention here and the former Crown Prince's return to German territory is not known to be related to it.

PARIS, June 26, (Associated Press.)—Recent Berlin dispatches printed in the Paris newspapers are recalled, in which unnamed but allegedly well-placed persons, commenting on the sinking of the German fleet in Scapa Flow and the burning of French battle flags, said they were not surprised and that other equally startling events might be anticipated.

Since the Scapa Flow incident the Paris press has insistently alluded to the possibility of the former German Emperor's escape from Holland, coupled with the indirect question as to what measures had been taken to prevent such a move.

In military quarters the belief was expressed today that the Crown Prince and Prince Max of Baden were on their way to East Prussia, where the military reactionary element is strong. The opinion is that there may be among the old Junker officer class those who, whatever opinion is held against the former Crown Prince personally, might try to use him as "the man on horseback."

The presence in Germany at this moment of Frederick William, when the fate of the Peace Treaty still hangs in the balance, has caused disquietude in Paris, and there is considerable speculation regarding the next development in the situation.

SUSPECT THAT KAISER ALSO PLANS ESCAPE

Washington Officials Believe the Prince Was Emboldened by Reports from Germany.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Confidential reports that the former German Crown Prince and also probably the former Emperor would attempt to re-enter Germany after the signing of the Peace Treaty were received recently by Government officials here. This became known today after an Associated Press dispatch telling of the escape of the Prince had been received.

The Prince was interned by the Dutch Government on the Island of Wieringen, and if he preserves his status as a soldier the opinion of international law authorities here is that the Netherlands Government may be held accountable by the allied and associated powers for his escape.

It was explained that the rules of war and neutrality require the Government of any nation that affords asylum to a fugitive soldier to intern him for the period of the war and that in this instance that period technically had not elapsed. Officials said that one effect of the escape undoubtedly would be to cause the authorities of Holland to renew precautions to prevent the escape of the former Emperor.

Because of the bitterness manifested by the extreme Socialist element in Germany against the former royal family, officials here were somewhat puzzled by the action of the Prince. They assumed that he must have had some encouragement from his friends in Germany to believe that whatever Government survived the present crisis would refuse to surrender him to the Allies for trial under the terms of the Peace Treaty should his name be on the proscribed list, or that a coup d'etat was in contemplation involving the conservative elements and officers of the army who have strongly opposed the signing of the treaty.

Different opinions regarding the plans and intentions of the Prince were voiced in military and diplomatic quarters. Many army officers seemed inclined to doubt that he would undertake a coup, but at some of the embassies there was a conviction that tempting bait had been held out to the younger Hohenzollern and that definite assurances had been given him which resulted in the flight from Holland.

It was recalled that the Officers' Association in Germany was recently reported to have sent a telegram to the Dutch Government protesting against the surrender of the former Emperor to the associated powers. This expression of favor for the Hohenzollern family, it is believed, might also have been a factor in influencing Frederick William to go home.

As to what inducements might have been offered, no one in diplomatic circles seemed ready to express a definite opinion, but it was said that a considerable number of officers and soldiers undoubtedly could be rallied to any cause which the former Crown Prince might be picked to lead despite the feeling of resentment against him among many men who fought in the ranks of the armies.

If an attempt at a coup develops, the general feeling here is that it would not on its face, at least, have for its immediate object the renewal of war against the Allies.

DOUBT STATUS OF PRINCE.

Quoted as Denying Renunciation, Though Text Was Announced.

It has often been alleged that von Hindenburg, while in command of the army of the German Republic, did not suffer the framework of the Kaiser's military establishment to be dispersed, and, within a few days, hints have come from Germany indicating that the Junkers would make a desperate effort to prevent the signing of the peace treaty.

These circumstances may account for the disappearance of ex-Crown Prince Frederick William from the Dutch island of Wieringen, where he has been residing ever since the last week in November, when his good offices as a soldier had been offered to the Ebert Government and rejected by it.

Meanwhile the ex-Kaiser, occupying Amerongen Castle, on the estate of Count Godard Bentinck, in Holland, signed with his own hand and seal on Nov. 28 an abdication of the Royal and Imperial thrones. On Dec. 1 the son was said to have signed a similar document, although the very next day, and before this document was published, he was reported to have said in an interview:

"I have not renounced anything, and I have not signed any document whatever. However, should the German Government decide to form a republic similar to the United States or France I should be perfectly content to return to Germany as a simple citizen ready to do anything to assist my country. I should even be happy to work as a laborer in a factory.

"At present everything appears chaotic in Germany, but I hope things will right themselves."

Despite this categorical statement, the semi-official Wolff Bureau of Berlin, three days later, issued what was said to be the exact text of the Crown Prince's renunciation of his rights to the throne. This document reads:

"I renounce formally and definitely all rights to the Crown of Prussia and the Imperial Crown, which would have fallen to me by the renunciation of the Emperor-King, or for other reasons.

"Given by my authority and signed by my hand; done at Wieringen, Dec. 1, 1918.

"WILHELM."

The ex-Crown Prince has given numerous interviews to newspaper correspondents since his arrival in Holland.

Since taking up his residence on Wieringen the Prince is reported to have made several trips to the mainland of Holland. In May he went to see his mother at Amersfort, eleven miles nort northwest of Amerongen and directly east of Utrecht. She had not seen him for two years. It was said that this meeting had to do with domestic rather than with political matters, for, in February, it had been reported that the Prince had instituted proceedings for divorce against his wife, the Grand Duchess Cecile of Mechlenburg, whom he married in 1905. They have five children and his mother is understood to be opposed to any divorce.

The Prince is reported to have lived a quiet life, taking exercise in walks with his dogs and sometimes doing manual labor in the village shops, where he made friends of some of the workmen. Much of his time has been given to writing. Some time ago he was reported to be at work on his memoirs.

A venture into business was reported several weeks ago in official dispatches from Holland received in Washington. It was announced that a company had been organized with "Mr. Frederick William Hohenzollern as the director manager," to use the calcareous sands of the Island of Wieringen in the making of pottery. It was said that the Prince was a large investor in the enterprise. One of the pieces of pottery to be put out by the new company, according to these dispatches, was a tile portrait of the Prince, in outing costume, shown against a background of a church and cottages.

TO DELIMIT SARRE FRONTIER.

League Commission of Five Must Be Named Soon After Peace.

LONDON, June 17, (Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—One of the first duties of the League of Nations after the treaty of peace with Germany is ratified is to organize a commission of five members to trace the exact frontier line of the Sarre Valley. This task is pointed out in a statement issued here by an official of the league, apparently Sir Eric Drummond, the Secretary.

The commission must be set up fifteen days after the peace treaty is signed and ratified, says the statement. Three members of the commission are to be appointed by the League of Nations.

To prepare for this and other duties of the League, a plan of organizing the League is being prepared, and the personnel of the office of the General Secretary is being selected provisionally. This plan of organization is subject to the approval of the organization committee of the League, which is composed of representatives of the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan, Belgium, Brazil, Greece and Spain.

Aided by "certain persons of different nationalities," the Secretary is working out plans for the creation of a "truly international secretariat." It is pointed out that the members of this secretarial body must divest themselves of international preconceptions, and that they are not to be regarded as representatives of their respective nations, but must devote themselves wholeheartedly to the service of the League of Nations.

The divergent interests of the States will be expressed in the Council and the Assembly of the League, says the statement, and it is added that when important national interests are involved it will no doubt be found essential that Prime Ministers and Foreign Secretaries should attend the meetings of those two bodies.

The secretariat, it is declared, must be conducted on a wholly different basis. Men and women of "broad vision and flexible mind, interested heart and soul in the success of the League," are declared to be offering their services.

"This," says the statement, "is proof of the confidence that the best men and women have in the promise of the League. It is the first and finest augury for the League's success."

TRUST IN NOSKE TO PREVENT COUP

Orderly Elements in Germany Look to Him to Tide Nation Over Crisis.

BERLIN FEARS OUTBREAK

Minister of Defense Persuades Generals to Ask Troops to Support Cabinet.

By GEORGE RENWICK.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 24.—I come back to Berlin after an absence of nearly a fortnight to find considerable tension here that shows itself most, perhaps, in the state of mind of the people. They are jumpy and rather scared. They seem to think that something untoward is bound to happen after Monday's action at Weimar.

People in the streets jump at the sound of a motor car tire bursting as they have not done since the last Spartacide rising. Items of news posted outside the newspaper offices attract greater crowds of anxious persons than I have ever seen them attract before.

The people are extremely restless, in fact, and every one speaks of coming trouble.

In the north, south and southeastern parts of the city there has been a good deal of shop plundering during the last day or two. The food distribution in Greater Berlin has been particularly bad of late and in these warm days fruit shops are attractive to the hungry and thirsty people, so they storm shops and divide the refreshing spoil.

Collisions have taken place with troops; some have been killed and wounded, but it is undoubtedly the threatened resignation of Herr Noske, Minister of Defence, and the attitude of the higher officers toward signing the peace treaty which has caused the most alarm in the people's minds. More and more in these days of uncertainty the people look to Noske to keep order and he is certainly the hope of those elements of the population which desire to be saved from Spartacide terrorism and militarist coups.

Military Caste Hard Hit.

Many officers, of course, feel that the treaty hits their profession very hard. Their number will soon have to be seriously reduced and they have still sufficient of the old military spirit in them to resent handing over to the Entente a number of people who may include persons from their own military caste, but I think it safe to say that the rank and file are proof against reaction.

A considerable sensation was caused here this evening by the news that yesterday Colonel von Hasnke addressed one of the Reinhardt regiments here and spoke strongly against signing the treaty. He is said to have declared that the troops could have nothing to do with a Government which signed such a peace and that General von Lüttwitz, who commands the National Defense Corps, had had conferences with leading politicians who were to form a new Government and that the troops were willing to give their support to it.

Under the eye of their Colonel the men apparently thought it well to signify their support, but a statement in Vorwärts this evening, emanating obviously from the men and the noncoms of the regiment, declares that in reality they are not going to support any reactionary plots and that they are firm on the point that they owe allegiance to the Government which has the confidence of the National Assembly.

The position of Lüttwitz is rather a peculiar one. He has declared that he holds to the belief that the peace is unacceptable and that he will know how to maintain his position against the Minister of Defense and the Prussian Minister of War, General Reinhardt, but he calls on the officers and men to continue to do their duty and preserve public order.

Die Freiheit, the organ of the Independent Socialists, declares that General von Lettow Vorbeck is planning a coup, but that officer has replied that he knows nothing about it.

General Maercker, the well known leader of the Volunteer Corps, says he will not consent to serve the Government if it agrees to deliver up the ex-Kaiser and others, but that he will stay at his post until it is seen whether that is done or not.

Groener Upholds Noske.

General Gröner, who was General Ludendorff's successor, stands firmly beside Noske and insisted on the Minister of Defense retaining his position. General von Deimling, whose name will be remembered in connection with the Zabern troubles, has also spoken out strongly for loyalty to the Government.

Noske, Reinhardt, and Lüttwits have had conferences, and as a result it would appear that an agreement which may, however, be only temporary, has been reached. Officers will be instructed to speak to their troops and point out to them that their loyalty is doubly necessary at the present time.

There is undoubtedly a good deal of excitement throughout the military forces. Considerable numbers have given notice that they are leaving the army. It remains to be seen if that movement will assume serious proportions. In my own opinion that is rather doubtful, for, as Vorwärts remarks, no action of any kind by the military, even though successful, could alter the fact that the peace terms have been accepted and that the acceptance is irrevocable. Any military coup would simply mean war again.

Popular excitement has also been roused by a gentlemen's agreement strike. In Berlin today a strike of the postal and telegraph workers is causing the greatest inconvenience in the business world. The main demands are for higher wages and longer holidays. There is considerable feeling of opposition between strike pickets and non-strikers and soldiers.

URGE PRUSSIANS TO SUBMIT.

Provincial Chiefs in East Ask Support of the Government.

COPENHAGEN, June 26.—Three Presidents of eastern provinces of Prussia have issued a proclamation to the inhabitants of their districts expressing the deepest grief at the unconditional acceptance of the allied peace terms, but adding that the people "must not, under the circumstances, prevent the Government from fulfilling its word to the enemy."

"Regard for our compatriots who would have to bear the consequences of such action," the proclamation says, "makes it our hard duty to refrain from fighting for her right of self-determination and honour and bow to the decision which has been taken."

It is alleged that the Germans are selling property belonging to the State.

going to part with a finished work, but with a work one portion of which is finished and the other portion of which is only begun.

Predicts Lasting Co-operation.

"We have finished the formulation of the peace, but we have begun a plan of co-operation which I believe will broaden and strengthen as the years go by, so that this grip of the hand that we have taken now will need to be relaxed. We have been and shall continue to be comrades. We shall continue to be coworkers in tasks which, because they are common, will weave out of our sentiments a common conception of duty and a common conception of the rights of men of every race and of every clime. If it be true that that has been accomplished, it is a very great thing.

"As I go away from these scenes, I think I shall realize that I have been present at one of the most vital things that has happened in the history of nations. Nations have formed contracts with each other before, but they never have formed partnerships. They have associated themselves temporarily, but they have never before associated themselves permanently.

"The wrong that was done in the waging of this war was a great wrong, but it wakened the world to a great moral necessity of seeing that it was necessary that men should band themselves together in order that such a wrong should never be perpetrated again.

"Merely to beat a nation that was wrong once is not enough. There must follow the warning to all other nations that would do like things that they in turn will be vanquished and shamed if they attempt a dishonorable purpose.

"You can see, therefore, Sir, with what deep feelings those of us who must now say little while turn away from France, shall leave your shores, and, though the ocean is broad, it will seem very narrow in the future. It will be easier to understand each other than it ever was before, and with the confident intercourse of co-operation the understanding will be strengthened into action, and action will educate alike our purpose and our thought.

"So, Sir, in saying good-bye to France I am only saying a sort of physical good-bye, not a spiritual good-bye. I shall retain in my heart always the warm feelings which the generous treatment of this great people has generated in my heart. And I wish in my turn, Sir, to propose, as you have proposed, the continued and increasing friendship of the two nations, the safety and prosperity of France, and closer and closer communion of free peoples, and the strengthening of every influence which instructs the mind and the purpose of humanity."

HISTORY OF WILSON'S SEAL.

President Will Certify His Signature to Treaty with a Wedding Gift.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 25.—President Wilson today told the story of the seal ring he will use in certifying his signature to the German treaty. When his engagement to marry Mrs. Galt was announced the State of California sent him a gold nugget with the request that he have the wedding ring made from it. When the ring was made it was found that a considerable portion of the nugget remained. Out of this a seal ring for the President was made.

For the seal the President wrote his name in shorthand characters and entwined the "Woodrow" with "Wilson." The result was a combination closely resembling an Arabic inscription. The President's seal will be the most original of all those used by the signatories.

ALLIES REPROACHED IN ITALIAN SENATE

Tittoni Calls Country's Position Less Favorable Than When Peace Conference Began.

HOPES TO OBTAIN RIGHTS

Senators Approve New Government's Foreign Policy, but Judgment on Home Policy Is Reserved.

ROME, June 25.—The Senate today unanimously approved the foreign policy of the new Italian Government as presented in an address by Foreign Minister Tittoni. Judgment was reserved, however, regarding the Government's home policy.

Signor Tittoni promised that his mission to Paris would not be prolonged, and that whatever the result might be he would return home "to tell the country the entire truth so that it can realize exactly the position of Italy in the settlement of Europe."

"The foreign policy," the Foreign Minister continued, "hereafter must be the policy of the people. The era of secrets which involved nations without their knowledge into alliances and wars is definitely over. Nations which support the international policy of their Governments must know and understand."

Signor Tittoni said he desired to give a practical demonstration of this and would ask permission of the Allies for the immediate placing before the Italian Parliament of the compact of London, the details of which at present had only been known through the indiscretions of Russian revolutionists.

Dealing with his program, Signor Tittoni said his chief aim was to promote common interest between Italy and the Allies. He declared it was impossible to deny to Italy Fiume's right to self-determination. Italy would not consider peace satisfactory if it did not give her equitable commercial treaties sufficient to supply raw materials, if it did not protect her emigration or did not insure her position in the Adriatic and Mediterranean, or did not give her what was necessary to make her colonies live and develop.

The Foreign Minister ended his speech amid a general ovation, by declaring that his program, summed up, was this: "Be Italian, always Italian, above all Italian."

Signor Tittoni, in his address, said that the position of Italy was less favorable than at the beginning of the Peace Conference, because the Italian delegation had approved all that Great Britain and France had asked in Asia and Africa, while those powers had not acknowledged the claims of Italy.

If this situation should continue, he added, Great Britain and France would be at peace and free to demobilise and heal their wounds, while it would be impossible for Italy to do this because she would not be at peace.

"I tell you the facts," the Foreign Minister said, "but do not judge. History in time will do that."

Signor Tittoni said he hoped the rights of Italy would be recognised, not so much through the interpretation of treaties, but because of her enormous sacrifices in blood and wealth.

Former Premier Orlando, the Minister continued, had told him of the present status of Italy's negotiations, which he summarised briefly as follows:

"The frontier with the Austrian Republic is outlined as we desired.

"Regarding the Adriatic, after President Wilson's message in April, there was the Tardieu compromise, which failed of its object. This was to find a compromise agreeable to our allies as well as President Wilson, meanwhile keeping firm the compact of London, which President Wilson did not recognize, but which our allies admitted in its entirety, including the clause assigning Fiume to Croatia.

"No other decision was reached, but Serbia occupied Northern Albania and Greece occupied Smyrna, which was promised us by the agreement of St. Jean Maurienne."

In principle, Signor Tittoni added, the compensation offered Italy in Africa by the British Government was satisfactory. He said he believed the offer of France ought to be increased.

The Foreign Minister called for full and unconditional support for the new Government by Parliament and the country, regardless of party. Parliament and the country realise with anxiety, he said, that while the final disposition of Italy's aspirations still are uncertain, those of the other powers already have been acknowledged. The Foreign Minister said he was willing to answer all legitimate requests for explanations.

COTTON REACHES HAMBURG.

Cargo Is for Czechs and Germans Cannot Get Supply Now.

BERLIN, June 25, (Associated Press.)—The arrival of the first cargo of cotton at Hamburg a few days ago prompted inquiries of the Minister of Economics in respect to further shipments.

The Minister has replied that the shipment was for the account of the Czech Government and that for the time being German customers would not receive any cotton from cargoes which arrive.

think, the treaty itself and the League covenant would escape mutilation and the United States would be able to join in the peace terms and accept membership in the League of Nations.

But, according to the views of strong partisans of the President, the adoption of such a resolution would place the Republican party, as represented in the Senate, squarely on record as favoring changes which endanger the participation of the United States in the League. It is evidently the strong belief in American official circles here that the American people are thoroughly in sympathy with the purposes of the League, there is a feeling and that any amendments to the covenant or any expression which would make the League less powerful in the interest of preserving peace would be resented by the country.

Paris is a long way from the shores of America, and it is difficult at this distance to gauge things political at home; but it may be worth recording that throughout the American peace contingent the conviction is expressed today that Mr. Root has become the leader of the Republican Party on account of the adoption of his League of Nations proposals by the Republican Senators after their decision to abandon support of the more drastic amendatory resolution of Senator Knox.

A very kindly feeling for Mr. Root exists among the American peacemakers—Democrats included—on account of the helpful advice he gave the American delegation when the League covenant was in process of formation. Regret is expressed in the same quarters that he has taken the stand expressed in his proposals that the United States refuse to accept Article X. and seek certain other changes in the covenant.

WARNS OF GERMAN PERFIDY.

Matin Says Scapa Flow Shows How the Treaty Will Be Regarded.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 25.—Is Germany's two violations of the treaty even before it is signed—the sinking of the warships at Scapa Flow and the burning of the French flags at Berlin—the Matin finds an omen of what's to be feared and guarded against after the instrument has been signed.

"Now that the German Government disclaims all responsibility for the Scapa Flow and flag-burning incidents," says the Matin, "we may expect tomorrow that it will deny all knowledge of the assembling of armies on the Polish frontier. Germany's methods and spirit are unchangeable."

It adds that no time should be wasted by the Allies in exchanging congratulations and felicitations until after assurance that the treaty will be enforced, until Germany begins to pay and until the Austrian, Bulgarian, Turkish and Adriatic questions have been settled.

Premier Clemenceau himself has as lively a notion as any man in France of the necessity for eternal vigilance over German activities. When asked by members of the Chamber about demobilization, he replied that it would be necessary to maintain some important effectives in service in case the enemy does not observe the terms of the treaty. He cited the Polish frontier as one source of possible danger to future peace.

JULY 14 FRENCH VICTORY DAY

Celebration of German Defeat Falls on Bastile Day.

PARIS, June 26.—The French Government has decided that the official victory celebration by France shall take place on July 14.

July 14 is Bastile Day, the principal French holiday. It is also the anniversary of the beginning by the Germans in 1918 of their last drive toward Paris, which ended so disastrously for them through the stanch Franco-American resistance and ultimate counterattack.

AMERICANS PUNISH GERMAN OFFENDERS

Six Months for Rhine Manufacturers Who Failed to Provide Shells.

PENALTY FOR FALSE TALE

Secret Propaganda Charged—Captain Fined for Failing to Salute.

COBLENZ, June 26, (Associated Press.)—Sentences imposed upon Julius Mayer and Hugo Oehler, managers of German steel works near Prum, within the occupied area, were approved today by Lieut. Gen. Hunter Liggett, commander of the Army of Occupation.

The men were convicted on charges of failing to deliver to the American forces 200,000 shells and shell forgings. They were sentenced to six months' imprisonment and fined 10,000 marks each by a military commission.

George Sauerborn, editor of the Montanbaur Kreisblatt, convicted of having published false statements regarding American troops, has been fined 1,000 marks and sentenced to three months' imprisonment. The jail sentence, however, was suspended.

Sauerborn's defense was that the Kreisblatt had reprinted the article from a newspaper in unoccupied Germany, which alleged the killing of two Americans by civilians, and that the Americans subsequently levied a fine of 20,000 marks on the town where the shooting was said to have occurred.

The military authorities contended that the publication of this and similar articles was due to a secret German organization, the object of which was to spread anti-American propaganda in unoccupied Germany, and in the occupied zones as well.

Montaubaur is the headquarters of the 1st Division, the largest town occupied by the Americans on the east bank of the Rhine.

Captain Bachhauser, assigned by the German Army to duty in Coblenz, has been fined 1,000 marks for refusing to salute an American Lieutenant. The Captain contended that the war was over and that at any rate the regulations did not call for his saluting an officer of lower rank.

This is the first instance of action of this kind since a definite turn was taken in the peace situation. American officers say that after the treaty of peace is signed the regulation issued last December compelling German officers to salute will probably not be enforced.

Civilians generally have seemed to be relieved as a result of the action of the National Assembly at Weimar in reference to peace. Several individual instances have been reported here, however, in which civilians in the streets have assumed a haughty attitude toward soldiers without serious results.

The Americans do not expect any trouble between civilians and soldiers, but extra precautions have been taken by the military police in Treves, Coblenz, and other towns to prevent trouble. With a view to avoiding clashes no night leaves will be allowed in any of the towns within the occupied area, the officers desiring to have their men in the barracks at night, when most of the quarrels and fights between Germans and Americans have taken place.

EASIER TERMS TO AUSTRIA.

Allies, It Is Said, Are Disposed to Help Rebuild the Country.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, June 26.—According to authoritative French circles there will be a material amelioration in the financial terms to Austria in the treaty, it being the intention of the Allied Powers especially to arrange an equitable adjustment of war debts among all the former Austrian States in order to prevent Austria becoming bankrupt.

The Entente's favorable intentions are fortified by the conviction that no further Bolshevist danger is to be apprehended.

The French are determined to assist in rebuilding Austria, provided she does not join Germany.

vention, and the Polish treaty providing for the rights of minorities.

The order of precedence in signing the documents appears now to be established as follows: Premier Clemenceau first, as President of the Peace Conference; then President Wilson, and next Premier Lloyd George. The copies of the treaty and other documents will be carried to them by Paul Dutasta, Secretary General of the Peace Conference, and they will sign at their seats. The documents then will be taken to a table where other delegates will go, in their turns, to affix their signatures. The Germans will sign last.

There will be no speeches. Premier Clemenceau will simply declare the meeting open, and the signing will begin immediately.

Berlin Announces Appointments.

BERLIN, June 25, (Associated Press.)—Hermann Müller, the Foreign Minister, and Dr. Bell, the Colonial Minister, it is announced tonight, have been selected as the German envoys to sign the peace treaty. They will leave Berlin on Friday.

The Tageblatt this morning said that it had been suggested that a commission of officials who were outside the pale of politics, or former members of the diplomatic corps, should be appointed, provided such individuals would accept the assignment.

Wilson May Sail Sunday Morning.

PARIS, June 26.—After the receipt of Dr. Haniel von Haimhausen's official statement that Dr. Mueller, Dr. Bell, and Herr Leinert would be in Versailles Saturday to sign the Peace Treaty, the council of the great powers made preparations for the ceremony at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Herr Giesberts is now in Berlin and may not be able to arrive in time, in which case Dr. Haniel von Haimhausen may take his place.

Dr. Mueller is bringing the necessary credentials.

As there are 119 Allies and three Germans to sign the treaties, it is expected that the ceremony will last more than six hours, or until 9 o'clock.

President Wilson can quit Paris at midnight and leave Brest at 10 o'clock Sunday morning on the George Washington, which will be favored with a full tide.

Secretary Lansing will remain in Paris to advise the various commissions named this afternoon to insure the carrying out of the conditions of the treaty.

General Bliss will remain at his post here temporarily.

Colonel House will go to England to visit relatives until the Senate ratifies the League of Nations covenant, when he will renew his work on its organization.

Fewer than 500,000 American troops remain in France. Shipment home at high speed is recommended, leaving only two divisions at the Coblenz bridgehead.

RECORDS OF GERMAN ENVOYS.

Mueller and Bell Have Been Prominent as Majority Socialists.

Drs. Johannes Bell and Hermann Müller, who are to sign the treaty for Germany, were well-known in Majority Socialist circles during the war, but with leanings toward the minority; for, while they obeyed the discipline of their party in the Reichstag they also declared that Social Democrats had never been in favor of the war and they often condemned the military party. With Scheidemann, the leader of the majority, and Erzberger, the leader of the Catholic Centre, they uphold the famous Reichstag resolution of July 19, 1917, but enthusiastically denounced it in the following Spring, after the Germans had started their Picardy offensive.

While he held the portfolio of Colonies in the Scheidemann Government Dr. Bell periodically pleaded for the return of the German overseas possessions. In May he said in an interview:

"Germany expects their return and will fight for them at the peace table. We base this claim on one of President Wilson's points guaranteeing a free, generous, and absolutely non-partisan settlement of all colonial claims. . . . Germany has administered her colonies in a manner which proves her to be a fit trustee for the backward peoples."

Dr. Müller, who became Minister of Foreign Affairs in the reconstructed Government on June 21, was one of the most conspicuous German delegates at the International Socialist Conference at Berne last February. There he acknowledged the guilt of Germany, as far as the Kaiserand Junker parties were concerned, but affirmed the innocence of all Social Democrats. He said in the session of Feb. 5:

"The young Republic of Germany is ready to consent to a general disarmament on the condition that all other countries do the same."

In a recent speech Dr. Müller is reported to have said that Herr Hohenzollern was not wanted in Germany as he "belongs in a pathological ward."

The Disastrous Dollar

"Oh, if I just hadn't taken the first dollar!" is the plaint of many defaulters.

Their experience shows that the first dollar wrongfully taken is the disastrous one.

It leads to disrespect of self and associates; to insincerity, poverty, prison, exile, suicide; to poignant grief of innocent people.

Moral breakdowns do not occur suddenly. Their beginnings are small and their progress insidious.

Many defaulters are astounded when told that they are common embezzlers.

We have dealt with more than 35,000 embezzlers, not one of whom ever expected at the outset that he would become a criminal. That was something which might happen to the other fellow, but not to him.

Aside from ethical considerations, which should be controlling, our experience teaches that it pays to be honest.

We see that honor and happiness go hand in hand, as do also dishonor and despair.

The employee who spurns the dishonest dollar and leads such a life of rectitude as to make himself eligible for our bond is laying a sure foundation for success and happiness. The endorsement implied by the bond of this Company is a positive asset to any employee.

ALLIES REJECT TURKEY'S PLEA

Will Not Consent to Maintenance of Empire as It Was Before the War.

UNIMPRESSED BY PROMISES

Point to Admission Turkey Had No Quarrel and Was Subservient Tool of Germany.

ITS RECORD AN EVIL ONE

Has Always Destroyed and Oppressed and Never Shown Progress in Peace.

PARIS, June 26, (Associated Press.)—The Allied Council has replied to the Turkish memorandum, saying that it cannot accept the Turkish claim that its territories be restored undiminished.

The statement of Damad Ferid (Sherif) Pasha, delivered to the Council of Ten on Tuesday, June 17, respecting the Turkish position, and also the reply of the allied and associated powers, dated June 25, were made public today. The Turkish note follows:

"Gentlemen: I should not be bold enough to come before this High Assembly if I thought that the Ottoman people had incurred any share of responsibility in the war which has ravaged Europe and Asia with fire and sword.

"I apologize in advance for the development which I must give to my statement, for I am in point of fact defending today before the public opinion of the whole world and before history a most complicated and ill-understood case.

"In the course of the war nearly the whole civilized world was shocked by the recital of the crimes alleged to have been committed by the Turks. It is far from my thought to cast a veil over these misdeeds, which are such as to make the conscience of mankind shudder with horror forever. Still less will I endeavor to minimize the degree of guilt of the actors in the great drama. The aim which I have set for myself is that of showing to the world, with proofs in my hand, who are the truly responsible authors of these terrible crimes.

"We are under no illusions in regard to the extent of the dissatisfaction which surrounds us: we are absolutely convinced that a mass of unfortunate events has made Turkey appear in an unfavorable light. However, when the truth has once been brought to light it will warn civilized nations and posterity against passing an unjust judgment upon us.

Alliance Unknown to People.

"The responsibility for the war in the East—assumed, without the knowledge of the sovereign or of the people, in the Black Sea, by a German ship commander by a German Admiral—rests entirely with the signatories of the secret treaties, which were unknown alike to the Ottoman people and to the European Chancelleries.

"These agreements were concluded between the Government of the Kaiser and the heads of the Revolutionary Committee, who, at the beginning of 1914, had placed themselves in power by means of a coup d'état. I call to witness the official dispatches exchanged between the representatives of France and Great Britain and their respective Governments during the three months which preceded the outbreak of hostilities between Turkey and the Empire of the Czars.

"When war had once been declared the eternal covetousness of Russia as regards Constantinople was skillfully represented to the people as an imminent danger, and anxiety for the preservation of national existence thereupon rendered the struggle a desperate one. Our archives are, moreover, thrown entirely open to an inquiry which would enable the statements which I have the honor to make to this high assembly to be amply confirmed.

"In regard to the other tragic events I beg leave to repeat here the declarations which I have repeatedly made to the Ottoman Senate. Turkey deplores the murder of a great number of her Christian conationals as much as she does that of Moslems, properly speaking. In point of fact, the Committee of Union and Progress, not content with the crimes perpetrated against Christians, condemned to death by every means 3,000,000 Moslems.

"Several hundreds of thousands of these unfortunate beings, hunted from their homes, are still wandering about today in the middle of Asia Minor without shelter and without any relief for their very existence, and even if they returned to their provinces they would find themselves just as destitute, for a large number of towns and villages, both Moslem and Christian, have been completely destroyed. Asia Minor is today nothing but a vast heap of ruins.

"The new Government, notwithstanding its vigilant care, has been as yet unable to mitigate the disastrous effects of the cataclysm. It will always be easily possible to confirm my assertions by an inquiry undertaken on the spot.

"It is necessary, however, to dismiss any theory of racial conflict or any explosion of religious fanaticism. Moreover, the Turkish people, at a time when violence could strive successfully against right showed itself able to respect the lives, the honor and the sacred feelings of the Christian nations subject to its laws. It would be fairer to judge the Ottoman nation by its long history as a whole rather than by a single period which shows it in the most disadvantageous light.

Case Likened to That of Russia.

"Whatever be the names by which they are called, the principles and the methods of both Russian and Turkish revolutionaries are the same, namely, to destroy society in order to seize its ruins by putting its members out of the way and taking possession of their property. Europe and America are endeavoring, at the cost of immense sacrifices, to deliver the Slav people, whose ostensible attitude toward the Entente is scarcely different at the present time from that of the Turks, for both have been reduced to silence and both are paralyzed by an unheard-of tyranny.

"The Turks, who thus find themselves under the domination of the committee in the same situation as that of the Russians under the terrorists, deserve the same sympathy and the same humanitarian and kindly assistance at the hands of the rulers of the great nations which hold the destinies of the world in their hands.

"Latterly the truth has begun to filter through into European public opinion. The great trial of the Unionists at Constantinople has proved the responsibility of the leaders of the committee, all of whom occupy high positions in the State, for the war and the other tragic events. That is the rehabilitation of the Ottoman nation.

"Thus rehabilitated in the eyes of the civilized world, our mission will henceforth be that of devoting ourselves to an intensive economic and intellectual culture in order thus to become a useful factor in the League of Nations.

"The Ottoman people hopes that the chaos in the East, fostered as it is by this abnormal state of affairs, which is neither war nor peace, may at last be replaced by order, and it likewise desires to see the end of the continued occupation of its territories in spite of the armistice. This occupation in fact has resulted at Smyrna in the most deplorable excesses which have been committed to the hurt of the defenseless Moslem population.

"It desires with equal earnestness the maintenance, on the basis of the status quo antebellum, of the integrity of the Ottoman Empire, which during the last forty years has been reduced to the least possible limits.

"It, lastly, wishes to be granted in Thrace, to the north and west of Adrianople, where the Mohammedan population is in an overwhelming majority, a frontier line which will render possible the defence of Adrianople and Constantinople.

"What we ask for thus is, moreover, completely in conformity with President Wilson's principles, which we invoked when we requested an armistice, being convinced that they would be eventually applied in the interests of the peace of the world. On the other hand, a fresh parcelling out of the Ottoman Empire would entirely upset the balance in the East.

"The ranges of the Taurus are, moreover, nothing more than a geological line of demarkation. The regions situated beyond those mountains, from the Mediterranean up to the Arabian Sea, are, although a language different from the Turkish language is spoken there, indissolubly linked with Constantinople by feelings which are deeper than the principle of nationality. On either side of the Taurus the same ideals, the same thoughts, the same moral and material interests bind the inhabitants. These form a compact bloc and their disintegration would be detrimental to the peace and tranquillity of the East.

"Even a plebiscite would not solve the question, for the supreme interests of more than 300,000,000 Moslems are involved, and they form an important fraction of the whole of the human race.

"The conscience of the world could only approve conditions of peace which are compatible with right, with the aspirations of peoples, and with eminent justice."

Reply of the Allied Powers.

The reply of the allied and associated powers to Damad Pasha (Grand Vier) follows:

"The council of the principal allied and associated powers have read with the most careful attention the memorandum presented to them by your Excellency on June 17, and, in accordance with the promise then made, desire now to offer the following observations upon it.

"In your recital of the political intrigues which accompanied Turkey's entry into the war and of the tragedies which followed it, your Excellency makes no attempt to excuse or qualify the crimes of which the Turkish Government was then guilty. It is admitted directly, or by implication, that Turkey had no cause of quarrel with the Entente powers, that she acted as the subservient tool of Germany, that the war, begun without excuse and conducted without mercy, was accompanied by massacres whose calculated atrocity equals or exceeds anything in recorded history.

"But it is argued that these crimes were committed by a Turkish Government for whose misdeeds the Turkish people were not responsible, that there was in them no element of religious fanaticism, that Moslems suffered from them not less than Christians, that they were entirely out of harmony with the Turkish tradition as historically exhibited in the treatment by Turkey of subject races, that the maintenance of the Turkish Empire is necessary for the religious equilibrium of the world, so that policy, not less than justice, requires that its territories should be restored undiminished, as they existed when the war broke out.

"The Council can neither accept this conclusion nor the arguments by which it is supported. They do not, indeed, doubt that the present Government of Turkey profoundly disapproves of the policy pursued by its predecessors. Even if considerations of morality did not weigh with it—as doubtless they did—consideration of expediency would be conclusive. As individuals, its members have every motive, as well as every right, to repudiate the actions which have proved so disastrous to their country.

Nation Judged by Its Government.

"But, speaking generally, a nation must be judged by the Government which rules it, which directs its foreign policy, which controls its armies. Nor can Turkey claim any relief from the legitimate consequences of this doctrine merely because her affairs, at a most critical moment in her history, had fallen into the hands of men, who utterly devoid of the principle of pity, could not even command success.

"It seems, however, that the claim for complete territorial restoration put forward in the memorandum is not based really on the plea that Turkey should not be required to suffer for the sins of her Ministers. It has a deeper ground. It appeals to the history of Turkish rule in the past and to the condition of affairs in the Moslem world.

"Now, the Council is anxious not to enter into unnecessary controversy, or to inflict needless pain on your Excellency and the delegates who accompany you. It wishes well to the Turkish people and admires their excellent qualities. But it cannot admit that among those qualities are to be counted capacity to rule over alien races. The experiment has been tried too long and too often for there to be the least doubt as to its result.

"The obvious conclusion from these facts would seem to be that, since Turkey has, without the least excuse or provocation, deliberately attacked the Entente Powers, and been defeated, she has thrown upon the victors the heavy duty of determining the destiny of the various populations in her heterogeneous empire. This duty the council of the principal allied and associated powers desire to carry out as far as may be in accordance with the wishes and permanent interests of the populations themselves.

As to the Religious Factor.

"But the Council observes with regret that the memorandum introduces in this connection a wholly different order of considerations based on opposed religious rivalries. The Turkish Empire is, it seems, to be preserved unchanged, not so much because this would be to the advantage of the Moslems or of the Christians within its borders, but because its maintenance is demanded by the religious sentiment of men who never felt the Turkish yoke or have forgotten how heavily it weighs on those who are compelled to bear it.

"But surely there never was a sentiment less justified by facts. The whole course of the war exposes its hollowness. What religious issue is raised by a struggle in which Protestant Germany, Roman Catholic Austria, Orthodox Bulgaria, and Moslem Turkey banded themselves together to plunder their neighbors?

"The only savor of deliberate fanaticism perceptible in these transactions was the massacre of Christian Armenians by order of the Turkish Government. But your Excellency has pointed out that, at the very same time and by the very same authority, unoffending Moslems were being slaughtered, in circumstances sufficiently horrible and in numbers sufficiently large to mitigate, if not wholly to remove, any suspicion of religious partiality.

"During the war, then, there was little evidence of sectarian animosity on the part of any of the Governments, and no evidence whatever, so far as the Entente Powers were concerned. Nor has anything since occurred to modify this judgment. Every man's conscience has been respected, places of sacred memory have been carefully guarded, the States and peoples who were Mohammedan before the war are Mohammedan still.

"Nothing touching religion has been altered, except the security with which it may be practiced, and this, wherever allied control exists, has certainly been altered for the better.

"If it be replied that the diminution in the territories of a historic Moslem State must injure the Moslem cause in all lands, we respectfully suggest that in our opinion this is an error. To thinking Moslems throughout the world the modern history of the Government, enthroned at Constantinople can be no source of pleasure or pride.

"For reasons we have already indicated, the Turk was there attempting a task for which he had little aptitude and in which he has consequently had little success. Set him to work in happier circumstances, let his energies find their chief exercise in surroundings more congenial to his genius, under new circumstances less complicated and difficult, with an evil tradition of corruption and intrigue severed, perhaps forgotten, why should he not add lustre to his country, and thus indirectly to his religion, by other qualities than that of courage and discipline, which he has always so conspicuously displayed?

"Unless we are mistaken, your Excellency should understand our hopes. In an impressive passage of your memorandum you declare it to be your country's mission to devote itself to an intensive economic and intellectual culture.

"No change could be more startling or impressive; none could be more beneficial. If your Excellency is able to initiate this great process of development in men of the Turkish race, you will deserve and will certainly receive all the assistance we are able to give you.

"(Signed) G. CLEMENCEAU."

TURKEY WANTS ONE MANDATARY

Crown Prince Expresses Hope That the United States Will Be Chosen.

MANY OPPOSE PARTITION

Howard Heinz Reports This Attitude Almost Universal Among Diplomats in the Near East.

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 25.—Howard Heinz, Director of the American Relief Administration in Southeastern Europe and Asia Minor, has brought back and turned over to the American Peace Commission reports of conditions as he found them there. An interesting incident of his visit was his interview with the Crown Prince of Turkey, of which Mr. Heinz was able to give me from his notes a detailed account.

"I had my conversation with the Crown Prince," Mr. Heinz said, "the day before I left Constantinople. He had evidently learned that I was coming to Paris and sent for me. I might say, in the first place, that he is a man about 55 years of age, very well educated, a painter, and a musician. He speaks five or six languages, although he does not speak English. He gives one the impression of being a type of man superior in every way to the present Grand Vizier or the Sultan himself. He is very broadminded in his views of life in general and is considerable of a thinker.

"After the usual formalities of the reception he said in French:

"'I am very glad to have an opportunity to discuss with an American business man some of my thoughts on the matters that are now being talked over in Paris; for, while the immediate question of peace with Germany and Austria is of the greatest moment and, of course, is fundamental, yet in a very highly secondary degree the problem of the Near East is of paramount importance in maintaining peaceful conditions between all the nations of Europe.

"'The Near Eastern question has been the subject of more secret diplomacy and has involved more seeds of possible warfare during the last century than that of any other part of the world. The Turkish people are very sick of war and wish to do everything in their power to prevent its recurrence.

"'The Turkish nation all admire your great President and believe his ideals of right and justice are the greatest that any ruler has ever propounded; and we believe, too, that he is doing all in his power to prevent future warfare.

"'The Turkish question is one that cannot be understood in a moment, for it has, of course, a past connected with it. The Turkish people did not want to enter the war on the side of Germany, but the old weak-minded Sultan was easily persuaded to do whatever Enver Pasha and Talaat desired. We had long since realized that Germany was to be feared, but Talaat persuaded the old Sultan that Russia was more to be feared than Germany. Now, of course, we know that we must be punished for our mistake and for a great many other things.

"'In my opinion the only peace that will be lasting will be one that is based upon the true principles of humanity. Bismarck in his day was acclaimed as a great man because he listened to the clamor of the crowd, who wanted to see the dream of "Deutschland Uber Alles" come true. We all recognize today that Bismarck was not a great man because he was not far-sighted, nor did he consider what was the best thing for mankind. Clemenceau is a great man in the eyes of France today because he is listening to the clamor of his people; but he must take care lest he go to extremes in answering calls of selfishness on the part of the French people that will only come back on their own heads in future years.

"'Coming more directly to the question of what will bring peace in Europe, we must be sure there are no seeds of discord sown among European nations because of the settlement with Turkey. If Turkey is chopped up, and France, Greece, Italy, and England are placed side by side, each one will try to see how much he can make out of his individual part of Turkey, and you will have a conflict of interest; you will not develop the resources of the country, nor will you help the people of the country.

"'I feel that Turkey should have one mandatary, who would take an interest in all the nationalities living within the Turkish borders and would develop the resources of the country for the benefit of all these peoples. We know the Turkish people are incapable of self-government. They need instruction and direction. We could hope for nothing better than that America should be chosen as the mandatary for Turkey. We believe in America's ideas; we know that she will not try to exploit us, and we believe she will try to keep other nations from using us in their own interest or against one another. We believe that America's coming to the Near East would solve one of the world's greatest problems.'"

Mr. Heinz continued:

"I had the privilege of meeting a great many business men as well as diplomats of every nation in the Balkans, Armenia, Turkey, and the Caucasus, and it was surprising to find them almost unanimous in the opinion that Turkey should not be divided. They said that perhaps Thrace should be taken away from Turkey, and the Sultan placed at Brusa, with little or no political power, but suffered to remain at the head of the Mohammedan faith. They said there should be at the same time abolition of political privileges for the Patriarchs of Christian churches.

"These gentlemen seem to feel that the rest of Anatolia and Cilicia should be placed under one mandatary. They believe Syria should have France as mandatary; that Palestine should be given to Great Britain outright, and that Armenia should have a separate republic, with a port on the Black Sea. They insist, however, that Armenia should not be too large a territory—certainly that it should be without a port on the Mediterranean.

"It was their unanimous feeling that separate States in Turkey would bring nothing but continuous discord, both economically and politically. They were quite outspoken in their statement that America would make an ideal mandatary for Turkey, and that she could thereby render great service to the world."

DOUBT IS EXPRESSED IF FOE WILL KEEP FAITH

Some Paris Conferees Fear the Treaty May Parallel That of Brest-Litovsk.

PARIS, June 26, (Associated Press.)—Disappointment over what is termed the apparent weakness of the present German Government is not concealed in Peace Conference circles, and the feeling has been expressed that the signing of this peace treaty may mean little more than the signing by the Bolsheviki at Brest-Litovsk did.

The defiant tone of the German note, which grudgingly agreed to sign the Treaty without reservations, created an unfavorable impression on members of the various delegations, according to statements made today, and this seemingly has been intensified by the delay of the Germans in arranging for the carrying out of their promises.

The peace treaty contains no provision as to when it must be ratified; consequently delay in ratification may cause the Peace Conference additional annoyance, although it is generally agreed by the delegates that enforcement of the reparations clause need not be delayed until there is ratification by the Germans.

TO PUNISH GERMANY FOR HER BAD FAITH

Allies Will Exact Reparation for Sinking Fleet and May Try Offenders.

TEXT OF NOTES OF WARNING

German Government Held Responsible for Plotting Against Poland—Reparation for Burning Flags.

PARIS, June 26.—Germany is notified in a note sent today by the Allies that they possess the right to punish the persons responsible for the destruction of the German ships and to collect reparation for the loss. The sinking of the fleet is denounced as a violation of the armistice and a deliberate breech in advance of the conditions of peace. When the investigations have been completed, the note states, the Allies will exact "the necessary reparation."

Reparation also will be asked for the burning of the French battle flags, which under the treaty Germany was to return to France.

In addition the German peace delegation has been informed in a note from Premier Clemenceau that the German Government will be held strictly responsible for unofficial support of any movement against Polish authority in the territory given to Poland in Posen and in East and West Prussia.

In the note regarding the sinking of the ships Germany is warned that such acts as are noted "must have a very unfortunate effect upon the future operation of the treaty." Germany's protests against the long period of allied occupation provided for in the treaty and her complaint that her admission to the League of Nations might be too long delayed are contrasted with the violations of her engagements set forth. It is pointed out, inferentially, that the treaty provides for successive evacuations of various parts of German territory at stated periods, and that it is stipulated that the occupying forces should be withdrawn entirely at any time Germany has complied with all the undertakings under the treaty. Germany, however, the note adds, "cannot complain should the Allies use the full powers conferred on them by the treaty, particularly Article 429, (that dealing with the question of territorial occupation, which provides that it might be continued indefinitely, if she, on her side, deliberately violates its provisions."

Text of Note on Sinkings.

The text of the letter on the sinking of the ships sent to the German peace delegation, which is signed by Premier Clemenceau, follows:

"June 25, 1919.

"Mr. President: The terms of the armistice signed by Germany on Nov. 11, 1918, provided as follows:

Article 23. The German surface warships which shall be specified by the Allies and the United States shall forthwith be disarmed and thereafter interned in neutral ports, or, failing them, in the allied ports designated by the Allies and the United States. They shall there remain under supervision by the Allies and the United States, only care and maintenance parties being left on board.

"On June 21, the German warships which had been handed over to the allied and associated powers and were at anchor in the roadstead at Scapa Flow, with the German care and maintenance parties on board, as provided in the armistice, were sunk by these parties under the orders of the German Admiral in command. According to the information which has been collected and transmitted by the British Admiralty, the German Admiral in command of these parties of the German naval forces has alleged that he acted in the belief that the armistice expired on June 21 at midday, and consequently, in his opinion, the destruction in question was no violation of its terms.

"In law, Germany, by signing the terms of Article 23, set out above, entered into an undertaking that the ships handed over by her should remain in the ports indicated by the allied and associated powers, and that care and maintenance parties should be left on board with such instructions and under such orders as would insure that the armistice should be observed.

"The sinking of these ships, instead of their preservation, as had been provided for, and in breach of the undertaking embodied in Article 31 of the armistice against all acts of destruction, constituted at once a violation of the armistice, the destruction of the pledge handed over and an act of gross bad faith toward the allied and associated powers.

"The Admiral in command of the care and maintenance parties belonging to the German naval forces has, while recognizing that the act was a breach of the armistice, attempted to justify it by alleging his belief that the armistice has come to an end.

Quote International Law.

"This alleged justification is not well founded, as, under the communication addressed to the German delegation by the allied and associated powers on June 16, 1919, the armistice would only terminate on refusal to sign the peace, or, if no answer were returned on June 23 at 7 o'clock. According to international law, as embodied particularly in Articles 40 and 41 of the regulations annexed to the Fourth Hague Convention of 1907, every serious violation of the armistice by one of the parties gives the other party the right to denounce it and even in case of urgency to recommence hostilities at once.

"A violation of the terms of the armistice by individuals, acting on their own initiative, only confere the right of demanding the punishment of these offenders, and, if necessary, indemnity for the losses sustained. It will therefore be open to the allied and associated powers to bring before a military tribunal the persons responsible for these acts of destruction, so that the appropriate penalties may be imposed. Furthermore, the incident gives the allied and associated powers a right to reparation for the loss caused, and in consequence a right to proceed to such further measures as the said powers may deem appropriate.

"Lastly, the sinking of the German fleet is not only a violation of the armistice, but can only be regarded by the allied and associated powers as a deliberate breach in advance of the conditions communicated to Germany and now accepted by her. Furthermore, the incident is not an isolated act. The burning or permission for the burning of the French flags which Germany was to restore constitutes another deliberate breach in advance of these same conditions.

"In consequence, the allied and associated powers declare that they take note of these signal acts of bad faith, and that, when the investigations have been completed into all the circumstances, they will exact the necessary reparation. It is evident that any repetition of acts like those must have a very unfortunate effect upon the future operation of the treaty which the Germans are about to sign. They have made complaint of the fifteen years' period of occupation which the treaty contemplates. They have made complaint that admission to the League of Nations may be too long deferred. How can Germany put forward such claims if she encourages or permits deliberate violations of her written engagements? She cannot complain should the Allies use the full powers conferred on them by the treaty, particularly Article 429, if she, on her side, deliberately violates its provisions. G. CLEMENCEAU."

Text of Note on Poland.

The text of the note with regard to opposition to Polish authority reads:

"Paris, June 26.

"Mr. President: The allied and associated powers feel it necessary to direct the attention of the German Government to the fact that the Polish authorities have come into possession of the attached official German dispatch, which states that, while the German Government mean to sign the peace, they intend to give unofficial support by all the means in their power to local movements of resistance to the establishment of Polish authority in the territories allotted to Poland in Posen and in East and West Prussia, and to the occupation of the Upper Silesia by the allied and associated powers.

"In view of this information, the allied and associated powers think it necessary to inform the German Government that they will hold them strictly responsible for seeing that, at the time indicated in the treaty, all troops and all officials indicated by the Allied Commission are withdrawn, and that, in the event of local disturbances in resistance to the treaty, no support or assistance to the insurgents is allowed to pass across the new frontier into Poland.

"G. CLEMENCEAU."

The telegram referred to in the foregoing letter follows:

"Posen, June 21, 1919.

"The Government will sign. Nevertheless, Horsing (Provincial President) will claim for Silesia, and Wig (Provincial President) for Western and Eastern Prussia, war against the East. The Government will officially declare its opposition, but will unofficially support the action by every means.

"Horsing has telegraphed today: 'Send my large parcel to Breslau.'"

SEES EARLY DEATH FOR BOLSHEVISM

Red Menace in Europe Will Extinguish Itself in 3 Months, Says Major Babbitt.

Declaring that Bolshevism in Europe would be dead in three more months, burned out by its own fire, Major James A. Babbitt, head of the Medical and Surgical Relief of the American Red Cross Commission to Germany, who arrived here yesterday, said that radicalism was losing its hold on the people. Equally positive was Major Babbitt that the rank and file of the German people were still loyal to the ex-Kaiser and would rally to his command if given the opportunity. Speaking of what he had observed abroad, Major Babbitt said:

"It speaks volumes for the work of the American Army, which has been ably seconded by the Red Cross, that wherever our soldiers have been they have helped tremendously in stamping out the Red menace. It was part of my work in Germany to inspect and relieve prison camps, many of them containing Russian prisoners of war, among whom Bolshevist doctrines were rife.

"In less than a month those Russians were on the best of terms with our men. They were, so to speak, tamed. Why? Because the Americans treated them right; that's all. They were half frantic when we took them under our charge, but a little bit of human understanding, a little bit of humane treatment, changed them from the worst class of undesirables into what gave promise of becoming a group of decent citizens. This is only one instance, an extreme one, but the change of heart that our people brought about I think is typical."

Major Babbitt, who is a member of the American Football Rules Committee, and went into Germany on the heels of the American advance, previous to the arrival of the army of occupation, expressed his opinion that Germany's acceptance of the peace terms was due not to a demand of the common people, but to the breakdown and surrender of the military caste.

"Everywhere I went in Germany," he said, "I found tokens of the loyalty of the common people to their former Kaiser. I believe at his command they would today rise up and go on with the war, despite the hopelessness of their task and notwithstanding the awful privations they previously underwent. The war spirit of the German people is by no means broken."

BELIEVE DENIKIN HAS TAKEN TSARITSIN

London Hears Cossack Advance Is Cutting Off Reds from Coal and Grain.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 26.—Most hopeful news from Russia comes from General Denikin's army, which has already accomplished much and seems on the eve of still more important successes.

It had already by June 1 freed 70,000 square miles and captured 50,000 prisoners, 30 guns, 700 machine guns, and 200 locomotives. Since then it has improved greatly its stategic position. It seems likely that it has captured Tsaritsin, thus cutting Bolshevist communication with the Caspian by way of the Volga. It is threatening Kharkoff, one of the chief centres of Southern Russia, and it has reached Paulograd, and is thus endangering the railway connections of the soviet troops in the Crimea.

The result is that Denikin has now rescued the whole of the valuable Donets coal basin, from which the Russian railways drew most of their coal supplies. Moreover, he is drawing near the rich wheat areas of Ukraine, which, even without him, were in a chaotic condition.

Consequently there can be no doubt that Denikin's advance is beginning to have a serious effect on the chief sources of Bolshevist supplies.

LONDON JEWS WANT ACTION.

Observe Day of Mourning for Victims of Recent Disorders.

LONDON, June 26.—The Jewish community of London observed today as a day of mourning for Jews killed in the disorders of Eastern Europe. Many of them fasted. All Jewish shops in the East End were closed.

Most of the workers went either to the synagogues or to one of the several large meetings where resolutions of protest were passed calling upon the Government to take some steps to have the Peace Conference take action.

BERLIN RIOTS GROWING; STREETS BARRICADED

Looting of Food Shops Continues and There Are Fears of Big Revolt.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 25.—The hunger riots in various cities are continuing, even Charlottenburg has had its share, a dozen victual shops being plundered by excited housewives.

In Schoenberg the proprietor of one of the largest groceries was badly used by his women customers, who refused to pay 4 marks a pound for cherries, which, according to the official price list, should cost 1½ marks, whereupon all the other groceries in the place were closed. Neither the police nor the soldiers interfered.

In other parts of the city and the northern suburbs the soldiers have arrested many persons for looting groceries, bakeries, and butcher shops. Desultory shooting is reported from several points, which, however, did not lead to any serious encounter.

The streets are filled with striking railway men and auxiliary postal employes, the latter having entered a sympathy strike. The railway men demand increases of wages in various forms which would swell the already enormously large deficit of the State railways by 2,500,000,000 marks. In Berlin the strike is thus far confined to the Goerlitzer Depot.

In Breslau the strike will probably end this afternoon with the administration granting everything, even certain political demands, among which are recognition of the Railway Men's Council and the right of being consulted about the employment and dismissal of all officials and other employes, which concession, it is feared, will not end the movement for a general railway strike, because the men on other lines will now demand the same privileges.

BERLIN, June 25, (Associated Press.)—Until 4 o'clock this afternoon the strike of railroad workers failed to show signs of spreading. The Federation of Rail Workers, the membership of which is 400,000, is opposing the strike and has called upon the workers not to be "misled by political agitators or guilty of plunging the country into economic chaos."

General Gröner, who has succeeded Field Marshal von Hindenburg as Chief of Staff, has tendered his resignation to President Ebert, but has agreed to remain at his post until the situation in the eastern provinces becomes stabilized.

LONDON, June 26.—Disorders are increasing in Berlin, The Exchange Telegraph correspondent at Amsterdam reports. Many streets there are barricaded and there have been serious engagements between Government troops and mobs.

In military circles in Berlin, the dispatch adds, it is asserted that a counter-revolution will begin as soon as a Communist revolt against the Government is started.

Field Marshal von Hindenburg, in reply to a request from Minister of Defense Noske concerning the allied rejection of German reservations in the Peace Treaty, said that in the event of a resumption of hostilities the Germans would be able to reconquer Posen and maintain the frontiers to the east, but hardly would be able to reckon on success in the west. The Field Marshal is said to have added:

"A favorable issue to our operations is, therefore, very doubtful, but as a soldier I must prefer an honorable fall to an ignominious peace."

HAYS DECLARES HE'S 'FOR A LEAGUE'

Republican Chairman Visits Washington to Get Unity of Party Action.

CONFERS WITH SENATORS

Said to Favor Amending Covenant by Reservations—Finds League Opposition Widely Split.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Actuated by the hope of uniting the elements of opposition among Republican Senators involved in the League of Nations fight, Chairman Will H. Hays of the Republican National Committee came to the Capitol today and spent some ten hours in conference with Republican leaders of the Senate.

While Mr. Hays would disclose nothing for publication of his attitude as to the League of Nations, except to say he was "for a League," Senators with whom he talked said that the Chairman favored amendments through a resolution of reservation, such as Elihu Root had proposed in his recent letter to Senator Lodge.

Wants a Nonpartisan Decision.

Mr. Hays said to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent that he deplored partisanship in the League fight.

Asked to tell exactly what had brought him to Washington, he replied: "Oh, a number of things."

He went on to say that he expected to remain in Washington for some weeks. He will be here when the Treaty of Peace is submitted to the Senate, and also while Republican opponents of the League of Nations are making their fight against the covenant.

Out of the visit of Mr. Hays one thing loomed up tonight in the minds of opponents of the League of Nations, that is, that the forces of opposition are still far apart as to any definite policy to be pursued in the impending contest. Mr. Hays found many Republicans standing firmly for reservations to the Treaty of Peace, to embrace features to which the Senate may dissent, these reservations to relieve the United States of participation in the League of Nations until they are accepted by other signatories among the allied nations. He found other Senators, such as Mr. Borah of Idaho, Mr. Johnson of California, and Mr. Poindexter of Washington saying that amendments, to be effective, must be made directly to the body of the League covenant.

Mr. Hays found the two elements talking of a compromise involving reservations so specifically drawn as not to nullify their adoption through their being rejected later by the League of Nations. But, he also found that the radicals among the opposition were disposed to believe that no reservations would be of avail.

Urging a Qualifying Resolution.

Mr. Hays gave one definite idea, at least, to the Republican Senators. It was that the Senate ought to approve "a League of Nations." The country seemed to want it, he said, and conditions of unrest throughout the world, argued for it. He went further, in urging that the League covenant be amended, through a qualifying resolution, rather than by attempting to change the body of the covenant. But he had a hard time convincing many of the Senators that such a qualifying resolution would achieve the object sought.

After that conference Mr. Hays strolled through the Capitol, going into various offices. He talked with Senator Watson of Indiana, who wants amendments to the League covenant whether through a qualifying resolution or other methods. He conferred with Mr. McNary of Oregon who says the League plan must be adopted whether amended or not because the people want it and because it is the only preventive in sight of another world war.

Mr. Hays passed Senator Borah under the trees at the edge of the walk leading from the Capitol to the Senate office building. They shook hands and then talked for a moment or so. That was all. Later Mr. Borah going into the office of Senator Lodge demanded to know why Mr. Hays, the Chairman of the Republican National Committee, was in Washington. Mr. Borah conveyed the intimation to the Senator from Massachusetts that if Mr. Hays was here to direct the policy on the League fight he, Mr. Borah, the implacable foe of the League covenant, did not intend to countenance it.

After seeing Senator Borah, Mr. Hays went into the Senate Office Building. Later he conferred with a dozen or more Republican Senators in the office of Mr. Watson. The League of Nations was mentioned there, it is admitted, but no line of policy—if any was discussed—was decided upon. The Senators, it is stated, were not all in accord. One or two bluntly said they believed the League of Nations would ultimately be accepted by the Senate just as it was drawn in Paris.

Mr. Hays left the conference to go to luncheon at the Capitol, where he saw more Republican Senators. At luncheon, it is understood, the League of Nations was again taken up. More conferences were held after the meal, and then, at 3 o'clock, Mr. Hays met newspaper men in the Senate press gallery.

The Chairman meantime had been quoted in afternoon newspaper dispatches as having said that he was unequivocally for a League of Nations, but that he wanted the present draft amended by a qualifying resolution such as Mr. Root advocated. He had been quoted, further, as saying that the existing draft would be amended by the Senate.

Refuses Comment for Publication.

Mr. Hays, when asked about those statements imputed to him, remarked at the outset that he was not able to discuss the League of Nations. He went on to say that he had not told any one, for publication, that he favored a resolution of reservation as the means of amending the League covenant.

"You see my position," said Mr. Hays. "I do not want this to be a partisan issue. I do not consider it from that point of view. It is a matter apart from politics."

Asked if he had come to Washington to help the Republicans agree upon a policy with respect to the League fight, Mr. Hays replied:

"I have come here for a number of things. I cannot talk of the League of Nations for publication now."

Mr. Hays smiled amiably when asked if he had found any symptoms of agreement among the Republicans on the League fight.

"That, you see, is again something I cannot discuss," he said.

Some one asked Mr. Hays if he had not found various conflicting opinions among Senators on the League of Nations. Again he replied that he was not talking of the League for publication.

"May it be assumed that you are having some difficulty in uniting the various elements in the Republican Party in this fight, including the twenty-eight New York Republicans who signed the round robin protest to the Senate last week?" was another question put to him.

"Well, politics is a matter of assimilation rather than elimination," replied the Chairman with a smile.

Mr. Hays sat in the press gallery half an hour listening to the questions shot at him. Only once did he actually reveal any opinion as to the League of Nations. That was when he was abruptly asked if he favored the League.

Hays "For a League of Nations."

"I am for a League of Nations," he replied unhesitatingly.

"With amendments?" pursued his questioner.

"That, again, is where I cannot talk, you see," replied the Chairman.

Mr. Hays was not averse to talking of Mexico, which, he said, "always seems to interest Americans," and he spoke energetically of the work of the Republican Congress in getting appropriation legislation out of the way. The Republicans, he said, were fully alive to the necessity for after-the-war legislation, and could be depended upon to pass it quickly.

But whenever the talk switched back to the League of Nations, the National Chairman asserted his prerogative of silence.

"We are just milling along with it, and it's going all right," he allowed himself to say.

Asked what he thought of the Fall resolution, now in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, to declare a status of peace to exist, Mr. Hays waved his hand deprecatingly as he replied:

"That's one of those things that I cannot talk about. You understand me, I think."

Mr. Hays was asked if he thought the Democratic Party was making a party issue of the League of Nations.

"You know Mr. Cummings, the Democratic Chairman, has denied it," replied Mr. Hays.

"But the Republicans in the Senate are accusing the Democrats of playing politics with it," was suggested.

"Oh, they tried that with the war, and did not get anywhere with it," replied Mr. Hays.

At the end of the interview, Mr. Hays leaned back and remarked with emphasis:

"The impression seems to be that I am down here in the fight on the League of Nations. And the impression seems to be that I favor amendments to the League, through a qualifying resolution, as I understand it. And the impression seems to be that I am down here trying to get the Senate factions united.

"Now, I am sorry, but I cannot go into any discussion of all this. I'm going to be here for some weeks. And, later on, maybe I'll have something worth while to say about it."

None of the Senators to whom Mr. Hays talked would say tonight, that the prospect of agreement on the policy to be followed in the League fight was any nearer settlement than before his arrival. With the treaty of peace due to reach the Senate within ten days, they expected, they said, that the Chairman would have a hard task before him if he hoped to unite the Republican elements of opposition.

Senator Lodge, who is leading the League fight as Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, professes to be confident that an understanding can be reached on the basis of a qualifying resolution. He believes the radical Senators will fall into line behind that method of attack when they realize that hope for direct amendment is impossible.

AMERICANS LOSE MEN IN FIGHT IN SIBERIA

Four Killed, Two Wounded, and Five Captured by Reds Near Souchan Mine.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—One officer and three enlisted men were killed, two men were wounded, and one officer and four enlisted men were captured in recent fighting with anti-Kolchak forces in Siberia, the War Department was advised today by Major Gen. Graves, commanding the Siberian expeditionary forces.

All of the men were of the 31st Infantry:

Those killed were: Lieutenant Albert Francis Ward, Corporal Jesse M. Reed, and Privates D. P. Craig and Charles L. Flake.

Wounded, degree undetermined, were: Corporal George A. Jenson and Private Clarence G. Crail.

The men captured and who at last accounts still were held by the Bolsheviki were Lieutenant Custer Fribley, Corporals E. W. Reed and Harlan S. Dawl (?), and Privates Harold C. Bullard and Forrest Moore.

They were captured near the Souchan Mine and taken to Novitskaya. Two platoons of the 31st Infantry went there to demand their release and the Bolsheviki opened fire on them.

"Push and Pull"

Like rivers, merchandise in its flow from maker to user follows the line of least resistance.

A few years ago every druggist made up his own tooth powders and other specialties and "pushed" them with the public.

Then came the advertised line and the public began to "pull" the goods from the dealer.

Dealers found that it was more profitable to dispense goods with a "pull" than to everlastingly "push."

Selling advertised goods follows the line of least resistance.

The manufacturer who is exerting every effort to push his merchandise may well consider the value of adding a pull from the public.

Bill for Enforcement of National Prohibition

the war prohibition act shall be construed to mean any liquors which contain more than one-half of 1 per centum of alcohol by volume.

Section 2. That the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, his assistants, agents, and inspectors, shall investigate and report violations of the war prohibition act to the United States Attorney for the district in which committed, who shall be charged with the duty of prosecuting, subject to the direction of the Attorney General, the offenders, as in the case of other offenses against laws of the United States; and such Commissioner of Internal Revenue, his assistants, agents, and inspectors may swear out warrants before United States Commissioners, or other officers of courts authorized to issue the same, for the apprehension of such offenders, and may, subject to the control of the said United States Attorney, conduct the committing trial for the purpose of having the offenders held for action of a grand jury.

Section 3. That any room, house, building, boat, vehicle, structure, or place of any kind where intoxicating liquor is sold, manufactured, kept for sale, or bartered, in violation of the War Prohibition act, and all intoxicating liquors and all property kept and used in maintaining such a place is hereby declared to be a public and common nuisance, and any person who maintains or assists in maintaining such public and common nuisance shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not less than $100 or more than $1,000, or be imprisoned for not less than thirty days or more than one year, or both. If a person has knowledge or reason to believe that his property is occupied or used in violation of the provisions of the War Prohibition act and suffers the same to be so used, such property shall be subject to a lien for and may be sold to pay all fines and costs assessed against the occupant of such building or property for any violation of the War Prohibiton act, which said lien shall attach from the time of the service of summons on the owner, or his agent; and any such lien may be established and enforced by legal action instituted for that purpose in any court having jurisdiction.

Section 4. That the United States Attorney for the district where such nuisance as is defined in this act exists, or any officer designated by him or the Attorney General of the United States, may prosecute a suit in equity in the name of the United States to abate and enjoin the same. Actions in equity to enjoin and abate such nuisance may be brought in any court having jurisdiction to hear and determine equity cases. The jurisdiction of the courts of the United States under this section shall be concurrent with that of the courts of the several States.

If it be made to appear by affidavit, or other evidence under oath, to the satisfaction of the court, or Judge, in vacation, that the nuisance complained of exists, a temporary writ of injunction shall forthwith issue restraining the defendant or defendants from conducting or permitting the continuance of such nuisance until the conclusion of the trial. Where a temporary injunction is prayed for, the court may issue an order restraining the defendants and all other persons from removing or in any way interfering with the liquor, or fixtures, or other things used in connection with such alleged illegal sale of such liquor. No bond shall be required as a condition for making any order or issuing any writ of injunction under this title. If the court shall find the property involved was being unlawfully used as aforesaid at or about the time alleged in the petition, the court shall order that no liquors shall be sold, bartered, or stored in such room, house, building, boat, vehicle, structure, or places of any kind, for a period of not exceeding one year, or during the war and the period of demobilization. Whenever an action to enjoin a nuisance shall have been brought pursuant to the provisions of this act, if the owner appears and pays all costs of the proceedings and files a bond, with sureties to be approved by the clerk of the court in which the action is brought, in the full value of the property, conditioned that he will immediately abate said nuisance and prevent the same from being established or kept therein a period of one year thereafter, the court, or in vacation the Judge, may, if satisfied of his good faith, direct by appropriate order that the property, if already closed or held under the order of abatement, be delivered to said owner, and said order of abatement canceled so far as the same may relate to said property; or if said bond be given and costs therein paid before judgment on an order of abatement, the action shall be thereby abated, as to said room, house, building, boat, vehicle, structure, or places only. The release of the property under the provisions of this section shall not release it from any judgment, lien, penalty, or liability to which it may be subject by law.

In the case of the violation of any injunction, temporary or permanent, granted pursuant to the provisions of this title, the court, or in vacation a Judge thereof, may summarily try and punish the defendant. The proceedings for punishment for contempt shall be commenced by filing with the clerk of the court from which such injunction issued information under oath setting out the alleged facts constituting the violation, whereupon the court or Judge shall forthwith cause a warrant to issue under which the defendant shall be arrested. The trial may be had upon affidavits, or either party may demand the production and oral examination of the witness. Any person found guilty of contempt under the provisions of this section shall be punished by a fine of not less than $500 or more than $1,000, or by imprisonment of not less than thirty days or more than twelve months, or both fine and imprisonment.

Section 5. That the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, his assistants, agents, and inspectors and all other officers of the United States whose duty it is to enforce criminal laws, shall have all the power for the enforcement of the war prohibition act or any provisions thereof which is conferred by law for the enforcement of existing laws relating to the manufacture or sale of intoxicating liquors under the laws of the United States.

Section 6. That if any action or provision of this title shall be held to be invalid it is hereby provided that all other provisions of this title which are not expressly held to be invalid shall continue in full force and effect.

Section 7. That none of the provisions of this title shall be construed to limit or annul any order or regulation prohibiting the manufacture, sale, or disposition of intoxicating liquors within certain prescribed zones or districts, nor shall the provisions of this title be construed to prohibit the use of the power of the military or naval authorities to enforce the regulations of the President or Secretary of War or Navy issued in pursuance to law, prohibiting the manufacture, use, possession, sale, or other disposition of intoxicating liquors during the period of the war and demobilization thereafter.

TITLE II.

Prohibition of Intoxicating Beverages.

That the word "liquor," or the phrase "intoxicating liquor," used in this title shall be construed to include alcohol, brandy, whisky, rum, gin, beer, ale, porter, and wine, and, in addition thereto, any spirituous, vinous, malt, or fermented liquor, liquids, and compounds, whether medicated proprietary, patented, or not, and by whatever name called, containing one-half of 1 per centum or more of alcohol by volume which are potable or capable of being used as a beverage.

Section 2.—That when used in this title—

(1) The word "person" shall mean and include natural persons, associations, copartnerships, and corporations;

(2) The word "Commissioner" shall mean Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

(3) The term "application" means a formal written request, supported by a verified statement of fact, showing that the Commissioner may grant the request.

(4) The term "permit" means a formal written authorization by the Commissioner setting forth specifically the things authorized.

(5) The term "bond" means an obligation authorized or required by or under this title or any regulation issued in such form and for such a penal sum as may be required by a court, or the Commissioner, or prescribed by regulation.

(6) The term "regulation" shall include all regulations prescribed by the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, for carrying out the provisions of this title, so as to afford safety to the revenues and adequate protection against diversion of liquor for illegal uses, and the Commissioner is authorized to make such regulations.

Any act authorized to be done by the Commissioner may be performed by any assistant or agent designated by him for that purpose. Records required to be filed with the Commissioner shall be filed with an Assistant Commissioner or other person designated by the Commissioner to receive such records. The word "permit" shall mean a permit granted by such Commissioner.

Section 3.—That the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, his assistants, agents, and inspectors, shall investigate and report violations of this title to the United States Attorney for the district in which committed, who shall be charged with the duty of prosecuting, subject to the direction of the Attorney General, the offenders, as in the case of other offenses against the laws of the United States; and such Commissioner of Internal Revenue, his assistants, agents, and inspectors may swear out warrants before United States Commissioners, or other officers or courts authorized to issue the same, for the apprehension of such offenders, and may, subject to the control of the said United States Attorney, conduct the committing trial for the purpose of having the offenders held for the action of a Grand Jury. Section 1014 of the Revised Statutes of the United States is hereby made applicable in the enforcement of this title.

Section 4. That no person shall on or after the date when the Eighteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States goes into effect, manufacture, sell, barter, give away, transport, import, export, deliver, furnish, receive, or possess any intoxicating liquor, except as authorized in this title, and the provisions of this title shall be literally construed, to the end that intoxicating liquor as a beverage may be prohibited. Liquor for non-beverage purposes and wine for sacramental purposes may be purchased, sold, transported, and used as herein provided.

Section 5. That the purchase, sale, transportation, importation, exportation, and use of the articles enumerated in this section shall not, after having been manufactured and prepared for the market, be subject to the provisions of this title if they correspond with the following descriptions and limitations, namely:

(a) Denatured alcohol or denatured rum produced and used as provided by laws and regulations now or hereafter in force.

(b) Medical preparations manufactured in accordance with formulas prescribed by the United States pharmacopoeia or national formulary of the American Institute of Homeopathy that are nonpotable and unfit for use for intoxicating beverage purposes.

(c) Patented, patent, and proprietary medicines that are nonpotable and unfit for use for intoxicating beverage purposes.

(d) Toilet, medical, and antiseptic preparations and solutions that are nonpotable and unfit for use for intoxicating beverage purposes, contained in bottles or packages, upon which are printed conspicuously and legibly in English the quantity by volume of alcohol in such preparation.

(e) Flavoring extracts that are nonpotable and incapable of being used for intoxicating beverage purposes.

A person who manufactures any of the articles mentioned in this section may purchase and possess liquor for that purpose, but he shall secure permits to manufacture such articles and to purchase such liquor, give such bonds, keep the records, and make the reports specified in this act and as directed by the Commissioner. No such manufacturer shall sell, use, or dispose of any liquor otherwise than as an ingredient of the articles authorized to be manufactured therefrom.

Section 6. That whenever the Commissioner has reason to believe that any article mentioned in Section 5 is capable of being used as a beverage, he shall cause an analysis of said article to be made, and if, upon such analysis, the Commissioner shall find that said article is capable of being used for beverage purposes, he shall give not less than fifteen days' notice in writing to the person who is the manufacturer thereof to show cause why said article should not be dealt with as an intoxicating liquor, such notice to be served personally or by registered mail, as the Commissioner may determine, and shall specify the time when, the place where, and the name of the agent or official before whom such person is required to appear.

If the manufacturer of said preparation fails to show to the satisfaction of the Commissioner that the article is not capable of being used for beverage purposes, it shall be treated as liquor. The manufacturer may by appropriate proceedings in a court of equity have the action of the Commissioner reviewed, and the court may affirm, modify, or reverse the finding of the Commissioner, as the facts and law of the case may warrant. During the pendency of such proceedings the manufacture, sale and other disposition of such article shall be subject to the same restrictions as are herein placed on intoxicating liquors.

Section 7. That no one shall manufacture, sell, purchase, transport, or prescribe any liquor without first obtaining a permit from the Commissioner so to do, except that a person may purchase and use liquor for medicinal purposes when prescribed by a physician, as herein provided.

All permits to manufacture, prescribe, sell, or transport liquor shall expire on the 31st day of December next succeeding the issuance thereof. All permits to purchase liquor shall, among other things, specify the quantity and kind to be purchased and the purpose for which it is to be used, and shall not be in force more than ten days from the day of its issuance. No permit shall be issued to any person who within one year prior to the application therefor or issuance thereof shall have violated any permit issued under this title or any law of the United States or of any State regulating traffic in liquor. No permit shall be issued to anyone to sell liquor at retail unless such sale is made by a pharmacist designated in the permit who is duly licensed under the laws of his State to compound and dispense medicine prescribed by a duly licensed physician. No one shall be given a permit to prescribe liquor unless he is a physician duly licensed to practice medicine and actively engaged in the practice of such profession. All permits shall be in writing, dated when issued, and signed by the Commissioner or his authorized agent. It shall, among other things, give the name and address of the person to whom it is issued and of those who are permitted to do the authorized acts. It shall designate and limit the acts that are permitted and the time and place where and where such acts may be performed. No permit shall be issued until a verified, written application shall have been made therefor setting forth the qualifications of the applicant and the purpose for which the liquor is to be used, together with such other facts as shall show that the permit may properly be granted.

The Commissioner may prescribe the form of all permits and applications and the facts to be set forth therein. Before any permit is granted the Commissioner may require a bond in such form and amount as he may prescribe to insure compliance with the terms of the permit and the provisions of this title.

Section 8. That no one but a physician duly licensed to practice medicine and actively engaged in the practice of such profession shall issue any prescription for liquor. Such physician shall at the time of prescribing personally, make a careful physical examination of the person for whom the liquor is prescribed and shall only prescribe liquor when in good faith he believes that its use as a medicine by the one for whom he prescribes will afford relief to him from some ailment specified in the prescription. Not more than a pint of spiritous liquor shall be prescribed for use by the same person within any period of ten days, and no prescription shall be filled more than once. Any pharmacist filling a prescription shall at the time indorse upon it over his own signature the word "canceled" together with the date when the liquor was delivered, and then make the same a part of the record that he is required to keep, as herein provided.

Section 9. The Commissioner shall cause to be printed forms of the prescriptions herein required, and he shall furnish the same, free of cost, to physicians. The prescriptions shall be printed in book form. Each shall be numbered with consecutive serial numbers from 1 to 100, and each book shall be given a number, and stubs in each book shall carry the same numbers as the copies of the prescriptions. The book containing such stubs shall be returned to the Commissioner when the prescriptions are used, or sooner, if directed by the Commissioner. All unused, mutilated, or defaced blanks shall be returned with the book. No physician shall prescribe and no pharmacist fill any prescription for liquor except on blanks so provided.

Section 10.—That if at any time there shall be filed with the Commissioner a complaint under oath setting forth facts showing, or if the Commissioner has reason to believe, that any person who has a permit is not in good faith conforming to the provisions of this title or has violated the laws of any State relating to intoxicating liquors, the Commissioner or his agent shall immediately issue an order citing such person to appear before him on a day named not more than thirty and not less than fifteen days from the date of service upon such person of a copy of the citation and of the violation charged, at which time a hearing shall be had, unless continued for cause, such hearing shall be held within fifty miles of the place where the offense is alleged to have occurred.

Section 11. That no person shall manufacture, purchase for sale, sell, or transport any liquor without making at the time a permanent record thereof, showing, in such detail as may be required by regulation, the amount and kind of liquor manufactured, purchased, sold, transported, used, or otherwise handled, together with the names and addresses of persons connected with each transaction and the time and place thereof. A verified report of the facts required to be recorded shall be made to the Commissioner for and at the end of every three months and within ten days thereafter.

Section 12. That all manufacturers and wholesale or retail druggists shall keep as a part of the records required of them a copy of all permits to purchase on which a sale of any liquor is made, and no manufacturer or wholesale druggist shall sell or otherwise dispose of any liquor, except at wholesale and only to persons having permits to purchase in such quantities.

Section 13. That all persons manufacturing liquor for sale shall securely and permanently affix to every container thereof, in the same is manufactured, a label stating name of manufacturer, kind and quantity of liquor contained therein, and the date of its manufacture, together with a copy of the permit authorizing the manufacture thereof; and all persons possessing liquor in wholesale quantities shall securely keep and maintain such label thereon; and all wholesale druggists shall attach to every package of liquor, when sold, a label setting forth the kind of liquor contained therein, by whom manufactured, the date of sale, and the person to whom sold, which label shall likewise be kept and maintained thereon until the liquor is used for the purpose for which such sale was authorized.

Section 14. That it shall be the duty of every carrier that transports liquor to secure a permit therefor and make a record at the place of shipment and of the receipt of any liquor transported, and he shall only deliver liquor to persons who present a verified copy of a permit to purchase and an affidavit to the carrier that such liquor will not be used in violation of law. The form of the affidavit shall be prescribed by the Commissioner and shall contain such information as he deems necessary for the enforcement of this title. The copy of such permit and the affidavit presented to the carrier to obtain such delivery shall be made a part of the carrier's permanent record at the office from which delivery is made.

Section 15. That it shall be unlawful for a person to use or induce any carrier, or any agent or employe thereof, to carry or ship any package or receptacle containing liquor without notifying the carrier of the true nature and character of the shipment. No carrier shall transport, nor shall any person receive, liquor from a carrier unless there appears on the outside of the package containing such liquor the following information:

Name and address of the consignor or seller; name and address of the consignee, or persons receiving the liquor; kind and quantity of liquor contained therein, and number of permit, and name and address of person using the same.

Section 16. That it shall be unlawful for any consignee to accept or receive any package containing any liquor upon which appears a statement known to him to be false, or for any carrier or other person to consign, ship, transport, or deliver any such package, knowing such statement to be false.

Section 17. That it shall be unlawful to give to any carrier or any officer, agent, or person acting or assuming to act for such carrier, an order requiring the delivery to any person of any liquor or package containing liquor consigned to, or purporting or claimed to be consigned to, a person, when the purpose of the order is to enable any person not an actual bona fide consignee to obtain such liquor.

Section 18. That it shall be unlawful to advertise liquor or the manufacture, sale, keeping for sale or furnishing of the same, or where, how, from whom, or at what price the same may be obtained. No one shall permit any sign or billboard containing such advertisement to remain upon one's premises, or circulate any price list, order blank, or other matter designed to induce or secure orders for intoxicating liquors; but nothing herein shall prohibit manufacturers and wholesale druggists holding permits to sell liquor from furnishing price lists, with descriptions of liquor for sale, to persons permitted to sell liquor. The Commissioner and other officers charged with the enforcement of this title are authorized to remove, paint over, or otherwise obliterate any such advertisement from any sign, billboard, or other place, and shall do so upon the demand of any citizen who has first requested the person in charge of such advertisement, or the owner of the property of which it is located, to remove same.

That any advertisement or notice containing the picture of a brewery, distillery, bottle, jug, barrel or box, or other receptacle represented as containing liquor and designed to serve as an advertisement thereof, shall be within the inhibition of this section.

Section 19. That it shall be unlawful to advertise, manufacture, sell or possess for sale any liquor preparation, compound, tablet, substance, formula, direction, or recipe advertised, designed or intended for use in the unlawful manufacture of intoxicating liquor.

Section 20. That it shall be unlawful for any person to permit any employe to procure liquor for or give directions or information by which liquor can be secured by any person, and no person shall solicit or receive from any person any order for liquor or give any information of how liquor may be obtained in violation of this title.

Section 21. That it shall be unlawful for any person to drink liquor in or upon any car, train, automobile, boat, or other public conveyance. Any conductor or person in charge of any car, train, automobile, boat, or other public conveyance can arrest any person there for who is being conveyed in or by such car, coach, automobile or other public conveyance, and turn him over to the proper officer, to be proceeded against according to law.

Section 22. That any person who shall be injured in person, property, means of support, or otherwise by any intoxicated person shall have a right of action against the intoxicated person, a right of action against any person who shall, by unlawfully selling to or assisting in procuring liquor for such intoxicated person, have caused or contributed to such intoxication, and in any such action the "plaintiff" shall have a right to recover actual and exemplary damages. In case of the death of either party, the action, or right of action, given by this section shall survive to and against his or her executor or administrator, and the amount may be recovered by either wife or child shall be his or her sole and separate property. Such action may be brought in any court of competent jurisdiction. In any case where parents shall be entitled to such damages, either the father or mother may sue alone therefor, but recovery by one of such parties shall be a bar to suit brought by the other.

Section 23.—That any room, house, building, boat, vehicle, structure, or place where intoxicating liquor is manufactured, sold, kept, or bartered in violation of this title, and all intoxicating liquor and property kept and used in maintaining the same, is hereby declared to be a common nuisance, and any person who maintains such a common nuisance shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not more than $1,000 or be imprisoned for not more than one year, or both. If a person has knowledge or reason to believe that his room, house, building, boat, vehicle, structure, or place is occupied or used for the manufacture or sale of liquor contrary to the provision of this title, and suffers the same to be so occupied or used, such room, house, building, boat, vehicle, structure or place shall be subject to a lien for and may be sold to pay all fines and costs assessed against the person guilty of such nuisance for such violation, and any such lien may be enforced by action in any court having jurisdiction.

Section 24.—That as action to enjoin any nuisance defined in this title may be brought in the name of the United States by the Attorney General of the the United States, or by any United States Attorney, or any prosecuting attorney of any State or any subdivision thereof, or by the Commissioner, or his deputies or assistants. Such action shall be brought and tried as an action in equity and may be brought in any court having jurisdiction to hear and determine equity cases. If it is made to appear by affidavits or otherwise, to the satisfaction of the court or Judge in vacation, that such nuisance exists a temporary writ of injunction shall forthwith issue restraining the defendant from conducting or permitting the continuance of such nuisance until the conclusion of the trial. Where a temporary injunction is prayed for the court may issue an order restraining the defendant and all other persons from removing or in any way interfering with the liquor or fixtures, or other things used in connection with the violation of this title, constituting such nuisance. No bond shall be required in instituting such proceedings. It shall not be necessary for the court to find the property involved was being unlawfully used as aforesaid at the time of the hearing, but on finding that the material allegations of the petition are true, the court shall order that no liquors shall be manufactured, sold, bartered, or stored in such room, house, building, boat, vehicle, structure, or place, or any part thereof. And upon judgment of the court ordering such nuisance to be abated, the court may order that the room, house, building, structure, boat, vehicle, or place shall not be occupied or used for one year. But the court may, in its discretion, permit it to be occupied or used, if the owner, lessee, tenant, or occupant thereof shall give bond with sufficient surety, to be approved by the court making the order, in the penal and liquidated sum of not less than $500 nor more than $1,000, payable to the United States, and conditioned that intoxicating liquor will not thereafter be manufactured, sold, bartered, kept, or otherwise disposed of therein or thereon, and that he will pay all fines, costs, and damages that may be assessed for any violation of this title upon said property.

Section 25. That when it appears in any criminal proceeding that any common nuisance as defined herein exists it shall be the duty of any officer authorized to enforce this title to proceed promptly in a court of equity to abate such nuisance, and in case the defendant is adjudged guilty in such criminal trial it shall, unless reversed, be conclusive evidence against such defendant of the existence of said nuisance as to the existence of the nuisance. For removing and selling the property in enforcing this title, the officer shall be entitled to charge and receive the same fee as the Sheriff of the county would receive for levying upon and selling property on execution, and for closing the premises and keeping them closed a reasonable sum shall be allowed by the court.

Any violation of this title upon any leased premises by the lessee or occupant thereof shall, at the option of the lessor, work a forfeiture of the lease.

Section 26—That any person violating the terms of the injunction as provided for in this title shall be punished for contempt by a fine of not more than $1,000 and by imprisonment of not less than thirty days, nor more than one year; and the court shall have the power to enforce such injunction by such measures and means as in the judgment of the court may be necessary.

Section 27—That it shall be unlawful to have or possess any liquor or property designed for the manufacture of liquor intended for use in violating this title or which has been so used, and no property rights shall exist in any such liquor or property. A search warrant may issue as authorized by law in case of stolen property, and such liquor and other property seized shall be subject to such disposition as the court may make use thereof.

If it is found that such liquor or property was so unlawfully held or possessed, or had been so unlawfully used, the liquor and all property designed for the unlawful manufacture of liquor, shall be destroyed and the other property forfeited to the United States and disposed of in the manner provided for in Section 30 in case of vehicles in which intoxicating liquor is being transported contrary to law. No search warrant shall issue to search any private dwelling occupied as such unless it is in part used for some business purpose, such as a store, shop, saloon, restaurant, hotel or boarding house. The property seized on any warrant shall not be taken from the officer seizing the same on any writ of replevin or other like process.

Section 28. That when the Commissioner, his assistants, inspectors, or any officer of the law shall discover any person in the act of transporting in violation of the law intoxicating liquors in any wagon, buggy, automobile, water or air craft, or other vehicle, it shall be his duty to seize any and all intoxicating liquors found therein being transported contrary to law. Whenever intoxicating liquors transported or possessed illegally shall be seized by an officer, he shall take possession of the vehicle and team, or automobile, boat, air or water craft, or any other conveyance and shall arrest any person in charge thereof. Such officers shall at once proceed against the person arrested under the provisions of this title in any court having competent jurisdiction. The court upon conviction shall order the liquor destroyed, and, unless good cause to the contrary is shown by the owner, such as ignorance of the purpose for which his team, vehicle, water or air craft, or automobile was being used, order a sale by public auction of the property seized, and the officer making the sale, after deducting the expenses of keeping the property, the fee for the seizure and the cost of the sale, shall pay the proceeds into the Treasury of the United States as miscellaneous receipts. If, however, no one shall be found claiming the team, vehicle, water or air craft, or automobile, the taking of the same shall be advertised in some newspaper published in the city or county, or, if there be no newspaper published in such city or county, in a newspaper having circulation in the county once a week, for two weeks, and by handbills posted in three public places near the place of seizure, and, if no claimant shall appear within ten days after the last publication of the advertisement, the property shall be sold and the proceeds, after deducting the ex-

Whose Fault?

ONE out of every four men drafted into our National Army was unable to read the American newspapers or write letters home. Out of 250,000 men picked as experts in different trades only six in a hundred turned out to be experts. Thirty in a hundred proved to be without any ascertainable skill in these trades. Robert Bruere has written a remarkable article for the July number of Harper's Magazine in which he places the responsibility for this failure of our educational system.

Lieut. Harry Franck, who has made a journey on foot through Germany since the armistice, begins his narrative. A human story full of new lights on Germany from within.

There is something for every one in this July Harper's—notable short stories, humor that is really funny, and striking articles. And there is a new department of short things that count by such writers as Don Marquis, F. P. A., Alice Brown, Laura Spencer Portor, Lawrence Gilman, etc. This new department—The Lion's Mouth—will interest you.

An Exploding Ship Photographed.

ENFORCEMENT BILL FOR PROHIBITION

penses and cost of advertising, shall be paid into the Treasury of the United States as miscellaneous receipts.

Section 29—That the Commissioner, his assistants, and all other officers of the United States, whose duty it is to enforce criminal laws, shall put all the power and protection in the enforcement of this title or any provisions thereof which is conferred by law for the enforcement of the laws relating to the manufacture or sale of intoxicating liquors under the law of the United States.

Section 30—That any person who manufactures intoxicating liquor, or any wholesale or retail drug store pharmacist who sells liquor in violation of this title shall, for a first offense, be fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned not exceeding six months, and for a second or subsequent offense shall be fined not less than $200 nor more than $2,000 and be imprisoned in the penitentiary not less than one month and not more than five years.

Any person violating any of the provisions of this title or the provisions of any permit, or making any false record, report, or affidavit for which a special penalty is not prescribed, shall be fined for a first offense not more than $500; for a second offense not less than $100 nor more than $1,000, or be imprisoned not more than ninety days; for any subsequent offense he shall be fined not less than $300 and be imprisoned in the penitentiary not less than three months and not more than two years. It shall be the duty of the prosecuting officer to ascertain whether the defendant has been previously convicted and to plead the prior conviction in the affidavit, information, or indictment.

Section 31. That in addition to the penalties imposed by this title for the violation of any of its provisions the court may, in its discretion, after conviction, require the defendant to execute a bond, with security approved by the court, in a penal sum of not less than $500 nor more than $5,000, conditioned that he will not violate any of the provisions of this title for the term of one year. And, if said bond shall not be given, the defendant may be committed to ball until it is given or until he is discharged by the court, provided he shall not be confined for a longer period than six months.

Section 32. That no person shall be excused, on the ground that it may tend to incriminate him or subject him to a penalty or forfeiture, from attending and testifying, or producing books, papers, documents and other evidence in obedience to a subpoena of any court in any suit or proceeding based upon or growing out of any alleged violation of this title; but no natural person shall be prosecuted or subjected to any penalty or forfeiture for or on account of any transaction, matter, or thing as to which, in obedience to a subpoena and under oath, he may so testify or produce evidence, but no person shall be exempt from prosecution and punishment for perjury committed in so testifying.

Section 33. That in case of a sale of liquor where the delivery thereof was made by a common or other carrier the sale and delivery shall be deemed to be made in the county or district where the delivery was made by such carrier to the consignee, his agent or employee, or in the county or district wherein the sale was made, or through which the shipment was made, and prosecution for such sale or delivery may be had in any such county or district.

Section 34. That in any affidavit, information, or indictment for the violation of this title separate offenses may be united in separate counts, and the defendants may be tried on all at one trial, and the penalty for all offenses may be imposed. It shall not be necessary in any affidavit, information or indictment to give the name of the purchaser or to include any defensive negative averments, but it shall be sufficient to state that the act complained of was then and there prohibited and unlawful.

Section 35. That, after ten days after the date when this title has become operative, the possession of liquor by any person not legally permitted under this title to possess liquor shall be prima facie evidence that such liquor is kept for the purpose of being sold, bartered, exchanged, given away, furnished or otherwise disposed of in violation of the provisions of this title. Every person legally permitted under this title to have liquor shall report to the Commissioner, within ten days after the passage of this title, the kind and amount of intoxicating liquor in his possession. But it shall not be unlawful to possess liquors in one's private dwelling, while the same is occupied and used by him only as his dwelling; provided, the burden of proof shall be upon the possessor to prove that the liquor was lawfully acquired and possessed.

Nothing herein shall prevent the storage in United States bonded warehouses in the custody of a United States Collector of Internal Revenue of all liquors manufactured prior to the taking effect of this title, or to prevent the transportation of such liquor for purposes not prohibited, when the tax is paid.

Section 36. That it shall be the duty of the Commissioner to file the reports, statements, and information required by this title as a part of the file of the office in a permanent record alphabetically arranged, and to permit any and all persons desiring to do so to inspect the said statements at any time during office hours. It shall be the further duty of said Commissioner to furnish certified copies of such statements to any persons requesting the same, upon payment of the reasonable fees therefor, and said original statement or certified copies thereof shall be competent evidence in any suit or proceeding in which the same may be relevant. All records required by this title to be kept by any manufacturer, wholesale or retail druggist, physician, or transportation company, shall be subject to inspection at any reasonable hours by any of the officers authorized to enforce this title, including the peace officers in the State where the record is kept.

Section 37. That all provisions of law that are inconsistent with this title are only repealed to the extent of such inconsistency, and the regulations herein provided for the manufacture or traffic in intoxicating liquor shall be construed as in addition to existing laws. This title shall not relieve any one from paying any taxes or other charges imposed upon the manufacture or traffic in such liquor. No liquor revenue stamp or tax receipt for any illegal manufacture or sale shall be issued in advance, but upon evidence of such illegal manufacture or sale such tax shall be assessed in double the amount now provided by law, with an additional penalty of $500 on retail dealers and $1,000 on manufacturers. The payment of such tax or penalty shall give no right to engage in the manufacture or sale of such liquor, or relieve any one from criminal liability, nor shall this title relieve any person from any liability, civil or criminal, heretofore or hereafter incurred under existing laws.

The Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, may compromise any civil case arising under this title before bringing action in court; and with the approval of the Attorney General he may compromise any such cause after action thereon has been commenced.

Section 38. That if any provision of this title shall be held invalid it shall not be construed to invalidate other provisions of the title.

Section 39. That the Commissioner shall charge and collect a fee of $5 for each annual permit issued by him, and 10 cents for each permit to purchase liquor, which sums shall be accounted for by him and paid into the Treasury, as the Secretary of the Treasury may direct.

Section 40. That for the enforcement of this title and all orders and regulations issued thereunder there is hereby authorized to be appropriated out of any moneys in the Treasury of the United States not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $3,500,000 or so much thereof as may be necessary during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1920.

Section 41. That this title may be cited as the National Prohibition act.

TITLE III.

Industrial Alcohol.

That when used in this title:

The term "alcohol" means that substance known as ethylalcohol, hydrated oxide of ethyl or spirit of wine, from whatever source or whatever process produced.

The term "container" includes any receptacle, vessel, or form of package, tank, or conduit used or capable of use for holding, storing, or transferring for shipment of alcohol.

Industrial Alcohol Plants and Warehouses.

Section 2. That any person now producing alcohol shall, within thirty days after the passage of this act, make application for registration as proprietor of an industrial alcohol plant, and, as soon thereafter as practicable, the premises shall be bonded, and permit may issue for the operation of such plant, and any person hereafter establishing a plant for the production of alcohol shall likewise before operation make application, file bond, and receive permit.

Section 3. That warehouses for the storage and distribution of alcohol exclusively for other than beverage purposes may be established upon filing of application and bond, and issuance of permit at such places, either in connection with the manufacturing plant or elsewhere, as the Commissioner may determine, and the entry and storage of alcohol therein, and the withdrawals of alcohol therefrom, shall be made in such containers and by such means as regulations may prescribe.

Section 4. That alcohol produced at any registered industrial alcohol plant or stored in any bonded warehouse may be transferred under regulations to any other registered industrial alcohol plant or bonded warehouse for any lawful purpose.

Section 5. That any tax imposed by law upon alcohol shall attach to such alcohol as soon as it is in existence as such, and any proprietors of industrial alcohol plants and bonded warehouses shall be jointly and severally liable for any and all taxes on any and all alcohol produced thereat or stored therein. Such taxes shall be a first lien on such alcohol and the premises and plant in which such alcohol is produced or stored, together with all improvements and appurtenances thereunto belonging or in anywise appertaining.

Section 6. That any distilled spirits produced and fit for beverage purposes remaining in any bonded warehouse on or before Jan. 16, 1920, may, under regulations, be withdrawn therefrom either for denaturation at any bonded rendering plant or for deposit in a bonded warehouse established under this title, and when so withdrawn, if not suitable as to proof, purity, or quality for other than beverage purposes, such distilled spirits shall be redistilled, purified, and changed in proof so as to render such spirits suitable for other purposes, and, having been so treated, may thereafter be denatured or sold in accordance with the provisions of this act.

Section 7. That any distillery or bonded warehouse heretofore legally established may, upon filing application and bond and the granting of permit, be operated as an industrial alcohol plant or bonded warehouse under the provisions of this title and regulations made thereunder.

Section 8. That at any industrial alcohol plant established under the provisions of this title, alcohol may be produced from any raw materials or by any processes suitable for the production of alcohol, and, under regulations, may be used at any industrial alcohol plant or bonded warehouse, or sold, or disposed of for any lawful purpose, as in this act provided.

Section 9. That industrial alcohol plants and bonded warehouses established under the provisions of this title shall be exempt from the provisions of Sections 3154, 3244, 3258, 3260, 3280, 3283, 3204, 3266, 3267, 3268, 3269, 3271, 3273, 3274, 3275, 3279, 3280, 3283, 3284, 3285, 3286, 3287, 3288, 3289, 3290, 3291, 3292, 3293, 3294, 3295, 3302, 3303, 3307, 3308, 3309, 3310, 3311, 3312, 3313, 3344, and 3327 of the Revised Statutes; Sections 1 and 2 of the act of March 3, 1899, (Thirtieth Statutes, Page 1,549:) an act to amend the internal revenue laws approved Jan. 13, 1903, (Thirty-second Statutes, Page 778;) Section 6 of the act of March 1, 1879, (Twentieth Statutes, Page 327,) as amended by Section 8 of the act of May 28, 1880, (Twenty-first Statutes, Page 145:) Sections 48 to 60, inclusive, and Sections 62 and 67 of the act of Aug. 27, 1894, (Twenty-eighth Statutes, Pages 560 to 566.)

Regulations may be made regulating any provisions of the sections above enumerated.

Tax-Free Alcohol.

Section 10. That, upon the filing of application and bond and issuance of permit, denaturing plants may be established upon the premises of any industrial alcohol plant, or elsewhere, and shall be used exclusively for the denaturation of alcohol by the admixture of such denaturing materials as shall render the alcohol, or any compound in which it is authorized to be used, unfit for use as an intoxicating beverage.

Alcohol lawfully denatured may, under regulations, be sold free of tax either for domestic use or for export.

Section 11. That alcohol produced at any industrial alcohol plant or stored in any bonded warehouse may, under regulations, be withdrawn tax free from such plant or warehouse for transfer to any denaturing plant for denaturation, or may, under regulations, before or after denaturation, be removed from such plant or warehouse for any lawful tax-free purpose.

But any person permitted to obtain alcohol tax free, except the United States, shall first apply for and secure a permit to purchase the same and give the bonds prescribed under Title II. of this act, but alcohol withdrawn for non-beverage purposes for use of the United States may be purchased and withdrawn subject only to such regulations as may be prescribed.

General Provisions.

Section 12. That if the war prohibition act shall expire prior to Jan. 16, 1920, all laws in effect on June 30, 1919, governing the manufacture or sale of liquor that are repealed by Title II. of this act shall upon such expiration again become operative and be in force until Jan. 20, 1920, when all the provisions of Title I. of this act shall again become operative. During the time between such expiration and Jan. 16, 1920, the provisions of Title I. shall be suspended, except so far as any of them applies to or is a part of Title II. No person shall by reason of the expiration of the war prohibition act be released from any civil or criminal responsibility incurred for any violation of this act while the war prohibition act is in force.

The penalties herein provided shall be in addition to any penalties provided in Title II. of this act, unless expressly otherwise therein provided.

Sec. 13. That the commissioner shall from time to time issue regulations respecting the establishment, bonding, and operation of industrial alcohol plants, denaturing plants, and bonded warehouses authorized herein, and the distribution, sale, export, and use of alcohol which may be necessary, advisable, or proper to secure the revenue, to prevent diversion of the alcohol to illegal uses, and to place the non-beverage alcohol industry and other industries using such alcohol as a chemical raw material or for other lawful purposes upon the highest possible plane of scientific and commercial efficiency consistent with the interests of the Government, and which shall insure an ample supply of such alcohol and promote its use in scientific research and the development of the fuels, dyes, and other lawful products. All regulations so issued shall have the force and effect of law.

Section 14. That whoever operates an industrial alcohol plant or a denaturing plant without complying with the provisions of this title and lawful regulations made thereunder, or whoever withdraws or attempts to withdraw or secure tax free any alcohol subject to tax, or whoever violates any of the provisions of this title or regulations lawfully made thereunder shall be liable, for the first offense, to a penalty of not exceeding $1,000 or imprisonment not exceeding thirty days, or both, and for a second or cognate offense to a penalty of not less than $100 nor more than $10,000 and to imprisonment of not less than thirty days nor more than one year. It shall be lawful for the Commissioner in all cases of second or cognate offense to refuse to issue for a period of one year permit for the manufacture or use of alcohol upon the premises of any person responsible in any degree for the violation.

Section 15. That any tax payable upon alcohol under existing law may be collected either by assessment or by stamp, as regulations shall provide; and if by stamp, regulations shall issue prescribing the kind of stamp to be used and the manner of affixing and canceling the same.

Section 16. That where any property is seized for violation of this title it may be released to the claimant or to any intervening party, in the discretion of the Commissioner, on a bond given and approved.

Section 17. That all administrative provisions of internal revenue law, including those relating to assessment, collection, abatement, and refund of taxes and penalties and the seizure and forfeiture of property, are made applicable to this in so far as they are not inconsistent with the provisions thereof.

Section 18. That all prior statutes relating to alcohol as defined in this title are hereby repealed in so far as they are inconsistent with the provisions of this title.

FAMOUS BATTLEFIELDS.

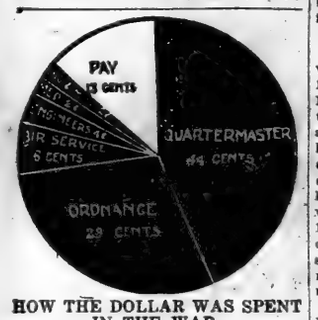
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 26.—The part that the United States took in the winning of the European war is graphically set forth in a "Statistical Summary of the War with Germany," the publication of which was authorized by the War Department today. The report is a printed document of 150 pages, profusely illustrated with maps and diagrams. It was compiled by Colonel Leonard P. Ayres, U. S. A., the Chief of the Statistics Branch of the General Staff in Washington.

The war cost America $21,850,000,000, or approximately $1,000,000 an hour, and of the total $13,930,000,000 went for army expenses. The total armed force of the country when the armistice was signed November 11 last was 4,800,000 men, of whom 4,000,000 were in the army, and the rest in the navy, Marine Corps, and other branches.

The number of men sent overseas was 2,086,000, and of these 1,390,000 saw battle service. In the Meuse-Argonne battle, the greatest operation in which Pershing's men participated, the number of men engaged was 1,200,000. The casualties in the engagement were 120,000 officers and men. The battle deaths in the war were about 50,000, the wounded totalled approximately 236,000, and the deaths from disease 56,091 up to April 30.

The greatest number of men sent overseas in a single month was 306,000 and the largest number who have been returned home from Europe in a single month, at the time the report was compiled, was 333,000. The supplies shipped from the United States to France amounted to 7,500,000 tons in the nineteen months that the American forces were in action. The number of men registered for the draft was 24,234,021, and of these 2,810,296 were inducted into service, the largest number inducted in a single month being 400,000.



HOW THE DOLLAR WAS SPENT IN THE WAR.

The report was compiled at the suggestion of Secretary of War Baker, who on May 10 sent a letter instructing him to prepare it to Colonel Ayres. In submitting the completed report, on May 31, Colonel Ayres informed Secretary Baker that the record set forth facts taken from the reports made by the various branches during the war to the President, to the Secretary, and to the Chief of Staff.

Additional data, Colonel Ayres adds, were secured from the American Peace Commission in Paris, the Interalliied Bureau of Statistics, and from the files of the Supreme War Council in Versailles, and, Colonel Ayres adds, while it is still impossible to secure final figures on some points of entirely reliable ones on others, care has been taken to insure such degree of reliability in the data presented as is reasonably feasible.

The report is in ten chapters, the first captioned "4,000,000 Men." Colonel Ayres points out that the 4,800,000 total for all branches of the united services applies to all inductions, recruitments, &c., from the day Congress declared war, April 6, 1917, up to the time the armistice went into effect, at 11 A. M., Nov. 11, 1918.

5 Out of Every 100.

"It was almost true," says Colonel Ayres, "that among each 100 Americans 5 took up arms in defense of the country. During the civil war 2,400,000 served in the Northern armies or in the navy. In that struggle 10 in each 100 inhabitants of the Northern States served as soldiers or sailors. The American effort in the war with Germany may be compared with that of the orthern States in the civil war by noting that in the present war we raised twice as many men in actual numbers, but that in proportion to the population we raised only half as many. It would be interesting and instructive to make comparisons between the numbers in the American armies during the present war and those of France, Great Britain, Italy, and Germany, but, unfortunately, this is most difficult to do fairly and truly. The reason for the difficulty lies in the diverse military policies of the nations."

There is, however, one comparison, Colonel Ayres points out, which may fairly be made and that is between the British and American expeditionary forces. The British sent to France in their first year many more men than did the United States in the first twelve months. On the other hand, it took England three years to reach a strength of 2,000,000 men in France, while the United States was able to place that number overseas in one-half of that time.

"About 200,000 commissioned officers were required for the army," says the report. "Of this number, less than 9,000 were in the Federal service at the beginning of the war. Of these, 5,791 were regulars and 3,199 were officers of the National Guard in the Federal service. The figures show that of every six officers one had had previous military training in the regular army, the National Guard or the ranks. Three received the training for their commissions in the officers' training camps. The other two went from civilian life into the army with little or no military training."

"Six Months of Training" is the title of the second chapter of the Ayres report. The average American soldier who went to France received six months training at home before he started overseas, and after he landed, in France or England, he had two more months of intensive training before he entered the battle line, his actual combat service beginning with four weeks in a quiet sector along the front.

42 Divisions Went Abroad.

The typical American combat unit was the division, composed of about 1,000 officers and 27,000 enlisted men. Before the armistice was signed forty-two American divisions were trained and sent to Europe, twelve others were in training in this country and four others were being organized. The plans on which the army was acting when hostilities ceased called for eighty divisions overseas before July, 1919, and 100 divisions before Jan. 1 next. To carry forward the home training of the army, shelter was constructed in a few months sufficient to care for 1,800,000 men.

Of the forty-two divisions that reached France, thirty-six were organized in the Summer and early Fall of 1917, the other six being organized by January, 1918.

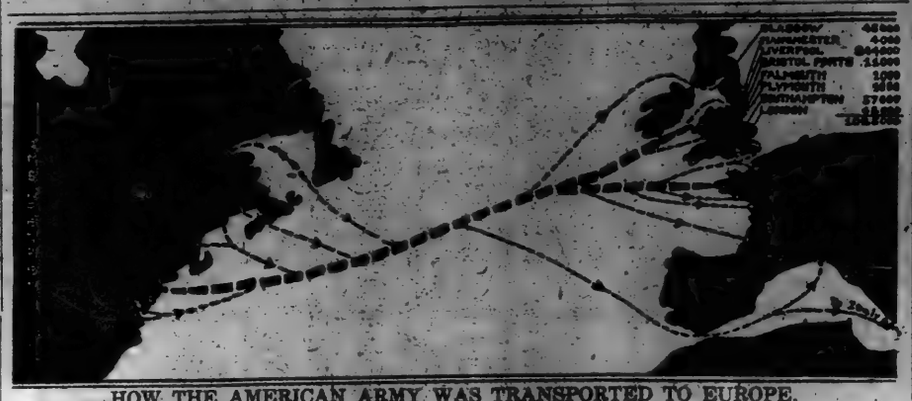
"In June with the German drives in full swing, the Allies called on us to continue the extraordinary transportation of troops begun in April. The early movement had been met by filling up the divisions that sailed with the best trained men wherever they could be found. Divisions embarked after July 1 had to meet shortages with men called to the colors in the Spring. By November the average period of training in the United States had been shortened to close to four months, and the average for the period July 1 to Nov. 11 was probably five months.

"In the last months of the war, the induction of men was carried forward at top speed and every device was used for hastening training. The result fully justified the effort. Into the great Meuse-Argonne offensive we were able to throw a force of 1,200,000 men, while we had many thousands of troops engaged in other parts of the line. Our training camp officers stood up to the test; our men with their intensive drilling in open-order fighting, which has characterized American training, routed the best of the German divisions from the Argonne Forest and the Valley of the Meuse."

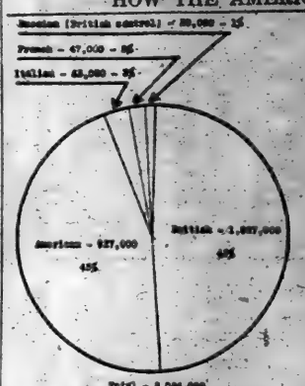
Men Landed in France.

The next chapter tells the story of the transportation: Most of the troops sent overseas sailed from New York, half of them landing in France and the other half in England. Of every 100 Americans sent overseas, 49 went in British, 43 in American, 3 in Italian, 2 in French, and one in Russian ships, the Russian ships being under British control.

American cargo ships averaged one round trip every seventy days, and the troopships one round trip every thirty-five days. The cargo fleet was almost exclusively American, and reached the size of 2,600,000 deadweight tons. The greatest of the troop carriers was the Leviathan, formerly the Hamburg-American liner Vaterland, which landed 12,000 men, or the equivalent of a German division, in France every month while the troop movements were approaching their maximum. The fastest of the troopships were the Pacific liners Great Northern and Northern Pacific, which have made complete turn-arounds, taken on new troops, and started back to Europe again in nineteen days.



HOW THE AMERICAN ARMY WAS TRANSPORTED TO EUROPE.



THE SHIPPING THAT CARRIED OUR MEN.

An indication of the quartermaster problem may be obtained from the fact that between April 6, 1917, and May 31, 1918, there was delivered to the army 131,800,000 pairs of wool stockings, 85,000,000 undershirts, 83,000,000 drawers, 30,700,000 pairs of shoes, 24,500,000 flannel shirts, 21,700,000 blankets, 21,700,000 wool breeches, 13,900,000 wool coats, and 8,300,000 overcoats. When the troop movement was speeded up in 1918 Colonel Ayres states that the margin of woolen clothing was dangerously narrow, and to secure these and other articles in sufficient quantity "it was found necessary to take control of all states of the manufacturing process, from assembling the raw material to inspecting the finished product."

"At no time was there a shortage of food in the expeditionary forces. Soldiers sometimes went hungry in this as in all other wars, but the condition was local and temporary. It occurred because of transportation difficulties during periods of active fighting or rapid movement when the units outran their rolling kitchens.

In France American engineers built eighty-three new ship berths and 1,000 miles of standard and 338 miles of narrow guage railroads. The Signal Corps strung 100,000 miles of telephone wires, and 40,000 American made motor trucks were shipped overseas. In this country army construction projects cost twice as much as the Panama Canal and were on nearly as large a scale overseas.

Vast Gun Production.

When war was declared the army had on hand nearly 600,000 Springfield rifles. The manufacture of Springfields was continued, and the American Enfield rifle designed and manufactured. When the armistice was signed the total production was 2,500,000. The total number of machine guns produced in America up to the end of 1918 was 286,537, of these 60,000 being of the light Browning and 56,612 of the heavy Browning type. The Vickers field machine guns produced totalled 12,125, the other field guns 6,366, the Lewis aircraft guns 39,200, the Browning aircraft 580, the Marlin aircraft 38,000, and the Vivkers aircraft 3,714. Before Nov. 1, 1918, 29,000 light Brownings, 27,000 heavy Brownings, and 1,500,000,000 rounds of rifle and machine gun ammunition were shipped.

When the war ended American production of rifle ammunition had reached the huge total of 3,500,000,000 rounds, of which half had been shipped overseas. In addition, 100,000,000 rounds were secured from the British and French.

Colonel Ayres in the chapter which tells of artillery production in this country and the artillery employed in American operations in France points that in June, 1917, it was decided "to allot our own guns to training purposes and to equip our forces in France with artillery conforming to the French and British standard calibres."

"The most important single fact about our artillery in France is that we always had a sufficient supply of light artillery for the combat divisions that were ready for front line service. This does not mean that when the divisions went into the battle line they always had their artillery with them, for in a number of cases they did not.

"The result of the compilation is to show that in every 100 days that our combat divisions were in line they were supported by their own artillery for seventy-five days, by British artillery for five days, by French for one and one-half days, and were without artillery for eighteen and one-half days out of the 100. Of these eighteen and one-half days, however, eighteen days were in quiet sectors and only one-half of one day in active sectors. There are only three records of numerous divisions being in an active sector without artillery support. The total of these three cases amounts to one-half of 1 per cent., or about fourteen hours out of the typical 100 days just analyzed."

"The facts," says Colonel Ayres, "can be summarized in round numbers with approximate accuracy by saying that we had in France 3,000 pieces of artillery of which nearly 600 were made in America, and we used on the firing line 2,250 pieces, of which over 100 were made in America."

The report shows that American aviators brought down 755 enemy airplanes while the American losses totalled 357 planes. The record of the balloon companies shows a somewhat less favorable comparison, the Americans bringing down 43 German and losing 71. Of the 2,698 planes sent to the front for the use of the American Air Force, 697 were of American make, and of the foreign machines used about nine-tenths were of French design and make.

Summarizes Air Strength.

The air record of the American Army is summarized as follows:

"On the declaration of war the United States had 55 training airplanes, of which 51 were classified as obsolete and the other four as obsolescent.

"When we entered the war the Allies made the designs of their planes available to us and before the end of hostilities had completed an even dozen service types.

"Aviation training schools in the United States graduated 8,991 men from elementary courses and 4,006 from advanced courses. More than 5,000 pilots and observers were sent overseas.

"The total personnel of the Air Service, officers, students and enlisted men, increased from 1,200 at the outbreak of the war to nearly 200,000 at its close.

"There were produced in the United States to Nov. 30, 1918, more than 8,000 training planes and more than 10,000 training engines.

"The De Haviland-4 observation and day bombing plane was the only plane the United States put into quantity production. Before the signing of the armistice 3,227 had been completed and 1,885 shipped overseas. The plane was successfully used at the front for three months.

"The production of the 12-cylinder Liberty engine was America's chief contribution to aviation. Before the armistice 12,574 had been completed, 4,485 shipped to the Expeditionary Forces, and 1,035 delivered to the Allies.

"The first fliers in action wearing the American uniform were members of the Lafayette Escadrille, who were transferred to the American service in December, 1917.

"The American air force at the front grew from three squadrons in April to forty-five in November, 1918. On Nov. 11 the forty-five squadrons had an equipment of 740 planes."

BATTLE DEATHS OF ARMIES ENGAGED IN PRESENT WAR 7,582,000

"The chapter captioned "100 Days of Battle," which is the story of St. Mihiel, the Meuse-Argonne, and other major operations participated in by the Americans, is summarized in the following way by Colonel Ayres:

"Two-fifths of every three American soldiers who reached France took part in battle. The number who reached France was 2,084,000, and of these 1,390,000 saw active service at the front.

"Of the forty-two divisions that reached France twenty-nine took part in active combat service. Seven of them were regular army divisions, eleven were organized from the National Guard, and eleven were made up of National Army troops.

"American divisions were in battle for 200 days and engaged in thirteen major operations.

"From the middle of August until the end of the war the American divisions held during the greater part of the time a front longer than that held by the British.

"In October the American divisions held 101 miles of line, or 23 per cent. of the entire western front.

"In the battle of St. Mihiel 550,000 Americans were engaged, as compared with about 100,000 on the Northern side in the battle of Gettysburg. The artillery fired more than 1,000,000 shells in four hours, which is the most intense concentration of artillery fire recorded in history.

"The Meuse-Argonne battle lasted forty-seven days, during which 1,200,000 American troops were engaged."

77th Made a Record.

It is stated in reference to the part played by the American divisions in the Argonne-Meuse that it was the 77th Division of New York selective draft men that achieved the greatest advance against the enemy—7½ kilometers, or nearly 45 miles. In that battle the American Army captured 16,059 prisoners, liberated 150 French towns and villages, and as an army penetrated 34 miles into territory previously held by the Germans.

The chapter entitled "Health and Casualties" is summarized as follows:

"Of every 100 American soldiers and sailors who served in the war with Germany 2 were killed or died of disease during the period of hostilities.

"The total battle deaths of all nations in this war were greater than all the deaths in all the wars in the previous 100 years.

"The number of American lives lost was 122,500, of which about 10,000 were in the navy and the rest in the army and the marines attached to it.

"In the American Army the casualty rate in the infantry was higher than in any other service, and that for officers was higher than for men.

"For every man killed in battle seven were wounded.

"Five out of every six men sent to hospitals on account of wounds were cured and returned to duty.

"In the expeditionary forces battle losses were twice as large as deaths from disease.

"In this war the death rate from disease was lower and the death rate from battle was higher than in any other previous American war.

The last chapter in the report is that which tells the story of the cost of the war.

So far as the United States was concerned, the cost is summarized as follows:

"1. The war cost the United States considerably more than $1,000,000 an hour for over two years.

"2. The direct cost was about $22,000,000,000, or nearly enough to pay the entire cost of running the United States Government from 1791 up to the outbreak of the European war.

"3. Our expenditures in this war were sufficient to have carried on the Revolutionary War continuously for more than 1,000 years at the rate of expenditure which that war actually involved.

"4. In addition to this huge expenditure, nearly $10,000,000,000 have been loaned by the United States to the Allies.

"5. The army expenditures have been over $14,000,000,000, or nearly two-thirds of our total war costs.

"6. During the first three months our war expenditures were at the rate of $2,000,000 per day. During the next year they averaged more than $22,000,000 a day. For the final ten months of the period, from April, 1917, to April, 1918, the daily average was over $44,000,000.

"7. Although the army expenditures are less than two-thirds of our total war costs, they are nearly equal to the value of all the gold produced in the whole world from the discovery of America up to the outbreak of the European war.

"8. The pay of the army during the war cost more than the combined salaries of all the public school principals and teachers in the United States for the five years from 1912 to 1916."

SOUGHT HENRY FORD IN SOVIET'S BEHALF

Martens Letters Show "Red" Envoy Tried to Interest Him in "Regeneration of Russia."

TELL OF SEEING VANDERLIP

Name of J. P. Morgan Mentioned in Correspondence Read to Investigating Committee.

Correspondence between the Soviet Russia Mission and Henry Ford, showing that L. A. C. K. Martens, head of the Soviet Bureau, was anxious to arouse the interest of the motor car manufacturer and pacifist, not only in trade openings in the Bolshevist domain, but also in "the social aspects of the regeneration of Russia" under Bolshevist rule, was introduced in evidence before the Legislative Committee investigating seditious activities and propaganda, at its hearing in the City Hall yesterday.

The correspondence was produced from the seized files of the raided Bolshevist Bureau by Archibald E. Stevenson, associate counsel of the committee, together with other letters indicating activity by the Bolshevist envoy in efforts to establish relations with banking institutions and men controlling large funds. The name of J. P. Morgan and Frank A. Vanderlip were among those occurring in the testimony, and it appeared that an agent of the Soviet Russia Bureau reported he had had several conferences with Mr. Vanderlip since his return from Europe.

Henry Ford proved less accessible, but a conference was arranged between his general secretary, E. G. Liebold, and Santari Nuorteva, Secretary of the Soviet Russia Mission.

In contrast with earlier statements made by Mr. Stevenson while a witness that in the seized files of the Martens Mission there was nothing to indicate that Martens was particularly concerned with establishing trade relations between this country and Russia, was his testimony yesterday, in which he introduced a list of 1,500 business firms with which the bureau had been negotiating for purchases as soon as the blockade against Soviet Russia should be raised. He said, however, that the seized correspondence did not include a single document to indicate that any deal actually had been consummated.

Says They Met Ford's Secretary.

As far as the testimony was concerned, the result of the correspondence between Henry Ford and the Soviet envoy was left in doubt. Mr. Stevenson said the seized records afforded no information as to whether the Bolshevist envoy personally or through agents had met Mr. Ford or any one representing him. This statement was disputed by Martens, who said last night that in the papers which had been returned to the bureau as not material to the investigation was a report from Nuorteva in which he outlined what occurred at an inconclusive conference with Mr. Liebold in Detroit, in which exportation of Ford tractors to Bolshevist Russia had been discussed.

For the first time since the investigation began some evidence was introduced to shed light on the financial backing of the Soviet Mission. Correspondence with United States District Attorney Francis G. Caffey and letters from Nuorteva showed that drafts had been brought to this country through Sweden for Nuorteva, and were seized by the customs authorities last January. Nuorteva, in a letter which was read in evidence, said the money had been sent by the Russian Soviet Government.

The testimony with relation to the commercial activities of the Soviet Mission opened with the introduction of a list of 1,500 firms that had offered to do business with the Soviet Bureau, followed by a letter from the Commercial Department of the Mission written May 28, and containing this statement: "This department is not a bureau, credit and has no capital of its own. The letter was written to the Credit Audit Company of America, and was signed by A. A. Heller as Commercial Director of the Bureau.

Reads Letters to Ford.

"In introducing this letter," said Mr. Stevenson, "I wish to call attention to an affidavit made by Mr. Heller to the War Trades Board, in which he says: 'The Commercial Department has no account in any bank.' A search of the files was made, and there is no indication that any commercial transaction was entered into at all."

The letter to Henry Ford was dated April 9. Being a carbon copy, it did not show a signature. It read:

The chief of our commercial department, Mr. A. A. Heller, has sent a telegram today to your firm asking whether you are interested in selling your product to Russia. We want to speak with you not about trade in the narrow sense alone. We want to show you all the aspects of our application. It is for that reason that I take the liberty of asking you to grant our Mr. Heller and me an interview with you personally at a time convenient to yourself.

Mr. Stevenson produced a letter to Henry Ford, dated April 21, which was placed in evidence, and from which he read the following extracts:

You are perhaps aware of the fact that the Russian Soviet Government has established an office for the purpose of promoting friendly economic relations between the Soviet Russian Government and the United States. In spite of the campaign of misrepresentation which has been carried on against Soviet Russia by reactionary elements in the world on the one hand, and on the other hand by people who have been unduly prejudiced by such elements, or by lack of information about conditions in Russia and of the aspirations of the Russian laboring masses, we find today that there is a possibility for bringing about an understanding between these two countries which would result in fruitful co-operation.

Writing to you, I have, however, in mind something else than a purely commercial interest your firm may have in Russian trade. We would like very much to discuss with you the social aspect of the regeneration of Russia, and we believe we could make you understand that Soviet Russia has inaugurated methods of industrial efficiency compatible with the interests of humanity and unhampered by the curse of greed and graft.

"Were there any replies to these letters?" asked Assemblyman Peter P. McElligott, a member of the committee. In response, Mr. Stevenson produced this telegram:

Fort Dearborn, April 25, 1919.
L. A. Martens, 110 West Fortieth Street, New York.
E. G. Liebold, general secretary to Henry Ford, will be glad to see S. Nuortova Saturday and Sunday down in Detroit. Have them wire definite time from Chicago.
FRANK CAMPBELL,
Assistant Secretary to Henry Ford.

Light on the conference is shed by a report made to Martens by Nuortev, which, according to the Bolshevist envoy, was among the papers seized in the raid and for some reason returned by Mr. Stevenson as not material to the investigation. The part of the report referring to Mr. Ford follows:

Tells of Meeting in Detroit.

On returning from Chicago visited Ford's plant in Detroit. Did not see Ford personally. His general manager seemed to be very ignorant about conditions in Russia. Told me that they have already made contracts with one Batoulin to sell tractors direct to Russian peasants; that Batoulin has in Russia forty-five banks and good facilities of marketing. He was genuinely surprised when we told him that Batoulin has no banks in Russia, any more than any other individual, and that he certainly would not be able to market Ford tractors in Russia.

He was very much disturbed over our revelations, and, as we proved to him that the only manner of trade in Russia is to trade with the Soviet Government, we arranged for further conversation on the matter in the near future. Today I made arrangements to get the matter brought to Ford personally, and I await further developments. I am sure it would be of the utmost interest to get him to work for sending Russian tractors through our bureau.

Mr. Stevenson testified that it was apparent from an examination of the Soviet papers that the members of the mission were taking steps at the time of this correspondence to pave the way for "conversations" with business men. He introduced a memorandum signed by Evans Clark, Associate Director of the Commercial Department at the Soviet Bureau, to one Dr. J. Hartman, an employe, directing him [illegible] tions from utterances of returning Americans friendly to the Bolshevist cause. The names of Raymond Robins and William Boyce Thompson were among men to whose statements he referred.

Clark's Memorandum.

There was presented a memorandum prepared by Clark for Professor Louis Hopolt, railroad expert for the Commercial of the Interior in the Bolshevist Government. The memorandum, which was dated May 20 and was put in evidence, read:

I see by this morning's paper that Mr. Vanderlip has arrived from Europe. It is of the greatest importance that we get in touch with him before the organizations which are fighting us. Can you not get a letter of introduction for me from Mrs. [illegible] tomorrow morning? If that will not be possible, please let me know and I will try to get at him in some other way.

Offers to Pledge $100,000,000 Cash.

A letter from the Soviet Mission to one James P. Mulvihill, at the Commerce Hall Hotel, Washington, was presented next in evidence. Mr. Stevenson said the letter apparently had been written by Commercial Attaché Heller. He read from it the following:

The Soviet Government is willing to release all former obligations toward foreign countries in order to stabilize its international credit, and is ready to place in foreign banks ready cash to the amount to cover the price of initial purchases abroad until further credits can be established by the export of Russian products.

"This reference to $100,000,000 has been used in practically all the correspondence asking for bids from concerns in the United States and in relation between the Soviet Russian Government and the United States. In spite of the campaign of misrepresentation which has been carried on against Soviet Russia by reactionary elements in the world on the one hand, and on the other hand by people who have been unduly prejudiced by such elements, or by lack of information about conditions in Russia and of the aspirations of the Russian laboring masses, we find today that there is a possibility for bringing about an understanding between these two countries which would result in fruitful co-operation.

Writing to you, I have, however, in mind something else than a purely commercial interest your firm may have in Russian trade. We would like very much to discuss with you the social aspect of the regeneration of Russia, and we believe we could make you understand that Soviet Russia has inaugurated methods of industrial efficiency compatible with the interests of humanity and unhampered by the curse of greed and graft.

"Were there any replies to these letters?" asked Assemblyman Peter P. McElligott, a member of the committee. In response, Mr. Stevenson produced this telegram:

Fort Dearborn, April 25, 1919.
L. A. Martens, 110 West Fortieth Street, New York.
E. G. Liebold, general secretary to Henry Ford, will be glad to see S. Nuortova Saturday and Sunday down in Detroit. Have them wire definite time from Chicago.
FRANK CAMPBELL,
Assistant Secretary to Henry Ford.

Light on the conference is shed by a report made to Martens by Nuortev, which, according to the Bolshevist envoy, was among the papers seized in the raid and for some reason returned by Mr. Stevenson as not material to the investigation. The part of the report referring to Mr. Ford follows:

Tells of Meeting in Detroit.

On returning from Chicago visited Ford's plant in Detroit. Did not see Ford personally. His general manager seemed to be very ignorant about conditions in Russia. Told me that they have already made contracts with one Batoulin to sell tractors direct to Russian peasants; that Batoulin has in Russia forty-five banks and good facilities of marketing. He was genuinely surprised when we told him that Batoulin has no banks in Russia, any more than any other individual, and that he certainly would not be able to market Ford tractors in Russia.

He was very much disturbed over our revelations, and, as we proved to him that the only manner of trade in Russia is to trade with the Soviet Government, we arranged for further conversation on the matter in the near future. Today I made arrangements to get the matter brought to Ford personally, and I await further developments. I am sure it would be of the utmost interest to get him to work for sending Russian tractors through our bureau.

Mr. Stevenson testified that it was apparent from an examination of the Soviet papers that the members of the mission were taking steps at the time of this correspondence to pave the way for "conversations" with business men. He introduced a memorandum signed by Evans Clark, Associate Director of the Commercial Department at the Soviet Bureau, to one Dr. J. Hartman, an employe, directing him [illegible] tions from utterances of returning Americans friendly to the Bolshevist cause. The names of Raymond Robins and William Boyce Thompson were among men to whose statements he referred.

Clark's Memorandum.

There was presented a memorandum prepared by Clark for Professor Louis Hopolt, railroad expert for the Commercial of the Interior in the Bolshevist Government. The memorandum, which was dated May 20 and was put in evidence, read:

I see by this morning's paper that Mr. Vanderlip has arrived from Europe. It is of the greatest importance that we get in touch with him before the organizations which are fighting us. Can you not get a letter of introduction for me from Mrs. [illegible] tomorrow morning? If that will not be possible, please let me know and I will try to get at him in some other way.

Offers to Pledge $100,000,000 Cash.

A letter from the Soviet Mission to one James P. Mulvihill, at the Commerce Hall Hotel, Washington, was presented next in evidence. Mr. Stevenson said the letter apparently had been written by Commercial Attaché Heller. He read from it the following:

The Soviet Government is willing to release all former obligations toward foreign countries in order to stabilize its international credit, and is ready to place in foreign banks ready cash to the amount to cover the price of initial purchases abroad until further credits can be established by the export of Russian products.

PLAN ACTIVE CAMPAIGN TO CURB RADICALS HERE

Garvin, Urging Need for Appropriation, Says Reds Are Spending $2,000,000 monthly.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Provision for vigorous steps by the Federal Government against bomb throwers and other anarchists and radicals, declared by Government officials to be plotting the overthrow of the Government, and, spending $2,000,000 monthly to that end, were made in the sundry civil appropriation bills as reported today to the Senate. Among the measures recommended were large additional appropriations for the Department of Justice, and legislation continuing permanently the wartime regulations as to the purchase, storage, manufacture, sale, and distribution of explosives.

In reporting the bill the Senate Appropriations Committee increased from $1,400,000 to $2,000,000 the fund of the Department of Justice for general suppression of crime. In addition, it added $300,000 for a special fund to enforce the law against alien anarchists through deportations.

The amendment added to continue the explosives regulation law after the declaration of peace provides for strict licensing and supervision of all sales of explosives under the Bureau of Mines.

The intention of Government officials to deal vigorously with anarchists and other lawbreakers was disclosed in statements made at hearings on the Appropriation bill, made public late today. Francis P. Garvan, of the Department of Justice Bureau of Investigation, told the committee that with the increased funds proposed, the Department plans an active campaign.

"We have found in the short time that we have been at work," said Mr. Garvan, "that conditions are quite serious throughout the country. We are asking $2,000,000 and we have every reason to believe that the incoming Bolshevist are pouring money in here at the rate of three to four a month."

Mr. Garvan was asked specifically whether there was an organized effort to destroy the Federal Government, to which question he replied:

"Certainly. We have evidence to show that, and that is also shown by the tremendous amount of money they are spending. The condition is serious throughout the country.

New York, Chicago, and Paterson, N. J., he said, are centres of anarchistic activities.

When asked if the Department has information that another outbreak of bomb outrages is planned for July 4, Mr. Garvan said:

"There is a great deal of talk to that effect. The number of radical papers [illegible] the passage of the Espionage Act. The $10 a year law signed. We now have to take more than 400 papers to read and digest."

SAYS ELLIS WAS AGITATOR.

State Department Tells Senate of Correspondent's Activities in Egypt.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Temporary deportation in Egypt of William T. Ellis, correspondent of the New York Press, and his son, Arthur Ellis, was caused by activities of himself and his son in connection with the nationalist movement in that country, the Senate was informed today by the State Department. The department's communication was in response to a resolution of inquiry recently adopted by the Senate.

Both Mr. Ellis and his son had since left for Constantinople, the department's letter said.

After their arrival in Egypt, according to the department, Mr. Ellis and his son made themselves "most conspicuous" wherever nationalist disturbances occurred, and Mr. Ellis spoke at a nationalist meeting "at the centre of all present sedition, El Azhar University, where he received a great ovation."

On April 27 last the American Military Attaché at Cairo notified the State Department that "Ellis's actions in Cairo have become so objectionable that on April 28 the High Commissioner was obliged to write a letter of complaint to the diplomatic agent at the State Department later issued instructions for the modification of Mr. Ellis's passports so as to eliminate India and Turkey, but subsequently, under an agreement with the British authorities, these were changed so as to permit him to proceed to Constantinople.

Mr. Ellis also was accused in reports to the department by its representatives in Egypt of having been guilty of breach of faith by submitting newspaper articles to the authorities at Cairo for censorship, while at the same time mailing duplicates in disguised envelopes from Rome.

Attention was first called to Mr. Ellis and his son, the department wrote, upon their arrival at Cairo attired in regulation American Army uniforms. The department ordered them to remove all insignia from their uniforms, and this was done, but later, it was said, they sent an "objectionable" cablegram to the Secretary of War asking permission to wear the insignia.

Degree for Otto H. Kahn.

At the commencement exercises of the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor yesterday the degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred upon Otto H. Kahn in recognition of Mr. Kahn's work in the war on behalf of the cause of America and the allies and his contributions to present day thought on reconstruction, taxation, and other economic problems.

NEW TRAFFIC RULES FOR WALKING PUBLIC

Proposed Amendment to City Ordinance Regulates Crossing of Streets by Persons on Foot.

MUST OBEY POLICE ORDERS

Ten Dollars Fine or Ten Days' Imprisonment, or Both, Penalty for Violators.

Under the provisions of a proposed amendment to the city ordinances persons on foot who infringe traffic regulations by crossing in the middle of the block and paying no heed to the policeman directing traffic will be liable to a sentence of a fine of $10 or ten days in jail, or both, if the Magistrate so directs. The amendment has been filed by the Board of Aldermen on the recommendation of the Committee on Public Thoroughfares. It reads:

"No pedestrian, while traveling any street, avenue, or highway shall cross said street, avenue, or highway except at a regular street crossing or at designated points in the centre of blocks which are 400 feet or more in length.

"Pedestrians shall at all times comply with any direction by voice, hand, or whistle from any member of the police force as to starting or stopping.

"The Police Department shall have exclusive control of the management of pedestrian and vehicular traffic. The Police Commissioner shall issue suitable abstracts of the provisions of this chapter to be posted in all public places, stables and garages, and at all hack, cab, and truck stands. He shall cause copies thereof to be kept at all police stations to be issued to the public on application without charge."

The amendment has no penalty attached, but under the law, where no penalty is stipulated the penalty shall be the general one of a fine of $250 or ten days' imprisonment, or both. It was introduced at the request of the Police Department and will come up next week for action by the board.

INDIANA MAYOR ARRESTED.

County Attorney Also Charged with Shielding Alleged Swindlers.

MUNCIE, Ind., June 26.—Horace G. Murphy, prosecuting attorney of Delaware County, and Dr. Rollin H. Bunch, Mayor of Muncie, were arrested today in connection with operations by alleged swindlers, who made their headquarters in Muncie. Both men gave bonds for $10,000 each.

The Government's allegation is that they provided protection from arrest to men accused by the Federal authorities of having swindled at least thirty-four wealthy men by means of fake prize fights and wrestling matches.

Mr. Bunch is serving his second term as Mayor. Prosecutor Murphy was elected in 1916 on a reform ticket and re-elected in 1918. Thirteen men were previously arrested.

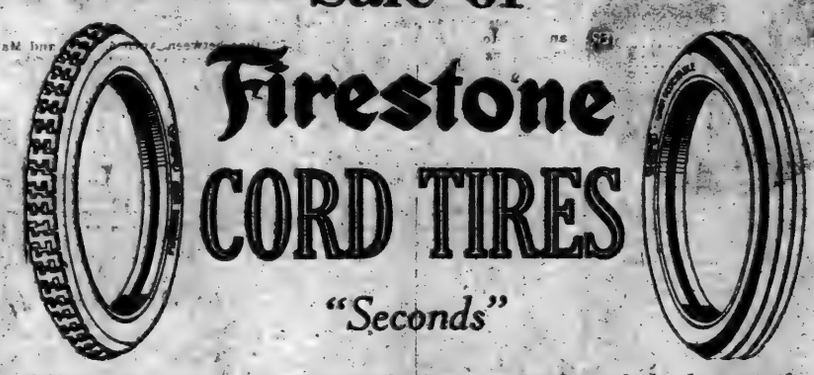
CORD TIRES
"Seconds"



Offered at bedrock prices through the co-operation of the largest tire jobbers in America.

Reductions of 35% From List Price

These Firestone Tires are termed "seconds," though they have no material imperfections and are as good as "firsts" in mileage service. They are classed as "seconds" merely because they are factory surplus stock, and therefore must be sold without question and without guarantee.

The great reduction in price is simply another value-giving demonstration of our three-store buying power.

WHY DO YOU BRUSH YOUR TEETH?

Germs of decay, "acid mouth," crust of tartar, given as reasons.

Some of us brush our teeth to whiten them; others to prevent decay-germs; still others to refresh the mouth. Many believe they have acid-mouth or wish to remove the "crust of tartar" which is forming.

Regardless of why you brush your teeth, decide today whether the dentifrice you are now trying will do or is doing all that you can reasonably expect from a dentifrice.

If it is, continue to use it faithfully. If it is good for only one of the duties of a good dentifrice, you had better try McK & R Calox, which combines in one dentifrice most of the features of all modern dentifrices.

If you haven't heard the story of McK & R Calox—how it forms real lime-water in your mouth to prevent acids—how it creates fresh, active peroxide on the teeth every time you brush them—how it releases genuine oxygen gas which penetrates into every crevice and "gasses" the dangerous decay-germs into harmlessness, if you don't know this story of the victory of modern science, send for full particulars.

Your dentist will recommend McK & R Calox to you, and your druggist has it. Try it next time you need a dentifrice.

The taste is a surprise to most people. It is not the least bit "druggy" which proves that it is possible to make a pleasant tasting dentifrice and that a "strong" taste does not prove the efficiency of any paste or powder.

DE VALERA WOULD PAY 1866 BONDS

Sinn Fein Leader Calls $500,000 for Attack on Canada "Debt of Honor."

HYLAN TO RECEIVE HIM

Asks for Visit to City Hall—Mayor Peters Wires Invitation to Boston.

Eamonn de Valera, who is maintaining an "Irish White House" on the eleventh floor, Thirty-fourth Street side, of the Waldorf-Astoria, in connection with his mission here as the head of the Sinn Fein Republic of Ireland, said yesterday that he regarded it "as a debt of honor" to redeem the unpaid $500,000 worth of Fenian bonds floated in this country in 1866. The redemption is qualified, of course, being on the basis of the interest starting "six months after the British troops evacuate Ireland."

Many things beside bonds occupied the attention of the former Dublin University professor of mathematics yesterday, however. For instance, over in Brooklyn, John H. McCooey, who has sometimes been referred to as the political "boss" of that borough, called the Kings County Democratic Committee together, and the entire committee voted its conviction that the principle of self-determination should be applied to Ireland. Then there came the news that Boston planned a great demonstration on Sunday to greet Dr. de Valera when he arrives there.

And again the Peace Conference was informed that the treaty of peace would not bind Ireland since Lloyd George and colleagues had signed, or planned to sign, instead of Sean O'Cealligh and George Gavan Duffy and The O'Donnell—the last named, although his name doesn't suggest it, being a Spaniard.

As regards the debt of honor, Professor de Valera, after saying that all of them would be assumed by the Irish "Government," remarked that the bonds issued back in '66 by the Fenian Brotherhood were conditional bonds and were not to be paid until Ireland gained her freedom. He said that details of the payment were now being arranged.

May Exchange Notes.

"We acknowledge the indebtedness of the Irish nation," the doctor said, "and the payments will be met out of the new bond issue. Or notes of the present issue will be exchanged for the old bonds."

The bonds of 1866, as one of those close to the professor pointed out, were used in part to equip the band of Fenians who marched to the border and tried to invade Canada, regarding this procedure as the quickest way to strike a blow at England. It was this expedition that engaged in the fierce battle of the Wind Mill, which was once described as consisting rather more largely of wind than mill; a circumstance attributed to the fact that each side said the other ran away.

Finances out of the way, de Valera was questioned about the report from Paris that Ireland would be made a dominion soon, with Lord Shaughnessy as Governor General.

"Any report of that character," was his reply, "is put out to gain time by the British. The Irish people are not fooled and I hope that the American people will not be. Even if England were sincere in any such proposition, and Lloyd George did agree, the Parliament would soon cut it down. Ireland is entitled to full rights of liberty and she will be satisfied with nothing less. One thing I am perfectly sure of is that Great Britain will not allow control of customs by us in that so-called Dominion idea."

Between the morning and the night exposition of views by the "President" came Harry J. Boland, Sinn Fein member of Parliament for South Roscommon, who won't take his seat until Parliament meets in Dublin instead of Westminster. The "Presidential" party, he said, would leave for Boston at 1 o'clock tomorrow on the Knickerbocker Express. On the way up de Valera will halt long enough at Providence to talk from the rear of his train; and for that reason he may go on a special train.

Plan Big Reception.

Arriving at Boston, said Mr. Boland, Professor de Valera will be met at the station by Mayor Andrew Peters, 100 members of the Massachusetts Legislature, and 15,000 persons. With this imposing escort he will be paraded to his hotel, and then on Sunday out to Fenway Park, where the cause of Irish freedom rather than big league baseball will be the event of the day. Professor de Valera will make his first public address at the park, the meeting being under the auspices of the Bench and Bar Association of Boston.

Mr. Boland added two more things. Plans are being prepared for a nation-wide tour by de Valera, and Mayor Hylan has been written to for a date to receive the "President" at City Hall. During the afternoon a party of officers of the 165th Infantry, including Lieut. Col. Anderson, Major H. A. Kelly, and Major Martin Meaney, called to pay their respects.

His visit to Boston, said de Valera in the evening, was prompted not only by the invitation of the Bench and Bar Association, but by this telegram as well:

Boston, Mass., June 26, 1919.
Eamonn de Valera, Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, New York City:

On behalf of the citizens of Boston I have the privilege of extending to you the greetings of a city whose citizens have such sympathy with the cause for which you are working. It will be a real pleasure to have you with us.

ANDREW J. PETERS,
Mayor of Boston.

The meeting of the Kings County Democratic Executive Committee was held at 5 Court Street, and the resolution introducted by Mr. McCooey, shorn of its "whereas," was as follows:

"Resolved, That the Executive Committee of the Democratic organization of Kings County, State of New York, not alone tender our sympathy but pledge our unswerving moral support and best financial assistance to the Irish people in their patriotic and untiring efforts to secure their lawful and inherent rights for absolute independence and freedom and pray that the long suffering and patriotic sacrifices of this noble race shall soon result in establishing them on an equal footing with the other nations of the world as a free and independent people."

After the resolution had been unanimously adopted, Commissioner of Public Works, Joseph A. Guider, made a motion that a theatre benefit be arranged for the "republic." Chairman McCooey appointed a committee of ten, five women and five men, to arrange for the benefit.

Before leaving last night for dinner with friends Dr. de Valera was asked to comment on the incident at the St. Regis Hotel in which Sir Charles Carrick Allom, two girl collectors for the Irish Victory Fund, and three Irish porters figured.

"The act was not characteristic of the individual Englishman," he answered, seeming to enjoy something hugely, "but it was typical of the British system, which makes 'lords of all creation.'"

The "President" had sixty callers between sunup and sundown. Jeremiah O'Leary, who was tried for violation of the Espionage Act, was one of them.

NEW COURSE AT COLUMBIA.

To Present Special Lectures on Ancient Religions During Summer.

Ancient religions, with a comparison of Assyro-Babylonian records and the Old Testament, will be stressed in a series of courses in the history of Babylonian and Assyrian civilization in Western Asia to be given at the Summer session of Columbia University this year. New historical material will be used in the lectures by Dr. Herrick A. Vanderburgh, Ph. D., author of Sumerian hymns, encyclopedia and journal articles on Old Testament exegesis, and Assyriology and sumerology. The course will embrace a historical survey of early Babylonia, the Assyrian Empire, and the later Babylonian Empire with a brief discussion of Egyptian, Phoenician, and Hittite civilizations.

Comprehensive surveys of the Bible, Old Testament and New, in the light of modern scholarship, will be given by Raymond C. Knox, chaplain of the university. As a background to a course giving the history of Hebrew literature, Professor R. W. Rogers will lecture on the chief peoples of the ancient Orient, the Egyptians, Babylonians, Assyrians, Hebrews, Phoenicians, Hittites, with side lights upon the lesser peoples, the Moabites and Edomites. The literature of the Old Testament, taught by Elizabeth Czarnomska, will include not only a study of the style and power of each author or group of collaborators but will determine his part in evolving the principles of right living first voiced by the Hebrew people.

Modern Christian ethics, an attempt to determine the meaning of Christian ideals when applied to modern ethical and social problems, will be discussed by Eugene W. Lyman, Professor of Philosophy of Religion at Union Theological Seminary, who will also give a course comprehensively treating the philosophy of religion.

SAYS 8TH AV. LINE PROSPERS

Commissioner Nixon Calls Attention to Dividends Paid from Rent.

Public Service Commissioner Lewis Nixon said yesterday that he would comment on the separation of the Eighth and Ninth Avenue surface lines from the New York Railways system, now in the hands of a receiver, as soon as he had a full report of the proceedings in court on Wednesday. He did not care, he said, to discuss at present Federal Judge Mayer's statement that he would return the two lines to their owners because of failure to pay the rents, providing a plan conserving the public interest should be submitted by counsel for the owners.

Mr. Nixon appeared to think the financial condition of the Eighth Avenue line particularly good due to the large rents paid by the Railways Company. He said this line was receiving his full attention at present.

"The issues of this line," he explained, "is $2,500,000 5 year capital 6 per cent. certificates of indebtedness $750,000 at 6 per cent.

"Last year a dividend of $160,000 was paid by the company to its stockholders and a surplus of $98,000 was carried over into this fiscal year. The quarterly rent was not paid by the New York Railways Company on Jan. 1, 1919, but a substantial dividend fund still exists.

"If this line is turned back to its owners it will be operated as a separate line. We cannot, of course, know what measure of relief will be asked as to transfers, but in anticipation of any requests which may be made the financial and operating data needed for determination of proposals are being prepared for the information of the commission."

PLAN FOR VICTORY PARK.

Highest Mountain in State to be Made a War Memorial.

A meeting of the Victory Mountain Park Committee was held yesterday at the Farmers' Loan and Trust Co. to discuss plans to acquire Mount Marcy, the highest mountain in New York State, and adjacent territory, where a permanent memorial to the heroes of the war will be maintained. The park will be used as a recreation center for soldiers, sailors, and marines.

The plan to purchase Mount Marcy, which has an altitude of 5,344 feet, calls for obtaining at least 1,000 acres of seven miles of small lakes and forests. Money for the purchase, which will be raised by popular subscription, will be turned into the State Treasury.

John G. Agar, President of the Association for the Protection of the Adirondacks, presided. In a brief address he said the following will constitute the officers of the committee: Governor Alfred E. Smith, Honorary Chairman; Dr. John H. Finley, Chairman; the Rev. William T. Manning, Major-Gen. John F. O'Ryan, and Louis Marshall, Vice Chairmen; Edwin S. Marston, Treasurer, and John G. Agar, Chairman of the Executive Committee.

SEES IRELAND USED TO CRIPPLE WILSON

Senator Phelan Says Senate Resolution Was Aimed at the League.

ASSAILS REPUBLICAN STAND

Asserts a Great Cause Is Crudely Employed as a Vulgar Means to Win Votes.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Senator Phelan, Democrat, of California, in a speech in the Senate today declared what he characterized as an effort of Senate Republicans to make political capital out of the Irish question.

In voting for the Borah-Walsh resolution calling on the Peace Conference to grant a hearing to the Irish delegates, he said, the Republicans had been animated by the motive of embarrassing President Wilson in his stand for self-determination of nations. Actually, he declared, the Republican attitude was prompted by antagonism to the League of Nations, rather than of expectation of aiding the Irish cause.

"The project for a League of Nations, was, among other things," said Senator Phelan, "designed to maintain the independence of small States which have been established as a result of our successful war against autocracy. I am sure President Wilson has been the spokesman for the small nations before the Conference and that his sympathies are with the Irish aspirations for a self-determined government.

"Any responsible man must, however, appreciate that, in creating independent States in Europe, and in endowing them with self-determination, the Conference at Paris necessarily confined itself only to the territory which had been, as a result of war, wrested from the enemy. Ireland has all the indicia of nationality, and, all the qualifications for independence, and, for that reason, the President, necessarily, in a diplomatic way, has interested British statesmen in her cause. But, he cannot demand that one of the Allies submit itself now to the Conference. He has to proceed with tact and caution in order to preserve the Entente.

"Some persons, interested in the cause of Ireland, have objected to Article X. in the League covenant because they fear it would guarantee the territorial integrity of the British Empire. This it does only with respect to external aggressions. Now Irish independence can be won by the voluntary act of England, successful revolution or the intervention of a superior force from the outside.

"Of these three avenues to independence the League only stands in the way of 'external aggression.' I do not know of any country that would go to war with England for the mere purpose of liberating Ireland. Since Ireland cannot release herself from the English yoke, nor expect any other nation to do so, the public opinion of the world and her own resolution firmly held, may accomplish it sooner than we expect. It would be the wisest policy for England."

Senator Phelan adverted to a resolution offered in the Senate in 1916 expressing the hope that the British Government exercise clemency in the treatment of Irish political prisoners, and that the President be requested to transmit the resolution to the British Government. The Committee on Foreign Relations, he said, rejected it, but it was submitted as a minority report by three Democratic Senators and was adopted by 43 affirmative votes, of which only 8 were Republican. That, he said, was a "real test of party sentiment." On the Borah-Walsh resolution, he said, there was substantial unanimity.

"Why, on the Borah-Walsh resolution, was the Republican membership of this body solidified?" demanded Senator Phelan.

"It was under the pressure of party discipline and intended, I believe, to embarrass the President. It was also done, I believe, to defeat the League of Nations, by exciting false suspicion that Article X. prevented internal revolution. It is unfortunate that so great a cause should be so crudely used, as a vulgar means of winning votes, by men whose previous actions would indicate that they have no real sympathy with Ireland, and whose main contention in all the debate is that America should stay at home and leave England to its fate.

Senator Phelan said that "President" de Valera of the "Irish Republic" upon his recent visit to the Capitol had expressed the hope that the Irish cause would not be "dragged into the mire of American party politics."

BRISBANE MAY BUY NEWARK LEDGER

Hearst Editor Considering Obtaining an Interest in It, Says New Jersey Publisher.

OWNS WASHINGTON TIMES

Christian Feigenspan, Brewer Who Financed Purchase of That Paper, Also Loaned Russell $155,000.

Arthur Brisbane, owner of The Washington Times and editor of The New York Evening Journal and other Hearst papers, is considering the purchase of an interest in The Newark Morning Ledger and The Newark Evening Ledger, according to Lucius T. Russell, publisher and editor of the papers.

It was learned by long-distance telephone connection with Mr. Brisbane, who is at Pine Hill, N. Y., that the deal had not been closed and that there was no certainty about his buying the papers. Mr. Brisbane refused to discuss his plans for financing this transaction, if he decided in favor of it. It was said that he was considering the purchase of one or more of half a dozen newspapers and that no was no more likely to purchase the Newark papers than any one of the others.

Christian Feigenspan, the brewer, who loaned several hundred thousand dollars, subscribed by various brewers, to Arthur Brisbane for the purchase of The Washington Times, also loaned $155,000. It was brought out before the Senate Committee last fall, to Mr. Russell, publisher of the Newark papers. Mr. Russell admitted yesterday that he had borrowed from Feigenspan, but denied that the brewer had any interest in the papers.

"We have been talking about this for seven years," he said. "The subject of Mr. Brisbane entering The Newark field with me was first broached at the Baltimore Convention seven years ago. We have talked it over several times since, but never reached a definite understanding until recently. Now it looks as if our plans will come to a head and he will come into The Ledger. If so, the local management will remain the same.

The Morning and Evening Ledger have been making a strong campaign against prohibition.

ELECTRIC SERVICE
An investment that pays for itself at once

BUILDINGS were once divided in these two classes—the brick and the frame. Today, Manhattan classes them differently—those wired for electric service and those unwired.

Electric service is modern. All new buildings are equipped with it. Therefore, it has come to be synonymous with all that is new and up-to-date. The very atmosphere which it creates is one of cleanliness and progress.

A building being worth what a buyer will pay for it, and a buyer normally basing his judgment on what his eyes tell him—the shrewd owner gives his building a bright new coat of paint before he puts it on the market. He is thereby able to sell at an increase of price which pays for the paint many times over.

What paint does for the outside of a building, electric service will do for the inside. Electric fixtures have an air of class about them. Beautiful lighting effects are made possible and rooms can be decorated in light cheerful colors.

And it is an improvement so easily made. The entire building can be wired without causing one cent of expense for repairs or redecoration. There is no fuss of muss; the wire-man is a "dirtless" workman.

And now—as to the expense. It is almost certain to cost less than you expect. A postal-card or telephone request (Stuyvesant 4980) will bring our representative to you. He will tell you how inexpensively and easily your property can be electrified. And if the investment involves a greater immediate expenditure than is convenient, we may perhaps be able to arrange terms.

Ten of the Many Reasons Why the UNITED STATES ARMY is YOUR Opportunity

1 Good Pay and Money in the Bank
Because you get food, clothing, living quarters, medical and dental attention FREE. The present rate of pay starts at $30 a month—mostly profit. Can your present job show you this profit? It means money in the bank, if you are thrifty.

2 Life in the Open Air
Because you spend most of your time out-of-doors, becoming toughened and strong, browned by the sun, as fit as a fiddle and sound as a nut. You sleep well, eat well, and feel well every minute.

3 Free Education
Because, while Uncle Sam gives you your living and pays you well, he also provides schools in which you can learn nearly anything, if you take advantage of your opportunity.

4 Free Training in a Skilled Trade
Because in the Army you are given opportunity to learn almost any skilled trade you can think of (see list below). Thus, when your enlistment expires, you have laid the foundation for SUCCESS in life.

5 Character Building
Because there is nothing like army life to stiffen a man's backbone, give him courage, will-power and respect for himself, his fellow-men and his country. The good soldier develops qualities of leadership.

6 Body and Health-Building
Because in the Army you get a wonderful physical training. The outdoor work builds strong bodies. Athletic sports are encouraged. Skilful doctors look after your health, keep your teeth in condition and protect you against disease.

7 See Foreign Lands
Uncle Sam maintains an army in many parts of the world and YOU CAN CHOOSE WHERE YOU WOULD RATHER GO. 50,000 now going to France; others to Alaska, China, Panama, Hawaii, and the Philippines.

8 Promotion and Advancement
Because there is ample opportunity for promotion with increased pay to grades of Corporal, Sergeant and in the Non-Commissioned Staff. Selected enlisted men are sent to West Point, many others are commissioned from the ranks.

9 True and Tried Friendships
Your buddies become your friends, staunch and true, fellows who stick to you through anything. You will form no finer friendships all your life than those you form in the Army. The soldier's profession is honorable and respected.

10 Liberty and Recreation
Because you have ample freedom and many special privileges. You have club rooms to rest in, play athletic games, go to shows, meet agreeable people, including lots of nice girls. Men, it's a great life!

Fifty Thousand Wanted Right Now for France and the Rhine

If you want to see the battlefields of France and the wonderful Rhine valley, enlist TODAY, because Uncle Sam is sending 50,000 replacement troops to Europe at once. The boys are coming home, and although many are re-enlisting because they like army life and WANT TO GO BACK, there is an opportunity for YOU, if you waste no time, to "get across" and HELP KEEP THE PEACE that the great A. E. F. has helped to win. Or, if you prefer, you can enlist for service with the flag in Hawaii, Philippines, China, Alaska or Panama.

Choose Your Branch of the Service

The United States Army is made up of thirteen distinct branches, as follows: Infantry, Cavalry, Field Artillery, Ordnance Dept., Medical Dept. (including Veterinary Corps), Coast Artillery Corps, Signal Corps, Tank Corps, Air Service (including Balloon Corps), Motor Transport Corps, Quartermaster Corps, Corps of Engineers, and Construction Division. Find out what each of these branches offers you in pay and experience, then suit your own taste. Men of skilled trades are wanted. Men who have not yet learned trades are also wanted, and selected men will be given thorough instruction in trades of their own choosing. Earn while you learn.

Vocational Training in the Army Fits You for Success

Suppose you are a young man looking about you for a trade as a stepping stone to success in life. To learn such a trade you must either work for very low wages during your apprenticeship, or else go to a trade school; and in both these cases you have to find yourself while learning. Uncle Sam gives you your living, gives you the opportunity to learn a trade and pays you real money at the same time. And when you complete your enlistment and obtain your discharge, you find yourself a trained man if you have made use of your opportunity, and your services will be in demand wherever skilled men are employed. Among these skilled trades are the following:

LAND SURVEYING
AUTO REPAIRING
TELEPHONE REPAIRING ROAD CONSTRUCTION
WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY
TELEGRAPHY
SWITCHBOARD INSTALLATION
MOTOR MECHANICS (Air or Ground)
BAKING AND COOKING
BLACKSMITHING
WELDING
AIRPLANE MECHANICS
PLUMBING

The Army is run like a business, with hours for work and hours of freedom. The soldier off duty writes letters, smokes, plays baseball, pool, football or most any other game he likes; goes to the movies, or theatres; calls on his girl, if he has one—in fact, does about as he likes. Being in uniform, his self-respect as well as the rules of the Service demands that he conduct himself as a soldier and a gentleman. He has no difficulty in obtaining permission to leave the camp or post at proper times, and he may obtain leave when his turn comes. He meets agreeable people, including lots of nice girls at Hostess Houses, etc. He goes to dances, if he wants to. In fact, he usually has a better time than a civilian.

Call at the nearest recruiting station and ask all the questions you wish. You incur not the slightest obligation by doing so. Courteous non-commissioned officers will cheerfully tell you what you want to know and give you printed matter that you can look over at your home.

PESSOA SEES TIES BETWEEN AMERICAS

Brazil's New President Guest at Luncheon of Pan American Union.

WELCOMED BY McADOO

Ex-Railroad Administrator Favors Trying Government Ownership "Under Normal Conditions."

Dr. Epitacio Pessoa, President of Brazil, was the guest of honor at a luncheon of the Pan American Society of the United States at the Hotel Astor yesterday, where he was welcomed by ex-Secretary of the Treasury William G. McAdoo, John Bassett Moore, and others.

In his address Dr. Pessoa dwelt on the cordiality of the reception which he had received and said that he accepted it as a token of the great friendship between the two republics. Ex-Secretary McAdoo also spoke on the close relations between the two nations, and incidentally touched on the question of Government ownership, saying that he had never been really for or against it, but would be interested in seeing the plan tested under normal conditions. In his address of welcome, Dr. John Bassett Moore, who presided, said:

"In welcoming to the United States his Excellency Dr. Epitacio Pessoa, we greet you not only as the President-elect of one of the great American nations, but also as a man, who, by virtue of his character and attainments, stands in the first rank of American statesmen. A master of jurisprudence, a constructive contributor to the development of law, national and international, an accomplished publicist, and an orator of renown, he has exemplified in the Cabinet, on the bench and in the Senate, and as a member of international bodies, the possession of qualities of mind and of heart that inspire confidence, respect and a sense of security both home and abroad.

"Elevated by the suffrages of his fellow-countrymen to the chief magistracy of the United States of Brazil, he comes to us with the highest credentials, not only a friend from a friendly land, but also a pre-eminently fit representative of the ideas with which the name America has hitherto been distinctively identified in the world's political and moral order."

Dr. Pessoa was warmly applauded when he rose to his feet, and he said in reply:

"That which appeals the most to me in this reception is not the personal courtesy you do Brazil's representative, but the spirit of American confraternization which inspires it. It is a step toward the fulfillment of those ideals which carry out the purposes of the Pan American Society and to which you have already devoted much effort and sacrifice.

"Brazil's foreign policy has always been inspired by friendly sentiments toward America, and has tended with no idea of antagonizing the people of Europe toward an increasing understanding of the peoples of America. My country will, therefore, receive with the greatest sympathy every effort extended in this direction, come as it may from State associations or private individuals. That is why in Brazil we value so highly the Pan American Union, for we all know the zeal with which the union under John Bassett Moore's tireless activities has worked a closer understanding with the South American Republics.

"I thank the Pan American Society for having extended to me so much courtesy. As an American, and as a follower of the same principles that brighted its conception, I thank you for all you have done and are yet to do for the more intimate union of the nations of America."

Later in the day on special train Dr. Pessoa left for Niagara. From there he will go to Canada.

DUTCH CONDOLE WITH FOE.

Allies' Terms Condemned and Sympathy with Germany Expressed.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, June 26.—There has been no enthusiasm in Holland over the German acceptance of the Peace Treaty. As a matter of fact, there is a general feeling of condemnation of the Allies' terms and of sympathy for Germany's humiliation.

The Dutch press continues in the same strain of German propaganda. Het Vaderland says that Germany admits the guilt of the war, but asks if this recognition means more than the admission of a man half tortured to death, on the rack. It is unnecessary, the paper says, to revert to history, for the whole world will know how to value this admission of guilt. It then refers to the delivery of German war offenders, saying that this is serious, and that there is no question of delivering "Entente criminals."

Het Nieuwe van den Dag says that peace is hardly the word for the forced condition. It declares that Germany after all has succeeded in obtaining several concessions for which she asked, and that other important points will be negotiated for later, so that the treaty can be considered more as a beginning than an ending.

TO HONOR LOUIS MARSHALL.

Welcome Planned for Head of Jewish Peace Conference Delegation.

Plans for according a reception to Louis Marshall, leader of the Jewish delegation at the Peace Conference, who is expected home early next month, are being made by a committee composed of 1,000 men and women, representing Jewish organizations and activities throughout the country. The committee, which has taken the name of the man whom it will honor, has opened offices at 122 Fifth Avenue. Samuel Lamport is temporary Chairman and Bernard Semel Secretary.

Mr. Marshall went to Europe as a member of a delegation of the American Jewish Congress, to present to the Peace Conference the claims of the Jews. The committee announced yesterday that the reception to Mr. Marshall was in recognition not only of his present labors in behalf of his people, but because of his long and ardent championship of the cause of the Jews. Mr. Marshall is Chairman of the American Jewish Relief Committee, and of the American Jewish Committee, a member of the Executive Committee of the Jewish Welfare Board and President of Temple Emanu-El.

FEARS A MONTH'S DELAY.

HARBOR GRACE, N. F., June 26.—Very bad weather all the way across the Atlantic led to the postponement again today of the Handley-Page start for England.

Major Gran, the navigator of the expedition, basing his predictions upon a study of today's meteorological reports, expressed the fear that conditions may not justify a flight for another fortnight. It is feared that in the meantime the biplane, which is continuously exposed to the elements, it having been decided that a hangar could not be erected in time to house it, may deteriorate somewhat and lose the top notch of efficiency.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., June 26.—With the Raynor plane almost entirely rebuilt and ready for trial flights, Frederick Raynham announced today that he probably would again attempt to "jump off" on the transatlantic flight about the middle of July.

TURN TO THE ARMY ON LEAVING SCHOOL

Recruiting Is Stimulated as High School Boys Seek to Enter the Service.

TO CONTINUE EDUCATION

Navy Begins Campaign to Enlist Men for Service in the Atlantic Fleet.

Recruiting officers for the United States Army yesterday received applications from 200 men for enlistment in the various branches of the service. Of these seventy-one applicants were accepted. The east side contributed ninety-eight applicants.

The end of the school term has stimulated recruiting, and many young men who are leaving the high schools are entering the army. One reason for this condition, officers said, was that now, as never before, the army furnished the means of advanced education and the opportunity of learning as useful trade.

Six high school boys were accepted for service yesterday in the calvary, air service, and signal corps. Ignatius Fox of 53 East 104th Street was one of them who came to enlist. He said he had declined civilian employment to obtain an army training. In the air service Louis M. Weinberg of 75 West Ninety-second Street will have the opportunity of learning wireless telegraphy. He had just finished his second year in high school.

James A. Darling, recently graduated by a business college, enlisted in the Signal Corps, and Charles J. King, of 142 West Seventeenth Street, decided the air service would give him the training he needed to fit him for business. Albert J. Lestage of Brook Haven, L. I., when asked by the east side army recruiting sergeant why he enlisted, said:

"I love horses and I am ambitious to become a veterinarian, and I have gone as far in school as the family can afford to send me. My family said the one place to start my veterinarian education and at the same time receive as good pay or better than I could secure in a civil occupation, was in the cavalry branch of the new American army."

The navy has also begun a campaign to enlist men for the fleet now at anchor in the North River. The Navy Recruiting Station, 34 East Twenty-third Street, announced yesterday that it had been authorized by the Navy Department to make enlistments and send men direct to ships of the Atlantic Fleet now lying in the North River. The men accepted will be permitted to choose the ship upon which they wish to serve.

An army recruiting rally will be held at Grand Central Palace, it became known Saturday. Borough President Edgeman, Judge Clifford Grove of Texas, formerly in the service; Major S. T. Stewart and other officers will address the meeting.

OPPOSES RADICAL LAWS.

North Dakota Voting Against Non-partisan League Legislation.

FARGO, N. D., June 26.—First reports on the referendum election held today in North Dakota on seven measures of the Non-partisan League, passed by the last Legislature, show that the vote so far received was almost two to one against the measures.

Red Cross Worker a Suicide.

BERLIN, June 25. (Associated Press.)—Price Riggs of Petersburg, Ind., an enlisted man connected with the Red Cross mission here, committed suicide on June 23. The motive of the deed is unknown.

FINDS ARMY COURTS UNFAIR.

Colonel Ansell Says 90% of Cases Should Never Have Been Tried.

BEDFORD Ssprings, Penn., June 26. Ninety per cent. of the general court-martial cases of the American Army during the war never should have been tried, declared Lieut. Col. Samuel T. Ansell, former Judge Advocate of the army, in an address today before the twenty-fifth annual convention of the Pennsylvania Bar Association. Seventy per cent. of the cases, he said, were not well tried. "According to reasonable common sense and upholstered standard," adding that 20 per cent. were so poorly tried their record cannot be relied upon, and in all 10 per cent. of the convictions "were such as to shock the conscience."

Lieut. Col. Ansell declared that no lawyer who believes in or wants to see established justice by law can have confidence in or respect for the court-martial system of the United States during the war.

"The army of the United States," he said, "in so far as its system of military justice is concerned, still is in a condition of serfdom." The military code or articles of war, he added, utterly ignore the fact that the soldier still is a citizen and, as such, is entitled to fair trial and impartial administration of justice.

What soaking in water for several minutes does to your fingernails, shaving soap must do instantly to the beard.

Shaving soap never should be rubbed in-

EVEN men with heavy, wiry beards can stop rubbing in their shaving lather to soften the hair.

Rubbing in with the fingers often irritates the skin, yet it has been necessary in order to soften heavy beards. This is the reason shaving is almost torture to so many men.

The beard is composed of keratin, the same horn-like substance which makes the fingernails hard.

Each hair is covered with a coating of oil which must first be dissolved by the lather of your shaving soap, before the keratin of the beard can be reached and softened.

The action of softening the keratin can be performed by the soap itself without any mechanical aid. If the lather does its work properly, no rubbing in with the fingers is necessary. In fact, if the lather will not do its work properly, rubbing in with the fingers is but a poor substitute for lather efficiency.

Softens the beard instantly

To get the right kind of a shave for a heavy beard follow the treatment given below. The new Woodbury's Shaving Stick softens the beard thoroughly and instantly. The lather dissolves the oil film and the keratin quickly loses its toughness.

From the first moment that the brush is applied you will experience a pleasurable sensation of lather comfort that you have never before enjoyed.

The after-effect on the skin will be a welcome surprise, for the face is left smooth and refreshed.

Every druggist is ready to supply you with both the stick in the metal container at 35 cents and re-fills at 25 cents. The Andrew Jergens Company, New York, Cincinnati and Perth, Ontario.

The heavy wiry beard—how to shave it

If you have had trouble in softening your heavy, wiry beard, or have a tender skin that is made sore by the scraping and pulling of your razor, shave this way:

Examine your beard closely and determine in advance the direction of the grain.

In addition to moistening the face with warm water on the brush, as in ordinary lathering, moisten the end of your Woodbury stick before applying it; work the lather with the brush for a full minute. The additional time taken here will shorten the total time of your shave.

It is never necessary to rub in the creamy, thick-textured Woodbury lather with the fingers. It dissolves the oil film surrounding the hairs almost instantly, and works quickly to soften the keratin. It will surprise you how quickly your beard is made ready for the razor.

Never stretch the skin tight, either with the fingers or by tilting the head too much. When a tender skin is held taut, shaving is sure to make it sore. Always shave with the grain, using easy, diagonal strokes.

After shaving, rub the lather that remains on the brush lightly but fully into the pores. This cleanses and refreshes the skin—gives it that velvety, well-shaved feeling. Rinse first with warm water and then with cold. This closes the pores and stimulates the skin. Follow these suggestions and learn the real enjoyment of a cool, clean, comfortable shave in much less time than the usual shaving time.

The Science of Being Useful

Business is the state of being busy.

American business is the entire American people in the business of providing itself with a living.

Only through the usefulness of all can everything be done which must be done, and everyone rewarded who does it.

Swift & Company, with other great American businesses, interprets its mission as more than the mere Science of Making Money.

It realizes the surest way to make money is to prove its usefulness; that the more useful a business is the more successful it must be because it is a greater benefit to mankind.

Today's success of Swift & Company is a measure of the quantity and quality of its usefulness—of the number of people it helps, and the number of ways and the degrees in which it benefits them.

Here you pay one-third less for the finest Summer Suits in town—Moe Levy

Think how foolish it is to buy clothes where you pay two-thirds of your money for the Suit and where the other third goes to the middleman and the real estate man!

It's a waste of money—when you can get full dollar's worth of Clothes value here, where prices are NOT inflated with middlemen's profits and high rents. Also I sell to thousands of men—which means big volume, and volume means low prices.

No matter how much you pay, you can't buy more style than I give you; nor get finer all-wool fabrics; nor get better tailoring—then why not save that one-third? Buy your clothes here where a dollar brings you back a real dollar's worth of value.

M. L. Leader $18.50

You can't show me one place in New York where you will get styles as good or fabrics as fine as those I offer you at $18.50. It is indisputable proof that my economical selling plan DOES save you real money.

"Right-o" Clothes, $18.50 to $50

"Here's Right-o, fellows—styled especially for live-wires in a live-wire way. None of the freaks and frills, but all the snap, dash and swing that it is possible to put in a suit. Young bloods, and the older boys with young blood, find all the style they want in Right-o."

FOWLES ESTATE WORTH $1,179,854

Appraisal Delayed by Question Whether Fifth Avenue Art Dealer or Wife Died First.

WENT DOWN WITH LUSITANIA

Mrs. Fowles's Sister Gets Nearly a Quarter of the Whole—Daughters Receive $431,448 Each.

An appraisal of the estate of Charles Frederick Fowles of Scott & Fowles, Fifth Avenue art dealers, who, with his wife, Frances May Fowles, died on the Lusitania, was filed yesterday. The appraisal has been delayed since 1915 because of the necessity for determining whether Mr. Fowles or his wife died first. The report shows that Mr. Fowles left a net estate of $1,179,854. Of this sum $250,518 goes to Mrs. Fowles's sister, Dorothy Elizabeth Smith of London. The Court of Appeals, by a vote of four to three, reversed the Appellate Division and upheld the Surrogate's ruling that Mrs. Fowles survived her husband, and that 22½ per cent. of his estate went, under her will, to her sister.

The court ruling gives $431,448 each to Mr. Fowles's daughters by his first wife. They are Gertrude Frances Browne of 1 West Eighty-third Street, wife of Travis Browne, son of Stewart Browne, realty operator, and Mrs. Gladys May Bayliss of Chicago. Mrs. Browne has sued for a divorce, and has named her mother's sister, Dorothy Elizabeth Smith, as corespondent. She denies the charge.

The Fowles estate included $29 952 in cash, $254,675 in stocks and bonds, and $1,143,636 as the value of half the Scott & Fowles business. The report shows that the paintings owned by the corporation were appraised at $819,250, which was $297,348 less than the actual value of the pictures. This deduction was allowed because the corporation was heavily stocked with paintings when the war began, and the sinking of the Lusitania not only caused the death of the partner who was in closest touch with the customers, but broke the market for pictures because of the feeling that this country would be involved in the war. The profits for the three years before Mr. Fowles's death were: 1912, $311,536; 1914, $113,996; 1915, 106,000.

The list of paintings owned by Scott & Fowles shows that the following were the most prominent:

"Sheep on the Dunes," (Mauve,) $12,000; "Portrait of a Youth," (Rembrandt,) $21,000; "Portrait of Mrs. Arbuthnot," (Hoppner,) $35,250; "Guarding the Flock," (Millet,) $15,600; "Duke of Clarence," (Gainsborough,) $14,000; Mrs. Heron," (Romney,) $35,000; "Mrs. Dingwall," (Lawrence,) $28,000; "Woman Making Lace," (Maes,) $15,000; "Lady Hepburn," (Raeburn,) $35,000; "View in Westphalia," (Hobbema,) $42,000; "Head of a Young Man," (Memling,) $29,000; "Catherine Howard," (Raeburn,) $34,000; "Mrs. Fitzherbert," (Gainsborough,) $21,000; "A Sleeping Soldier," (Terborch,) $30,000; "A Fleet at Anchor," (Van de Velde,) $12,000, and "Mrs. Russell," (Raeburn,) $15,000.

Of the water colors, valued at $14,250, the best were Turner's "Boaneville" and "Audernach," worth $6,000 each. A collection of fifty-two pencil drawings by Sir Thomas Lawrence was appraised at $11,198.

CALL AN EX-CONVICT AT INQUIRY HERE

Witness at the Investigation of Conditions at the Dannemora State Hospital.

TELLS OF THE DARK CELL

Shur Declares He Was Kept In It for 8 Months—One Convict's Death to be Investigated.

The inquiry ordered by Governor Smith into conditions at the Dannemora State Hospital was begun yesterday in the office of the commissioner, George W. Alger, at 71 Broadway. Louis Greenspan, a lawyer of Saranac, the complainant in the case, asks for the removal of John R. Ross, Superintendent of the hospital, and the Assistant Superintendent, Dr. Dexter, on the allegation that they permitted insane convicts confined in the hospital to be treated with insulin.

Among the charges preferred against the administration of the hospital are that the prisoners do not receive sufficient food to sustain life, and that the rations have been so scanty and unsuited to the prisoners that many are daily losing weight. Other charges are that certain prisoners, namely, Scaly, Goldstein, Bishop, Belden, Levine, Green, and Larphy Greenspan, the complainant's brother, were subjected to brutal treatment, and that other prisoners were attacked with such violence that they died.

The complaint says that the prisoner Scaly was assaulted so violently by a guard that he died on the next day, that the prisoner named Goldstein was attacked by two keepers and his ribs crushed so that he, too, died; and that the prisoner Bishop was kept in the dark cell called by the inmates "double doors" for a long period, and that Greenspan had been "doped" so as to make it appear that he was insane when he was really sane. It is charged that harmful attendance and abuse of the officials made a practice of injecting drugs into prisoners to make it appear that they were insane. It is charged that Nathan Shur, a former inmate, testified yesterday that he was kept in the double door cell for three months, and that he had only sixty minutes of exercise in a week. The double door cell is twelve feet long, nine feet wide, and twenty-eight feet high, with a stone floor, and with no opening aside from the double doors except at the top, where there was a pane of glass six inches square. It is there the isolated prisoner is kept. Similar to the dark cell used in the prisons generally, in which unruly convicts are put in order to discipline them. The dark cell took the place of the stringing up machine and the lash when humiliations abolished physical punishments.

Shur said that he spent four years in Dannemora, and was released on May 1 at the end of a term of six and a half years. He was asked about the food served in Dannemora, and he compared it unfavorably with that served in Sing Sing prison. Explaining how he happened to be put in the punishment cell Shur told of a quarrel with another convict, whom he called a "stool pigeon." This is the prison term for an informer, one who receives favors from keepers to tell of misdeeds of other convicts, and is greatly hated by all. Shur said that before he was locked in the double door cell he received a hypodermic injection from a physician who no longer is connected with the hospital. The drug, he testified, made him ill for ten days, and during this period he lay unattended upon the stone floor of the cell. His food was given him, he said, by a keeper who pushed it in his cell with his foot.

For two weeks, the witness said, he remained in this cell and then a mattress was brought to him, but he needed exercise, and when he asked for it he was told by Supt. Ross, he said, that if he was allowed out of the cell he would have to wear a straitjacket. He refused to submit to this, he testified, but another week of the solitary confinement in the cell made him yield, and he submitted to the straitjacket in order to obtain exercise.

Discussing the death of Patrick Scaly, who it is alleged was killed by attendants in 1918, Shur said that Scaly had asked a keeper to change the food given him in the mess hall, that Scaly had been heard to say that the food was full of dirt, and that shortly after making this remark Scaly was dragged from the hall by two keepers. On the next day, Shur testified, Scaly was dead. The manner of Scaly's death is to be inquired into by the commission.

The witness said that Dr. North, former Superintendent of the hospital who was killed by an insane convict, was rarely in the hospital and seldom paid attention to his duties there. Replying to a question, the witness said:

"Dr. Ross will go the same way Dr. North did. He will be killed by some one of the men. He treats men worse than dogs."

Dr. A. A. Brill, who is assisting Mr. Alger in the inquiry, said that he thought the examination of witnesses would continue here for four or five days, and that probably Mr. Alger would then go to Dannemora and examine witnesses within the hospital walls and familiarize himself with the physical situation of the hospital. The inquiry will be resumed this morning.

82 WAR BRIDES ON ONE SHIP

With Them Are 19 War Children and One War Mother-in-Law.

The largest number of war brides which has arrived here on one ship came last night on the transport Harrisburg, which carried 2,499 passengers. There were eighty-two brides, nineteen children, and one mother-in-law. Forty-eight brides were the wives of soldiers, while thirty-four had sailor husbands. The army also led in the number of children, with a score of 16 to 1. It also claimed the mother-in-law.

The largest unit on board was the 1st Regiment, Air Service Mechanics, under command of Major David Phelps of Urbana, Ohio. He said the unit, which went overseas last July, has been making airplanes.

KLAW & ERLANGER TO END PARTNERSHIP

Marc Klaw Announces That Old Theatrical Firm Is on Eve of Its Dissolution.

HIS INTEREST NOT YET SOLD

Denied That Armour and Rosenwald Are Buyers—Erlanger to Continue Vast Booking—Each to Produce.

The first formal announcement of the impending dissolution of the firm of Klaw & Erlanger was made last night by Marc Klaw. Mr. Klaw, correcting an erroneous announcement of the sale of his interests published Wednesday in a morning paper, made the following statement:

"Mr. Erlanger and I are on the eve of a separation of our interests. To that extent these newspaper articles are correct. Beyond that all is wildest guesswork.

"I have several plays ready for rehearsal, all of which, I may add, have been acquired with the knowledge and consent of Mr. Erlanger. If there was any buying or selling of the interests of Klaw & Erlanger up to date, I have not been brought into the conference; and I have a wild impression that I am a very important party of either the first or second part."

Mr. Klaw said also that Levi Mayer, who had been represented as Mr. Erlanger's personal counsel, had been general counsel for the firm of Klaw & Erlanger for fourteen years, receiving fees equally from the two partners. Mr. Klaw's last conversation with Mr. Mayer, he said, had been on New Year's Day, up to which time "Mr. Mayer had been trying to mediate our differences."

J. Ogden Armour Not Interested.

Mr. Mayer arrived Wednesday from Chicago, but said that it was not the Klaw & Erlanger matter which had brought him to New York. When questioned about the report that J. Ogden Armour and Julius Rosenwald of Chicago were about to purchase Mr. Klaw's interests, Mr. Mayer authorized the following statement on behalf of Mr. Armour, for whom he is general counsel.

"Mr. Armour is in no way, directly or indirectly, interested, and he will in no way, directly or indirectly, become interested in this proposition."

Word from Chicago last night said that Mr. Rosenwald also denied any intention of purchasing the Klaw interests, and Marc Klaw also said that he knew nothing of any Chicago combination.

In the meantime Mr. Erlanger, like Mr. Klaw, continues to make his plans for next season as an independent producer. He has recently announced that Chauncey Olcott would be seen under his individual management for a period of two years, and that he will be seen early next season in a revival of "Ma-cushla," by Rida Johnson Young.

Erlanger to Carry on Booking.

When the actual separation of the Klaw & Erlanger interests arrives it is generally believed by theatrical people that it will be Mr. Klaw whose interests will be purchased, and that the vast booking business of the firm will be carried on by Mr. Erlanger. Existing contracts with a number of big producers, some of which have nearly two years to run, make it necessary that the booking exchange should be continued, regardless of the individual plans of the two men to continue as producers. Mr. Klaw made it clear, in his statement last night, that his own career as a producer will be independent of that of his son, Joseph Klaw, who will also make a number of productions.

Marc Klaw and A. L. Erlanger have been in partnership for thirty years, and together built up the great booking system which bears their names, in addition to producing together scores of plays, musical comedies, and spectacles. They were supreme in the theatrical field, with complete control of the best theatres of the country, until the rise of the Shuberts began to challenge their monopoly.

STADIUM CONCERTS NEAR.

Adolph Lewisohn Entertains Committee at a Musicale.

Many persons interested in better Summer music for New York were guests of Adolph Lewisohn at his home, 881 Fifth Avenue, yesterday afternoon, when the Maintenance Committee of the Stadium Symphony Orchestra was entertained on the conclusion of its labors for the concerts, which start next Monday.

A musical program was provided by Elias Breeskin, violin; Philip Gordon, piano, and Gladys Axman, soprano.

Mr. Lewisohn, addressing his guests, said: "I hope and expect you will see to it that we have an overflow meeting every night for the next eight weeks of concerts at our Stadium."

Mr. de Segurola, Chairman of the Maintenance Committee, said: "To use a familiar expression, our plan of Summer concerts is the right thing at the right time, in the right place, the open air, and with the right spirit behind it."

Among those present were Mrs. Charles Guggenheimer, Mrs. Newbold Le Roy Edgar, Mrs. William Thorner, Mrs. Frederick Nathan, Mrs. Louise de Cravioto, Anna Fitziu, Mrs. Sulsberger, Mrs. Julian Edwards, and Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Volpe.

Benefit for Minnie L. Cummings.

A testimonial performance will be given at the Hotel Astor next week in aid of Mrs. Millie L. Cummings, who was instrumental in the founding of the Actors' Fund of America, a generation ago, and has recently been stricken with blindness. The performance is being arranged by William Gillette, Alexander Miller, John W. Carroll, Secretary of the New York Lodge of Elks; Mrs. H. Salisbury, Mrs. W. W. Beardsley, and others. Mrs. Cummings made her stage debut in 1877 at the old Booth Theatre and played many celebrated rôles during her career.

20-KARAT DIAMOND IN MILLHISER GEMS

Police Throughout Country Warned to Look for Stone Set in Platinum Ring.

SUSPECT WOMAN IN THEFT

Detectives Fear Large Jewel May Be Cut Into Smaller Stones to Make Disposal Easy.

Although detectives working on the robbery of the Millhiser jewels from the safe deposit vault at the Hotel Biltmore, between May 20 and June 13, are still reluctant to give out information regarding their activities, it became known yesterday that one piece of jewelry which was stolen was a platinum ring in which was set a twenty-karat diamond.

This is the second jewel of the lot, the total value of which has been reported to be $250,000, to be made public. The other was a pearl necklace, said to be worth about $100,000. The value of the large diamond could not be learned, as Mrs. Clarence Millhiser, the rightful owner, was not at her rooms at the St. Regis last night, and her counsel, John B. Stanchfield, refused to comment on the case. He said a statement would be given out today.

One theory advanced by a detective was that a woman had worked with a band of international thieves in executing the robbery. He expressed the belief that the thieves knew of the presence of the Millhiser gems in the strong box, and that the theft had been planned perhaps months ahead. The reason for not taking all the jewelry in the box was to delay discovery, he believed, until the stolen gems had been disposed of.

The detectives believe that the large diamond probably will be cut up into small stones, which more easily may be disposed of. One detective said that by this time the stone probably has been taken to some other city, possibly in the West. Another ventured that it may have been sent to Europe.

STATE NEEDS 2,500 NURSES.

Supply to be Increased by Opening of New Hospitals.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., June 26.—Twenty-five hundred nurses are needed in New York State in addition to the 800 now in service, declared Augustus N. Downing, Assistant Commissioner of Higher Education, before the closing session of the State Sanitary Officers and Public Health Nurses here today.

Tribute to the efficient work of the nurses was paid by the Commissioner, who stated that in the near future there would be hospitals opened in the State where girls could begin training as nurses, with only one year in high school as a foundation.

Abram L. Elkus, former Ambassador to Turkey, highly commended the work of nurses in the Near East, and Professor Winslow of Yale University said public health work was the greatest now before the American people.

Tuxedo Hospital at Tuxedo Park, N. Y.

Augustus D. Juilliard was born at Canton, Ohio, 83 years ago, having been descended from an old Huguenot family. The greater part of his life, however, was identified with New York, where for many years he was head of A. D. Juilliard & Co., one of the oldest and best known textile commission houses in the city. In addition he was for a long time a notable factor in the leading banking, trust, and insurance companies. He was a Director or Trustee in a long list of these institutions, in which were included the Central Union Trust Company, the Chemical National Bank, the Guaranty Trust Company, the Mutual Life Insurance Company, National Bank of Commerce, New York Life Insurance Company, and the Title Guaranty and Trust Company. He was also a member of the Chamber of Commerce. He belonged to the Metropolitan, Union League, Tuxedo, City, Republican, Merchants, and New York Athletic Clubs; the Ohio Society of New York, and the Huguenot Society of America. His residence was at Tuxedo Park, N. Y. He also had a town house at 11 West Fifty-seventh Street.

The Epidemic Breeder

The unsanitary garbage can is a constant menace to life and health.

It always contains uncounted millions of disease germs.

Flies, natural spreaders of disease, gather around the garbage can, and children play near it.

Lysol Disinfectant

Keep some Lysol Disinfectant in your garbage can all the time. It will then be germ-proof. For no germ, no matter what its nature, can live an instant in the presence of Lysol Disinfectant. And some instinct keeps flies away from Lysol Disinfectant.

Use Lysol Disinfectant also to keep toilet, sinks, drains and dark, damp, sunless corners free from germ-life.

A 50c bottle makes 5 gallons of powerful disinfectant; a 25c bottle makes 2 gallons.

Lysol Disinfectant is also invaluable for Personal Hygiene.

Lysol Toilet Soap
Contains the necessary proportion of the antiseptic ingredients of Lysol Disinfectant to protect the skin from germ infection. It is refreshingly soothing and healing and helpful for improving the skin. Ask your dealer. If he hasn't it, ask him to order it for you.

Lysol Shaving Cream
Contains the necessary proportion of the antiseptic ingredients of Lysol Disinfectant to kill germs on razor and shaving-brush (where germs abound) and to guard the tiny cuts from infection, and give an antiseptic shave. If your dealer hasn't it, ask him to order a supply for you.

THE CROWN PRINCE RETURNS.

It is far from impossible that young FREDERICK WILLIAM HOHENZOLLERN is sufficiently tinctured with admiration for himself and his family traditions to feel that his return from Wieringen is a fitting parallel to the return from Elba. Why otherwise has he returned to Germany? It has been generally supposed that he was to be turned over to the Allies with other German war offenders, to be tried in France for larceny. This would be an indecorous fate for the former heir to the world's most powerful throne; but in view of the reluctance of the Dutch to part with their German visitors, (though they seem to have been rather careless about preventing them from going of their own accord,) it seems that the Crown Prince's chances of being given up are better if he goes back to Germany than if he had stayed in Holland. The Ebert Government would conceivably surrender him, particularly if it were threatened with coercion; and it would be easier to talk coercion to Germany than to the Netherlands. Some explanation, however, the Dutch certainly owe us for permitting the escape of an interned officer while a state of war still exists.

He has not gone back in expectation of being allowed to remain in Germany as a private citizen—that much seems certain. He goes back at a time when there are riots in German cities, when Germans are universally dissatisfied with the terms of peace, and willing to accept them only because they must. The Junkers, the land-holding aristocrats, the officers of the old military caste, are not so sure that there is no way out; they are destroying property that the Peace Treaty promises to give up, they are leading the movement for no surrender. The likelihood of a reactionary coup d'état has seemed much stronger in the last few days; the Majority Socialist Party has discredited itself with the working classes by failing to undertake any real reforms, by its dalliance with the "dark forces" of the old days; and it has damned itself with these dark forces by willingness to sign the treaty. The time is as ripe as it ever will be—now while public indignation is still hot—for an attempt to restore the monarchy; so the "hero" of Verdun and the Aisne appears as the Man on Horseback.

Perhaps this is a mistaken interpretation, but it is the only one that seems at all plausible. That the old militaristic class has been hoping for a chance to bring back the monarchy is undisputed; the only doubt is as to the possibility of the accomplishment and the desirability of the Crown Prince as leader of the movement. FREDERICK WILLIAM is no popular figure, outside certain army circles; still, he cannot be charged with direct responsibility for the disastrous war, as could the Kaiser. As to the chance of success, it must seem to outsiders as if the Junkers are letting their hopes run away from them. HINDENBURG has resigned as head of the army. His ostensible reason is that he had promised the republican authorities to stay in charge during the critical transition period, and now that peace is to be signed he will withdraw and leave the command of a German Army that must be greatly different in future to men more in sympathy with the new order. On the face of it, this is sound enough; but the resignation just at this time—when peace is not yet signed—arouses some suspicion.

But HINDENBURG's letter to NOSKE deserves more attention. This is a technical estimate of the military situation, presented to the Minister of National Defense, who had apparently inquired about the possibilities of resistance. HINDENBURG says that Germany could reconquer Posen, but would be helpless in the west; she could beat Poland, but not France. There is no doubt about this; and the Allies have notified the German Government that an attack on Poland will be resisted by the whole alliance. A monarchist counter-revolution would represent resistance to the peace terms; for resentment of these terms must give it a large part of its strength. HINDENBURG, who no doubt would be glad to see a Kaiser in Berlin, says that resistance would be unprofitable; but he adds, "I am a "soldier, and prefer an honorable fall "to an ignominious peace." If the Crown Prince has come back to head a Junker reactionary movement, he must try to get better peace terms and get them by force. Conceivably, he thinks that he can do what NAPOLEON could not; but it may be wondered how many even of the officers of the old army have so much confidence in him. He may return, but he cannot "come back."

If his return is followed by a monarchist reaction, it will mean more delay and confusion in bringing the world back to peace; the Ebert Government is objectionable enough, but it is perhaps less difficult to deal with than anything else the Germans could offer at present. It is certainly preferable to a Germany torn by civil war with no central authority which can claim to represent the whole people, and that is what we may soon see. Nevertheless, there was a strong probability that the imperialist forces would try to upset the republic sooner or later; and if they are going to do it they may as well do it now and get it over. For they are almost certain to fail, in the long run, and there is hope that in the course of their failure a good many stiff-necked militarists who would be irreconcilable enemies of a just peace may be disposed of or brought to reason by other Germans. A Germany minus the class which would look favorably on the restoration of the HOHENZOLLERNS would be a much better neighbor for the rest of the world.

CONTINUOUS DRAMA.

The drama on Broadway seems destined to become a continuous performance. Time was when the theatres remained dark three months and more. The "regular" season was not supposed to open until about Oct. 1, when JOHN DREW or MAUDE ADAMS or WILLIAM GILLETTE threw wide the portal of the Empire to the latest success from London. With the increasing vogue of native plays, Labor Day became the accepted date. In 1917 a new record was set by a farce that opened during the first week of August; and in 1918 "Friendly Enemies" set the day forward to the third week of July. Now, though we are still in June, "the first gun of the new season" is advertised for next Saturday, while many of last Winter's plays are still running. Apparently there is to be no close season for laboring critic or for the public.

From the point of view of theatrical folk there is abundant reason for the change. During a good quarter of the year forty-odd houses have lain unproductive in the heart of Broadway, while hundreds of actors were idle. But what of the public—which is after all, the critical factor in the situation? It cannot be wholly averse to mid-Summer playgoing, or we should not have this steady advance in the date of opening.

Doubtless this all-Summer opening of Broadway is related to the fact that Europe is closed to the traveler. Summer hotels and Summer residential districts are populous with people who in normal times would be abroad. They come periodically to town for shopping and to vary the round of country life. Demobilization does its part. Transports are arriving in a steady stream, and there is another stream of relatives and friends who come on to New York to welcome their soldiers. In some measure, at least, the present time is abnormal. But the lengthening of the dramatic season began long before the war, and is probably destined to outlive it.

Our hot spells are terrific while they last, and they last sometimes for weeks together. But four seasons out of five keep to the old rule of "spells" limited to three scorching days, with considerable stretches between which are cool, clear, and delightful. The time may yet come when the public will look to the theatres for amusement whenever the weather is favorable, and when the managers will learn that their doors may be temporarily closed during the worst nights, without serious damage to a Summer run. But it may be doubted whether the plays offered will ever differ in quality from what they have thus far been—popular comedy and melodrama. For the highest brow loses much of its altitude under the reign of the dog star.

THE NEW STATE DEPARTMENT.

Up to the time that the appointment of FRANK L. POLK as Under Secretary of State was announced, many fairly careful newspaper readers did not know that such an office had been created. This may be due to the fact that there was no debate in Congress on the proposal, that it was reported favorably and adopted unanimously. Hitherto the State Department has been headed by a Secretary and three Assistant Secretaries. These still remain, but there have been created in addition an Under Secretary of State, who takes precedence over the three Assistant Secretaries; a Director of the Consular Service, and numerous additional officers.

This important change was made in the Legislative, Executive, and Judicial Appropriation bill at the last session, and was approved March 1, which makes these provisions:

"For Secretary of State, $12,000; Under Secretary of State, to be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, $7,500; Assistant Secretary, $5,000; Second and Third Assistant Secretaries, at $4,500 each; Director of the Consular Service, $4,500; officers to aid in important drafting work—five at $4,500 each, ten at $3,500 each, fourteen at $3,000 each, seventeen at $2,500 each, to be appointed by the Secretary, any one of whom may be employed as Chief of Division of Far Eastern, Latin American, Near Eastern or European Affairs, or upon other work in connection with foreign relations, &c.

Congress had already approved a recommendation by Secretary LANSING creating the office of Under Secretary of State. The office of Counselor is abolished. It will be seen that the changes made amount to an entire reorganization of the State Department. That was what Secretary LANSING asked for in his letter to Congress of Nov. 7, 1918, in which he said: "The "department as at present organized "and manned is utterly incapable of "successfully undertaking the task "with which it is confronted, and in "a lesser degree this is also true of "the Diplomatic and Consular Services."

Mr. LANSING reminded Congress that as a result of the war the United States had come to occupy a position of singular importance and responsibility in foreign affairs. Events had followed each other so rapidly that "our unsought position "has resulted before we were fully "awake to the real significance of "the worldwide changes which cre-"ated it." He continued:

Inasmuch as the future peace of the world must rest in the main upon more intimate acquaintance, closer relations, and fuller and friendlier discussion of the problems that arise from time to time, the part which the United States must henceforth play in international affairs must be based upon undisputed facts and mature and intelligent discussion of them. The gathering of information of a political, economic, industrial, and technical nature, and the consideration of it in the light of the conditions abroad upon which it bears, makes necessary an organization adequate, intelligent, and well-equipped to insure prompt and trustworthy results.

He paid a high tribute to the work of all three branches under the sudden strain imposed upon them by the war, but declared that it was not sufficiently numerous nor adequately compensated to deal successfully with the problems before us. "A large "increase in personnel and an ad-"vance in salaries are imperative if "we are to do in a creditable way "that which the world expects "of us." He summarized his object as follows:

It is my purpose to urge the establishment in this department of an organization capable of adapting and utilizing in the international relations of this Government and in diplomatic discussions the work being done and the material being collected in other departments of the Government for their particular purposes, in addition to carrying on such investigations as this department may find it necessary to conduct independently.

The large increase in the number of drafting officers was explained by Mr. LANSING on the ground that vital national interests were in jeopardy unless a sufficient number of competent officers were ready to give them the attention they required. "The work to be done is beyond the ability of clerks." In short, the old State Department is gone, and in its place we are to see a great division of the Government, such as would not have been dreamed of two years ago.

HOW LARGE AN ARMY?

The size of the army for the fiscal year 1920 is to be settled in conference, the Senate having voted for 400,000 and the House for 300,000 men. Secretary BAKER's proposal of a force of 509,000, the estimate of the General Staff, received but little support in Congress. It is to be noted that when the House Military Affairs Committee reported a bill for an army of 400,000 men early in June, Chairman KAHN made this explanation: "The bill does not attempt to formu-"late a military policy or deal with "any controversial matters. These "will be dealt with in a bill that will "be considered in the Fall." Considerations of economy prompted the House to fix upon 300,000 men as adequate for the United States Army in the transition and reconstruction period. The professional view is that for the present a complement of about 500,000 men is necessary. When Secretary BAKER appeared before the Senate Military Affairs Committee on June 16 he said:

We must keep a necessary force to patrol our outlying possessions, keep a force in TEXAS, in the United States as custodians and guards of the tremendous amount of army property, and in the coast defenses. The War Department has a vast accumulation of stores, both military and non-military, and a great many men are needed for the purpose of watching over this property. There are also many sick and wounded, with the necessary doctors, nurses, and attendants and guards, who must be maintained. In addition, we have enormous supplies in France which the French Government can't permit us to sell in the market immediately.

This list of "musts" seems rather imposing until analyzed. There need be only a light "patrol" of "our outlying possessions," which have proved their loyalty during the war handsomely. A strong guard should not be necessary to take care of Government property in this country acquired in the last two years. The coast defenses—those on the Atlantic and the Gulf, at least—can get along with the protection afforded by the navy and detachments of no great strength. Hospital forces can be gradually reduced, and Government property in France would be safe with a few regiments. Why half a million men and 9,000 more for the fiscal year 1920? General MARCH had an answer not furnished by Secretary BAKER. The Chief of Staff said that "besides the mere occupation needs "there has been planned a limited "system of universal training, and "with the personnel to train these "men it will take an army of 500,000 "men." But are there not great numbers of National Guard and National Army officers mustered out who could help in the training?

The question remaining is whether the temporary army shall have a strength of 400,000 or of 300,000 men, or of less than the greater and more than the smaller number. A compromise is indicated. What police force the League of Nations may decide on for each of its members is not relevant just now. That is a matter for the future. Congress is concerned with the needs of a temporary United States Army during the fiscal year 1920. It is a practical question without complications, unless the Germans refuse to sign the Peace Treaty and prefer the occupation of their territory by the Allies. If the Germans sign, Congress should be able to determine without much discussion how large an army will be needed for all the duties required of the land forces, which, however, should not be stinted with regard to the special organizations and equipment acquired during the war—transport, aviation, chemical service, and so on. Rational economy in the administration of the Government is expected by the people, and they will not tolerate an inflated military establishment.

A JUST JUDGE.

Magistrate GRISMAR at Coney Island has fought a valiant rear-guard action in the lost battle for personal liberty. A woman was brought into his court, charged with the heinous offense of wearing a bathing suit on the street—but under a complete and decorous equipment of street clothing. Her culpability was discovered by a vigilant policeman who detected the bathing suit, and who arrested the woman's husband for objecting to his methods. Now the Magistrate holds that the right of the citizen to self-determination in undergarments should be inviolate, so long as outer garments meet the demands of propriety; that wearing a bathing suit is a crime only in some circumstances; and that the police are not entitled to go about disrobing citizens to find out if they are wearing anything offensive to the official moral sense.

"Thus freedom now so seldom "wakes, the only throb she gives is "when some heart indignant breaks to "show that still she lives." Though our legislative bodies will no doubt hasten to remedy the oversight, it is a relief to feel that for a few days at least there is something which is not a crime.

STREET CAR FARES AND TRANSFERS.

The position taken by the city administration in the street car troubles is that the letter of the law and the contract must and should control the relations of all concerned, no allowance being made for other conditions, not existing when the contract was made, however equitable or important their recognition may be. If that policy throws the companies into bankruptcy the alleged effect would be to enable the city to embark upon city operation of the subways, thus profiting the city and the riders at the cost of the owners of securities. That is not conceded regarding the subways, apart from the ethics of the procedure, and doubt is cast upon it regarding the street car lines by the proceedings before Judge MAYER in the Federal Court.

The Judge plainly indicated that, unless proposals were made for enlarging the companies' income by a charge for transfers, he would entertain a motion for foreclosure on default of interest payment. That would dissolve the system giving transfers, and would make two rides cost two nickels. The law of that decision applies equally to other cases with like facts, and the entire transfer system is endangered by the policy of seeking profit by the embarrassment of companies which in this respect are not blameworthy. If riders should be compelled to pay two nickels—or more in Brooklyn—as the result of the attempt to make the companies do business at a loss the popularity of the proposal would receive a chill, and those who approved it might incur public displeasure.

The extenuation of the administration's policy is that the companies juggled their securities in earlier years, and that the proprietors have thereby made great profits which they ought to be made to give up. That reasoning does not apply to deficits in operating expenses, nor to the 1,600 owners of bonds in sums of less than $10,000 apiece who were said in court to be dependent upon the interest upon bonds not earned. In short, the reasoning is not applicable at all, because, as Mr. TAFT has said, the wrongs by the companies are balanced by the wrongs against the companies by the public authorities. There is superabundant proof of this; the prosecution of the companies of this city being a small part of a universal trouble. In Connecticut a legislative inquiry reported that there were only 13.8 miles of solvent street railway in the State, and among the twelve reasons given not one related to fault of the companies. Even more convincing is the fact that, according to The Electric Railway Journal, 350 cities have allowed increases of fare, each one being practically a confession that too much was asked from the companies for the fares they had been allowed to collect.

That such is the case in this city appears from the fact that the companies were asked to pay for the privilege of carrying passengers over the city's bridges. That lengthened the haul without increasing the fare, at a cost to one company of $127,000. The benefit to the city was the increase of the usefulness of its bridges, extended in this case to thirteen million riders yearly. If all the companies should refuse to carry passengers across the bridges without charging for the ride the city would lose the benefits to its citizens for which a hundred millions were spent in bridges, and the riders would have to pay what would amount to a transfer charge. Yet the city asks the companies to pay rent on the bridges for the privilege of losing money, and collects taxes on the franchise. In the case of the Brooklyn company complaint was made ten years ago that it had spent $5,000,000 in these bridge costs, and the bill is still running.

To our city administration and local Public Service Commission as yet, such facts as these are not convincing, although in the Second District of New York the Public Service Commission has increased fares in over one-half the cities. Are the riders so foolish as to think, because they long have had more than they have paid for that therefore they can hope to do so indefinitely? The courts are not concerned with the popularity of bankrupting the companies, and the result of the appeal to the letter of the law may be such as to suggest that it would be prudent to present to the court some compromise, preserving as much of the transfer privilege as may be consistent with fair consideration of the equities of the case.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Influenza's High Mortality.

Dr. ALVAH H. DOTY, writing from his large knowledge and long experience, contributes to the current issue of The New York Medical Record an article equally interesting and important on right and wrong methods of dealing with communicable diseases, especially by health boards and other public officials. He uses as his text, or leading illustration, last year's influenza epidemic, and presents, in explanation of its high mortality, the fact that the infection came to this country at a time when several years of high nervous tension, combined with a reduced diet and the general eating in considerable quantities of cereals that are not adequate or even innocuous substitutes for wheat, had appreciably reduced the resisting powers of practically our whole population.

That the influenza deaths were especially numerous in our training camps, he insists, does not impugn the validity of this theory, and it should be surprising only to those unaware that many of the recruits, far from being exemplars of youthful health and strength, were under-nourished and anaemic. They were accepted for military service, not for what they were when drafted, but for what they could be and were made by good food, intelligent exercise, and an outdoor life. The epidemic came before the change had been effected, and naturally the mortality in the camps was high. A mystery that has puzzled many is thus, if not wholly cleared up, at least rendered much less dark.

Unscientific Measures of Protection.

As is well known, Dr. DOTY has no respect for, and little patience with, the "fomites" theory of infection, and hence, in this article as often before, he assails as useless or worse many of the most commonly used measures supposed to be protective. He says, for instance, that it was a mistake to close schools, churches, and places of amusement while the epidemic was in progress, the reason given by him being that children and adults gathered in them are in less danger of infection than in the less well regulated and supervised places where they assemble when barred from these places.

Far better than closure would have been a careful and competent examination of those present and the immediate segregation of the light, ambulant cases of illness by which all infections are chiefly distributed. For the wearing of face masks by persons not thoroughly instructed as to their possibilities and limitations Dr. DOTY has only condemnation. The fumigation and disinfection of houses and public vehicles Dr. DOTY declares to be mostly waste of time and money. Disease, in his opinion, is never carried by things, but always by persons. Rag pickers and sorters are as healthy as any other class of people, and Treasury employes who handle great quantities of unclean paper money suffer no ill effects from it.

Such safety from infection as can be attained, Dr. DOTY says, will come from the education of the general public in the true methods of guarding against it. The instruction now given is often unwise and more often so contradictory as to be only confusing to those who receive it. Health teaching should be standardized and simplified, and it should be far better distributed than now.

An Exploit Worthy of Notice.

One cannot but regret that no name appeared in the dispatch from Taurus telling only the briefly how a gallant midshipman—the temptation is to call him little, though he was probably a well-grown youth—boarded four German destroyers, one after another, and by making persuasive gestures with a rifle caused their crews to close the valves they had opened. Thus were the four destroyers kept afloat till they could be [illegible].

Some twenty in all of these same craft were brought to shore, but it is not recorded in the case of the others that the foiling of German treachery was accomplished by a midshipman, and therefore their preservation from the plotted fate does not appeal so strongly to the imagination.

It would be pleasant to believe that this particular Admiral in the bud was alone when he performed his astonishing feat. The chances are that he was not—that he had several willing tars to man whatever boat it was he used in his hurried voyaging about the bay of Scapa Flow. It is permissible, however, and even a duty, to be convinced that it was his rifle—and the stern blue eye that looked along its barrel—that made the Germans obey orders.

Doubtless the German sailors resented his interference with the achievement of their highly characteristic plan, but it is not at all incredible that they did what the boy told them to do. They had, as so often before, the excuse of "military necessity." There are crews, of course, that, instead of obeying, would have made a rush for him; but—well, that sort of rashness couldn't be expected of men who brought a great fleet of warships across the North Sea, and, without firing a shot, handed it over to their most hated foe.

They Have Heard That Before.

That there was some good advice in the letter sent to the Mexicans by Dr. DE VALERA cannot be denied. "Having established a government of the people by the people," he wrote in response to the request of a Mexico City daily for a few sympathetic words from him, "let them give it due obedience. That is a necessary condition of progress and ordered peace."

It is, indeed, and truth is no less truth just because it is uttered by the President of a non-existent republic. But whether Dr. DE VALERA's advice was as tactful as it was sound is a question to be answered by the Mexicans themselves. It is at least possible, however, that they may not be filled with joy at having a besetting sin of theirs so bluntly pointed out. And possibly it was not advice of any kind that they wanted. Few people do, and good advice is usually of all the least welcome. It's dull stuff, and to heed it is never easy or pleasant.

The Ode at Harvard.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The writer of the editorial article on Poetry, Bliss Perry, and Bolshevism evidently did not get his education at Harvard. Please advise him that the seniors at Harvard elect a poet and an odist. (Sometimes both are poets. Then there are lean years when only parents and friends so dignify them.) But their function is distinct; the poet to write a poem, the odist to compose an ode after the manner of Samuel Gilman, read first by the odist and then sung to the air of "Fair Harvard" by the assemblage under the baton of the chorister, also an elected officer. In this case, the correspondents were right. Bushnell, the odist, read his ode, which, by the way, was not in rhyme. Then came the second innovation as described by your writer; and finally the singing of the words of the ode.

The Lexow Investigation.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the course of a recent editorial article commenting on the late William S. Devery, THE TIMES says: "He [Devery] was one of the men held up to obloquy by the Lexow investigation, but that investigation never did much harm to any of the men it exposed, except poor Captain Stephenson, whose crime was accepting peaches and other bribes from merchants for letting them encroach on the sidewalks."

It was not the object of the Lexow investigation to harm Devery or any other member of the force, but to harm the entire department by proving that it was a thoroughly corrupt institution in cahoots with the criminal classes. This it did effectually, with two notable results, the issuance of a Grand Jury presentment against the department and the defeat of Tammany at the next election.

A Class Record.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The war record of the class of 1917 of Williams College, as officially announced at commencement on Monday last, is one which not only makes every Williams man thrill with pride but it should warm the heart of every American who is inspired by the high achievement of his young countrymen. That class graduated 108 men in June, 1917. Of these, 101 entered the military service of the nation. Of the other two, one was in the public service and was not permitted to resign, and the other was a cripple. Before the armistice was signed even the latter was driving an ambulance in connection with an army camp.

WHILE THE INK IS WET.

Yes! They will sign, as men in honor crushed;
Their stubborn hearts will yield with manly grace,
Acknowledging the guilt for which men
blushed
With shame's red fire suffusing every face.
The craven hand will write with promise fair;
The truths they sign they never will forget.
Their vanquished souls will give their pledges there—
And they will keep them—*while the ink
is wet.*

They who would be o'er all the earth the lord,
Who dreamed proud dreams to conquer
worlds of men;
Who sought to rule with fire and blood and sword,
Can not be held to honor by the pen.
Their sword is broken, but the cunning mind
With mad ambition will new plans unfold
To make them victors over all their kind.
Where steel has failed will come brains, trade, and gold.

Inviolate, their homes and mills and mines!
Untouched, their moving wheels turn night and day!
What though we strive with our colossal fines
To punish them—the years will slip away;
And if we break our undivided front,
Nor keep our war-won friends through days of peace,
The time will come when we must bear the brunt
Of secret warfare that will never cease.
There's but one thing to do—the way is clear!
Stand firm with those who fought with us and died.
Keep up the splendid tie war made so
dear,
Nor let our friendship ever be denied!
And as for those who plunged the world
in woe,
Who murdered, pillaged, robbed without regret;
We now must treat them as a fallen foe
And trust them wholly—*while the ink
is wet!*

JUGOSLAVS IN ITALY.

A Statement by the War Office—Violence Feared in a Plebiscite.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

An official statement issued by the Italian Ministry of War has direct and important reference to allegations made in a letter in THE TIMES, signed by George Perich, which once more reiterated that 20,000 Jugoslavs taken prisoners by Italy had volunteered to fight with the Italian Army against the Austrians, but that this proffered co-operation was refused deliberately "in order "that the Italians might more easily appropriate" the lands of the Jugoslavs. Regarding this unsupported charge, we beg to call your attention to a literal translation of a memorandum issued by the Ministry of War, which is as follows:

"No one has ever thought of constituting fighting units with prisoners or deserters of Jugoslav nationality. During the last year of the war the Italian intelligence officers attempted to form so-called 'approaching' squads with Jugoslav prisoners. These squads were not expected to fight, but should have tried to communicate with their fellow-soldiers in the enemy lines. For this purpose the intelligence officers went to the prison camps to enlist Jugoslav prisoners, and they succeeded in enlisting about 900 men, who were allured partly by the opportunity of changing from the monotonous condition of prisoners, others for mercenary consideration, and others for genuine hatred against the Austro-Hungarian Empire. These 900 men were divided into six units of various strength and sent to the rear lines, ready to be put into operation, but the Jugoslav delegates in Italy, being informed of the existence of these squads, decided to take advantage of their presence in Italian lines, and instructed them to refuse to serve Italy until they were recognized as members of an allied nation.

"Although the conception of a Jugoslav nation was entirely unknown to the prisoners, they were glad to obey the orders of the Jugoslav delegates because it kept them from the risks of their mission as elements of the Italian Intelligence Office. At the conclusion of the armistice, which was signed shortly after, these events had taken place, all these men were allowed to return to their country in compliance with a promise which had been given them at the time they had enlisted with the Italian Intelligence Office, although they rendered the army no service."

Summing up the points in refutation of Mr. Perich's statements, it can be said:

1. That no prisoner of Serbian, Croatian, or Slovene nationality has ever fought on the Italian front in support of the allied cause.

2. That no legion or unit composed of Jugoslavs has ever been formed or employed by the Italian Army.

3. That if any office of the Italian Intelligence has employed individuals belonging to the said nationalities it was simply in the cases of deserters, who acted independently there on account of their hatred for the Austrian Empire or on account of the compensations offered them.

Mr. Perich asks why a plebiscite is not ordered in the territories occupied by Italy, while a plebiscite has been decided upon in favor of the inhabitants of Silesia. The Italians refuse the plebiscite for territories conquered from Austria for the same reason that the French have refused a plebiscite for Alsace and Lorraine. A favorable result for Italians, as in the case of Fiume, is of extreme importance, because it demonstrates the survival of the Italian spirit in spite of the violent system of denationalization carried out by the Austro-Hungarian Empire with the active assistance of the Jugoslavs; while results unfavorable to Italy would have small importance because the Jugoslav predominance in those regions would be the result of such a system of violence, and violence does not make right.

PEACE OF THE ADRIATIC.

Reconciliation Should Be the Aim of Jugoslavs and Italians.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of the date of June 19, under the title "The Jugoslav Cause," a gentleman who hides his identity under the signature of "S. A. C." violently attacks not only M. D. Pavlovitch, whom I, by the way, never had the honor of knowing before, but at the end of his letter he carries the attack against the honor of my country, saying: "Well, Serbia, who was forced to fight, may ask humbly as much as she wants, but Italy, who entered the war on the side of the Allies of her own choice and will and paid her full share, wants to sit at the peace table as an equal among equals, and asks proudly what she believes she is entitled to." This is very proud language, and, with all respect to the patriotism of your correspondent, he shows more enthusiasm than real knowledge of the facts, now history, would warrant. He asserts that Serbia was forced to fight. Certainly, she was forced to defend her sovereignty, her national honor, and her thousand traditions, and to do this she did not hesitate a single day to face an enemy ten times as strong. How she has fought, how she has twice preferred exile and ruin to a peace which she looked upon as treachery toward her allies, the whole world knows and judges.

On the other hand, Italy hesitated for a long time before lining up—of her own volition—on the Allies' side. What was she doing during these eight months?

Once in the struggle, Italy has paid valiantly in blood, and I am the first to bow myself before the magnificent heroism of the Italian Army, but starting out from the motives which made the two Governments decide the question of fighting I leave to the verdict of those more competent than myself to judge which of the two has the right to demand proudly and which one should rather humbly demand her place at the peace table.

I have spent my energy, and even my health, during the war, having been interned for two years by the Austrians in Hungary and Montenegro, and I could say a great deal more, but, as your correspondent says, "What is the use?" To my mind, every good Italian and Jugoslavian patriot should work for the reconciliation and not for the separation of the two peoples, and, above all, these persons, who have always been far from the fields of battle, far from all the misery, privations, sufferings and despair—these persons, who even at this hour still ignore the extent of the awful tragedy which has been enacted on the ravished fields of Europe—would do better to raise their hats as one does at a funeral, and to be silent!

A Prophecy Partly Fulfilled.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Ralph Waldo Emerson, in his essay on "Works and Days," written about 1870, says:

"Man flatters himself that his command over nature must increase. Things begin to obey him. We are to have the balloon yet, and the next war will be fought in the air."

THE NEW AMENDMENTS.

A Southern View of Prohibition and Woman Suffrage.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of June 20 are contained two interesting letters. In the first Hugh Mallory of Selma, Ala., very rightly protests against the forcing of female suffrage upon States that do not want it. In the second Mr. Quod of Newark, N. J., calls attention to the inconsistency of the South in forcing prohibition upon States not desiring it, and then whining over their forcing female suffrage upon the South.

But while Mr. Quod is not unjustified in his taunts against the South, it may have slipped from his memory that the Northern States which object to prohibition did not hesitate to force their views of the negro question upon the South. Possibly Mr. Quod (since many disagreeable facts are omitted from our history books) may not be aware of the fact that, about a month before the first Emancipation Proclamation, the people of Lincoln's own State had voted by a majority of 100,590 for a constitutional amendment forbidding negroes or mulattoes to "immigrate or settle in" Illinois. Perhaps Mr. Quod has even forgotten that Abraham Lincoln, only about eighteen months before his proclamation, had said, in his inaugural address, not only that he had "no purpose, directly or indirectly, to interfere with the institution of slavery in the States where it existed," but also that he had "no lawful right to do so." Mr. Quod does know, however, that the North by war and Congressional usurpation forced negro suffrage and carpetbag government upon the South; and he can therefore readily see that the section which first trampled State rights in the dust is a little inconsistent if it now whines because Southern States have forced prohibition upon their unwilling Northern sisters.

However, no one can lament more deeply than the writer—whose father, he is proud to say, was a Confederate soldier—that the Southern people have so completely abandoned the principle of State rights for which their fathers gallantly fought for four years. The passage of the prohibition amendment is a most alarming symptom of political degeneracy in the South, and, for that matter, throughout the country. Hitherto the Constitution contained, and properly contained, merely a statement of the rights of citizens and of the powers delegated by the States (the creators of the Constitution) to the Federal Government. An amendment simply transferring from the State Legislatures to Congress the power of regulating the liquor traffic would at least have been in harmony with the general nature of the Constitution, although it would have been inexcusable for a Southern State to vote for even such an amendment. The actual amendment, however—wholly different in kind from any other provision in the Constitution—not only deprives individuals of rights exercised all over the world for thousands of years, but deprives both Congress and the State Legislatures of the power to give back those rights save by a two-thirds majority in both houses of Congress and by a three-fourths majority of the State Legislatures. Murder, rape, burglary, arson, and other crimes are dealt with by State statutes, which likewise regulate the sale of poison, of opium, of cocaine, of dynamite, &c. To prohibit by constitutional amendment the sale of poison or the committing of murder would indicate a profound distrust of the people's capacity to regulate such matters from time to time through their representatives.

To prohibit the manufacture or sale of beer and wine by a practically irrepealable amendment to the Constitution is an act of such unspeakable folly as to make one almost despair of the political sanity of the American people. It is even worse than the silly female suffrage amendment. But the latter is bad enough, and it is to be hoped that enough Northern States will stand by the South to defeat it, in spite of the South's miserable surrender to prohibition. It is high time to make a stand against the domination of the country by compactly organized minorities. Politicians tremble before such minorities and pay little attention to the easy-going, careless, unorganized majorities. Abolitionist fanatics prevented the settlement of the negro question in a peaceful way and caused slavery to be "drowned in the blood of a million men, and the tears of more than a million women." Prohibition and suffrage fanatics are now dictating to the country. What next? Forbid cigarettes, chewing gum, short skirts, peek-a-boo waists, and alluring lingerie? Or will the vegetarians now demand that the Constitution prohibit the wicked eating of meat? In the opinion of some the price of meat is already sufficiently prohibitory.

The Manila Strike.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The local papers published a cable regarding the strike of the employes of the power, electric light, and street car services of the Manila Electric Railroad and Light Company. There has been practically no violence, the cable says, but the attitude of the strikers is determined. They are urging a general strike to enforce their demands for recognition of the union.

One paper has seen fit to add to the cable aforementioned the nonsensical conclusion that this strike has been prompted by a spirit of hostility toward foreign capital. In the first place, the company affected is not foreign—because it is an American firm. The Filipinos have given ample proof, as witness the splendid success of every American enterprise in the Islands, that they look on the American capital invested in the Philippines as their own, because it helps to promote the best interests of the country. In this connection the fact that the Philippine Independence Mission, representing the Filipino people in this country, has also been charged with the duty of promoting better and closer commercial relations between the two peoples and to invite American capital to invest its millions in the Philippines to help us develop and exploit our wonderful resources, should not be forgotten.

Secondly, there has never been, and there can never be, any spirit of hostility to foreign capital in my country. The fact is that the Filipinos have been criticised many times for their unbounded support of any foreign enterprise and their lack of proper protection of their own. Now that we are coming to our own, owing to the powerful impetus given Filipino enterprise and initiative by our Government and the general soundness of our finances, now that we are fairly and vigorously coming forward in an open and friendly contest with foreign business, it is unjust, un-American, unsportsmanlike to say that we are hostile to foreign capital just because several hundred workers are demanding the recognition of their union from an American firm.

Unguarded Crossings.

Will some one kindly tell me why do all policemen leave Fifth Avenue at 6:30 P. M. except at the Forty-second Street crossing? People who live above there, in the Forties and Fifties, must cross the avenue (if they can) at the risk of their lives. Lowly pedestrians have some rights!

337 GET DEGREES AT CITY COLLEGE

President Mezes, Just Back from Paris, Points Lessons of War to Graduates.

HONOR FOR MEN WHO DIED

Perils of Radicalism Emphasized by Speakers at Commencement Exercises.

Commencement exercises at which 337 graduates of the College of the City of New York received the degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science were held yesterday morning in the Great Hall of the College, at Convent Avenue and 139th Street. Dr. Sidney E. Mezes, President of the College and former head of the political and territorial section of the American peace delegation at Versailles, who returned last week to resume his duties as head of the institution, was the principal speaker. The others were Lee Kohns of the Board of Trustees and President of the Associate Alumni of City College, and Thomas E. Churchill, former President of the Board of Education.

Following the pronouncement of the invocation, by the Rev. Martin E. Fahy, former chaplain with the Keystone Division, and assistant pastor of Our Lady of Lourdes Church, the Chairman, George McAneny, who is also Chairman of the Board of Trustees, called upon Dean Carlton L. Brownson to read the roll of honor of students, alumni, and teachers who had died in the service of their country. The youngest student killed and the one who met death first was Arthur Vincent Hagney, who was graduated from Townsend Harris Hall in 1915. Taps was sounded after the honor roll had been read.

Mr. Kohns, in his address, said: "There is unrest in the air. The period of readjustment following the great upheaval is a time ripe for the extremists and the radicals to pollute the air with their propaganda. I especially charge you young men to hold fast to those things which you have been taught here, and to regard them as our common heritage.

"Attempts will be constantly made to lure you from your principles of democracy and attach you to theirs. If you have profited by the training you received from this great college, it should enable you to recognize what is true and what is false. To safeguard the principles of our immortal dead, let us carry out the tasks that they have laid down, and by so doing we will revere their memories."

Warns Against Radicalism.

"It is not necessary to use violence to evolve a better Government," Mr. Churchill said, "but, pacific though I am, I would use the flag on any one who went in for bomb throwing in his attempt to improve the Government."

"These men died in vain if they did not make war against war and in behalf of peace. If we do not make it difficult to bring about another world cataclysm, they have died in vain. The world has been distraught, and it is your place to help bring peace."

Following this address, the oath which the youths of Athens took upon their entrance into manhood, promising fidelity to the city and country, was taken by the graduates.

Dr. Mezes's advice to the graduates was that they should seek integrity, "the wholeness and wholesomeness of mind and body," if they desired to become successful.

Speaking of Russia, Dr. Mezes said it is impossible to have a solid unity where 90 per cent. of 180,000,000 people can neither read nor write. Under the Czar, he said, the workingmen did not count, and under the Bolshevist régime it is the other way around.

"Lenin and Trotzky said: 'We will kill the bourgeoisie. The proletariat is the only genuine people,'" the speaker continued. "Russia had no wholeness, no integrity, under the Czar, and can have no integrity under the Bolsheviki unless they learn that a nation must be unified.

Germany as Peace Destroyer.

Germany, said Dr. Mezes, although possessing an inner integrity, lacked outward integrity. "The people worked as a whole," he added. "The machine was run with the power going smoothly, but still she has broken down. Integrity consists in respecting and cherishing all the parts of the whole, that they may work together in harmony."

The Pell Medals were awarded by Dean Brownson to John F. X. Finn and Paul D. Kaufman, and the Cromwell Medal to Jacob A. Friedman. The Ward Medals went to Walter B. Neumann, William Pabst, Julius Henry Willner, Lawrence Naumann, Jr., Leo Dressler, Paul D. Kaufman, A. Morris Levy, Robert Jähriling, Ralph Gordon, Fred Iscolsky, Dante E. Broggi, Maurice Iserman, Reuben Axel, and Leo Mattersdorf.

The Kelly Prizes were presented to Saul Pulver and Bernard Hurwitz, with honorable mention for William Siegel. The Claflin Medals were given to Louis Braverman and Samuel Rosenblatt; the Riggs Medal to Morris B. Schwartzfarb; the Ketchum Prizes to William Winestone, William J. Norton, Jr., Charles Segal, and Alfred K. Blank. The Roemer Prize was awarded to Henry Lipschitz; the Ralph Weinberg Memorial Prize to Arthur Poppe; the Prager Memorial Prizes to Arthur Klein and Paul D. Kaufman; the General Tremain Prizes to Jacob A. Friedman and Morris Weintrob; the public speaking prizes to Joseph Berkson and George M. Hyman; the James R. Steers Prize to Louis Wolchonok, and the Prize of the Colonial Dames of New York State to Julius Henry Willner.

The men who graduated cum laude (with honor) were Samuel N. Cohen, Paul D. Kaufman, Arthur Klein, Maxwell Nurnberg, William Riecker, Jr., and Julius Henry Willner.

This year's contribution to membership in Phi Beta Kappa were Abraham Abrams, George Vincent Brady, Samuel N. Cohen, David Drabkin, Jacob A. Friedman, Paul D. Kaufman, Arthur Klein, Nathaniel Kleitman, William Lemkin, William S. Malev, Lawrence E. Naumann, Jr., Maxwell Nurnberg, Jacob Samuel Orliansky, William Riecker, Jr., William Rosenberg, John J. MRS. CHRISTY TO WED AGAIN

Former Wife of Artist to Marry Leslie C. Ferguson, Also Divorcee.

Leslie Canfield Ferguson of 55 West Eighty-second Street, a lawyer of this city, and Mrs. Maybelle Thompson Christy, former wife of Howard Chandler Christy, the artist, will be married tomorrow in this city. The first intimation that the marriage was to take place came when the couple visited the Municipal Building yesterday and obtained their license to wed.

Mr. Ferguson, according to the license, is 40 years old, and was divorced from his first wife, Edith Carpenter Oakes, four years ago in Massachusetts. He is a prominent lawyer, and a member of the legal firm of Banton, Ferguson & Moore, 1 Liberty Street. Mrs. Christy gave her age as 37.

On May 31 last Mr. Christy obtained a decree of divorce from Mrs. Christy at the close of a brief hearing in the Common Pleas Court at Zanesville, Ohio. They have a daughter, Miss Natalie Christy, who is now about 19 years old. The Christy family home is near Duncan Falls, ten miles from Zanesville. Mr. Christy resides at the Hotel des Artistes, this city.

The marriage tomorrow will be a quiet affair, with only relatives and a few intimate friends in attendance. Mrs. Christy at present is staying at 562 West 144th St.

MISS MORTIMER'S NUPTIAL.

Her Marriage to Count di Zeppola to be Held at Roslyn Tomorrow.

The wedding of Miss Edith Mortimer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Mortimer, and Count di Zeppola, a member of the Italian Aviation Corps, will take place tomorrow at 12:30 o'clock, at the country estate of the bride's parents, in the Wheatley Hills section, near Roslyn, L. I. A breakfast and small reception will follow the ceremony.

Count Zeppola arrived here last Sunday from Italy, coming by way of Halifax. The wedding was put over a week on account of his delayed arrival. He and his bride will sail for Europe on Aug. 28.

Darrin-Bacot Wedding Tomorrow.

The wedding of Miss Eleanor Carter Bacot, daughter of John Vacher Bacot, and Lieutenant Howard Addison Darrin will take place tomorrow at 4 o'clock in St. Peter's Church, Morristown, N. J. Their engagement was announced about a fortnight ago. Lieutenant Darrin is the son of Mrs. Beatrice T. Jackson of 922 Madison Avenue.

MISS PEABODY WED TO REV. CHAS. R. PECK

Daughter of the Late Dr. Geo. A. Peabody Marries Boston Rector in Grace Church.

HOPE MALCOM A BRIDE

Miss Fanny Koenig Weds Samuel Falk—Maj. Charles C. Smith Marries Miss Consuelo C. Bass.

The Rev. Charles Russell Peck, rector of Christ Church, Boston, Mass., and Miss Helen Peabody, a daughter of the late Dr. George A. Peabody of Newport and 114 East Eighty-fourth Street, this city, were married at 12 o'clock yesterday in the chantry of Grace Church by the rector, the Rev. Charles H. Slattery, and a small reception followed at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Charles J. Nourse, 265 Lexington Avenue.

Miss Peabody walked to the altar with her uncle, Charles A. Peabody, who gave her in marriage. She wore a white chiffon gown and a lace veil with tulle falling over the face, and had two bridesmaids, the Misses Juliet Nourse, her cousin, and Anne B. Henshaw of Providence. Mr. Peck's best man was the Rev. Dr. John W. Suter, Jr., of Boston, and the ushers were the Rev. William Appleton Lawrence, also of Boston, Ivory Littlefield of Providence, George Montgomery, John B. Peabody, a cousin of the bride; Captain Charles J. Nourse, another cousin of the bride, and the Rev. Tertius Van Dyke.

After the honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Peck will live in Boston.

Thurlow—Malcom.

The wedding of Charles Thurlow, Jr., of Newburyport and Boston, Mass., and Miss Hope Malcom, a daughter of Mrs. George I. Malcom of 116 East Sixty-third Street, this city, was celebrated at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon in St. James's Episcopal Church, Madison Avenue and Seventy-first Street, by the rector, the Rev. Frank W. Crowder.

The bride, in a white satin gown draped with old family point lace, and a tulle veil held with orange blossoms, carried sweet peas. She walked with her brother, J. Benham Malcom, who gave her in marriage, and she had no attendants. Mr. Thurlow's best man was Dudley Ranney, and the ushers were Donald Malcom, Gordon Balch, John Thurlow, brother of the bridegroom, John Rogers, Benjamin Pitman, Clemence Burnholme, and Julian and George B. Malcom.

Miss Koenig Weds Samuel Falk.

A large assembly, including prominent men in the political world, attended the wedding yesterday afternoon of Miss Fannye V. Koenig, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel S. Koenig, and Samuel Falk of this city, which was solemnized at 4 o'clock in the Spanish and Portuguese Synagogue, Central Park West and Seventieth Street. The bride's father is Chairman of the New York County Republican Committee.

Miss Beatrice Koenig attended her sister as maid of honor, and the other attendants included Mrs. Larry Goldstone and the Misses Myrella Adelson, Stella Weber, Frieda Holzman, Elizabeth Kaplan, and Jean Weissberger. Mr. Koenig gave his daughter in marriage. Lieutenant Harry Falk, U. S. A., acted as best man.

Wed to Major C. C. Smith.

The marriage of Major Charles Compton Smith, son of Brig. Gen. A. L. Smith, retired, and Miss Consuelo Curtis Bass, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Bass of Shippan Point, Stamford, Conn., took place yesterday at the home of the bride's parents. The Rev. Dr. C. M. Addison performed the ceremony. Miss Margaret McGarry of Stamford was the bridesmaid and A. L. Smith, Jr., of the staff of THE NEW YORK TIMES, brother of the bridegroom, acted as best man. The bride's father gave her in marriage.

Major Smith recently returned from fifteen months' duty over seas, where he saw service in four major operations conducted by American troops. He sailed as Captain of the Headquarters Troop of the 3d Division, and when it went into the front lines just before the battle of Château-Thierry was assigned to command E Company in the 38th Infantry, with which he served during that engagement. He received his promotion as Major after the battle. Major and Mrs. Smith first met at West Point where he was a cadet in the class of 1916.

Miss Jessie Glendinning Weds.

The marriage of Lieutenant Ralph L. Baggs, U. S. A., who returned last Saturday from Siberia, where he served for about a year on Major Gen. W. S. Graves's staff, and Miss Jessie Glendinning, a young English actress, a sister of Ernest Glendinning, the actor, took place at 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the home of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Andrews Baggs, 211 West Seventy-eighth Street. The bride, in a white silk net afternoon frock, garlanded in green leaves, wore a large hat trimmed with apple blossoms. Her brother, Ernest Glendinning, gave her in marriage. Her only attendant was Mrs. Mildred Beavers. Lieutenant Baggs had his brother, Frederick C. Baggs, as his best man.

Obituary Notes.

GASPARD SCHELKER, a retired manufacturing jeweler, for fifty years in business on Fulton and John Streets, Manhattan, died yesterday at his home, 18 Clifton Place, Brooklyn, in his eighty-fourth year. Mr. Schelker came to this country from Switzerland in 1867, and except for a short period in Cincinnati, Ohio, he had lived in Brooklyn since that time. He is survived by four daughters and a son, Walter G. Schelker, assistant secretary of the Equitable Life Assurance Society.

Mrs. EMILY A. K. COIT, a member of an old Brooklyn Heights family, where she formerly lived for many years, died at her home in Fall River, Mass., on Wednesday in her eighty-first year. She was the widow of George M. Coit, who at the time of his death in 1903 was assistant manager of the New York branch of the Royal Insurance Company of Liverpool.

WILLIAM CHRISTIAN VISEL, 66 years old, a master truckman in the produce trade in Manhattan, died on Wednesday at his home, 215 Putnam Avenue, Brooklyn.

Mrs. CATHERINE McCORMICK, mother of Charles A. McCormick, Treasurer and General Manager of the Johnson & Johnson plant at New Brunswick, N. J., died at her home there yesterday in her sixty-second year.

JAMES R. VALENTINE, head of the clay products manufacturing firm of M. H. Valentine & Sons, died suddenly yesterday at Asbury Park. He lived at Woodbridge, N. J.

F. A. HOOD of Chattanooga, Tenn., died on Wednesday night at San Diego, Cal. Mr. Hood was said to have been the man who led the first demonstration in the Chicago Convention in 1896 resulting in the nomination of William Jennings Bryan.

HARRY U. HOMAN, the Jockey Club's clerk of the scales, died on Wednesday at his home, 438 State Street, Brooklyn. Mr. Homan was 51 years old.

JOHN ROSS, a retired farmer, died on Wednesday in Plainfield, N. J. He was 84 years old.

Mrs. THOMAS EWING, widow of General Thomas Ewing, who served in the civil war, died Tuesday at her home in Yonkers. She was the founder of the Women's Homeopathic Maternity Hospital.

OXFORD, June 26.—When Oxford University today paid homage to what the United States has done in the war by conferring on General Pershing and Herbert C. Hoover the degree of Doctor of Civil Law, the highest distinction in its gift, they formed a part of as notable a company of men as ever this ancient university has called together.

General Pershing stood among such fighting men as Marshal Joffre, Sir Douglas Haig, Sir David Beatty, Sir Henry Wilson, Sir Oscar Wemyss, and Sir John Monash.

Mr. Hoover stood with those who had distinguished themselves on the civil side, men like Lord Robert Cecil, Sir Reginald Hall, and J. R. Clynes.

The degree of Doctor of Letters was given to Henri Pirenne, rector of the heroic University of Ghent, while degrees were conferred in absentia on the Prince of Wales, Sir William Robertson, and George Barnes.

The Sheldonian Theatre, where the honors were conferred, afforded a setting worthy of the gathering. Built in the form of a horseshoe, it was packed from floor to roof with row above row of women in bright Summer dresses. The floor itself was crowded with graduates in their black gowns and many colored hoods, while near the throne of the Chancellor, professors, and the heads of the college sat in their scarlet gowns in a gorgeous row.

The academic procession was formed in Trinity College and marched amid cheering crowds to the theatre, led by the mace bearers, who were followed by the Chancellor of the university, Lord Curzon, and the candidates for the degrees. Most of these were in uniform, but their khaki and blue was almost hidden by their scarlet gowns and they had replaced their ordinary headdress with the black velvet caps with broad, flat brims that the Doctors of Civil Law wear on state occasions.

Lord Curzon, as he took his seat on the throne was a remarkably stately figure. He was in black court dress, with star and the broad blue ribbon of the Order of the Garter. A cravat of flowing lace almost covered his breast and he wore a magnificent silk gown, all ablaze with gold lace. Lady Curzon, in a plain, black, tailormade costume, was on his left and around him ranged themselves the doctors and other senior graduates.

The candidates for degrees, however, were not at first admitted. Their names had to be submitted to the members of the university and a vote formally taken before that could be done. Speaking in Latin, the Chancellor recommended each as worthy of the honor and asked the pleasure of the assemblage with "Doctores Placetne, Magistri Placetne?" From the floor to each question came the answer, "Placet," and by acclamation each candidate was held entitled to his degree.

Then from a door at the end of the hall came the procession of the men the university had chosen to honor, and all rose and cheered until the gray walls shook as they took the places assigned to them.

Marshal Joffre, in full dress of dark blue with many stars and crosses, was the first to be introduced to the Chancellor. Then came Pershing, or, as the program styled him, Sir John Joseph Pershing, G. C. B. Next was Haig and so on through the long list.

It was a trying ordeal. Each candidate had to stand in the midst of the hall while the public orator read a long Latin speech, recounting his achievements and detailing his claims to recognition. Some of the candidates moved uneasily, some cast furtive glances at the orator's manuscript, and others flushed as they understood some resounding adjective, but Pershing stood like a graven statue while sonorous Latin hurtled around his head. Some of the professors applauded as they caught the meaning of a happy phrase, but he never moved a muscle or allowed the lines of his determined face to alter.

When formally presented for the degree he had to step forward a pace while the Chancellor, rising in his place, admitted him with the words of the time-honored formula. A grasp of the hand completed the ceremony and the new Doctor was shown to his section—to watch the others go through the ordeal.

For Pershing and Hoover there were hearty cheers and a still warmer welcome met Joffre, Haig, and Beatty, but perhaps the surprise of the day was the enthusiasm with which Clynes was received. It was surely a sign of the times that Oxford, "The Home of Lost Causes," should take this radical reformer to its bosom.

A long Latin oration on the events of the past years was the next item on the program, and the first words in English spoken during the proceedings were heard when the new Digat prize poem was recited. Appropriately enough its subject was "Fame."

Then followed a luncheon at All Souls' College, when the new doctors met, among others, Mrs. Humphry Ward, Sir William and Lady Osler, Lady Roberts, General Biddle, Colonel Griscom, and the Hon. Mrs. Waldorf Astor. A garden party at Wadham College was followed by a ceremonial dinner at Christ Church.

WAY CLEAR TO TRY 2.75 P.C. BEER CASE

U. S. Circuit Court Upholds Contention That Only "Intoxicating Beers" Are Prohibited.

PROSECUTOR FREE TO ACT

Court Refuses to Enjoin the District Attorney from Bringing Suits.

STAMPS MUST BE ISSUED

Whether Wartime Beverage Is Intoxicating a Question of Fact to be Determined.

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals gave its decision yesterday in the "2.75 per cent. beer" case, upholding the contention of the brewers that the War Prohibition act prohibited the brewing of intoxicating beers only, and not all beers, and denying the Internal Revenue Collector's right to withhold stamps from such beer, but sided against the brewers on a third point, by denying that the right existed to enjoin United States District Attorney Caffey from starting criminal proceedings.

While holding that the District Court was in error in granting an injunction against the Federal District Attorney, the majority decision, written by Judge Ward, said:

"We are sure that the United States District Attorney will co-operate with the complainants to have the question involved determined speedily and in the meantime with as little interference as possible."

The decision clears the way for the trial on its merits of the question: Is beer containing not more than 2.75 per cent. alcohol by weight intoxicating? Emory R. Buckner, who is associated with Elihu Root and William D. Guthrie, counsel for the Jacob Hoffman Brewing Company, said yesterday that there would be no further appeal on the injunction question and that a trial would be sought at the earliest possible date.

The issue at the trial will be whether the brewers are entitled to a permanent injunction against the Internal Revenue Collector, and the brewers will have to prove that their "2.75 per cent. beer" is not intoxicating and hence not affected by the War Prohibition act. Because the issue is raised in an injunction proceeding the question of fact, whether beer of 2.75 strength is intoxicating, will be decided by a Federal Judge, not by a jury. Counsel for the brewers have, in briefs submitted to the District Court and Circuit Court, offered elaborate testimony by medical men, scientists and laymen to prove that the normal man cannot get himself drunk on 2.75 per cent. beer, even though filling himself to his utmost capacity with the beverage.

All Agree as to Prosecutor.

The three Judges of the Circuit Court of Appeals followed different lines of reasoning on several points. The majority decision was written by Judge Ward. All three agreed that the District Court had exceeded its powers in enjoining Federal District Attorney Caffey. Judge Howe, however, offered a short separate opinion, explaining that while he agreed in this conclusion he did not follow Judge Ward precisely in his reasoning on the subject. Judge Rogers differed from his associates in another particular, holding that the District Court had not the authority to enjoin Collector McElligott. All three agreed, however, that the act forbade intoxicating liquors only, thus disposing of the Government's contention that Congress meant to forbid the manufacture and sale of all beers, including root beer, ginger beer and every brewed beverage, whether alcoholic or not.

The majority opinion does not go exhaustively into the right of the lower court to restrain the Collector of Internal Revenue, but says:

"Originally the Internal Revenue Department took the position that after May 1, 1919, it would not license brewers who manufactured beer with an alcoholic content equaling or exceeding one-half of 1 per cent. by volume nor sell the revenue stamps to be affixed to barrels of such beer, but afterward, by advice of the Attorney General, this position was abandoned and the department consented to license brewers and to sell them revenue stamps, even if their beer did contain an alcoholic content equaling or exceeding one-half of 1 per cent. by volume. Accordingly, the complainants are not now subject to any forfeiture or penalty under the internal revenue acts if they pay the taxes required by law. The only risk they are exposed to if they continue to brew beer of an alcoholic content not exceeding 2.75 per cent. by weight is that of imprisonment for not more than one year or a fine not exceeding $1,000, or both, if such manufacture be found to be a violation of the act of Nov. 21, 1918. Nevertheless, the injunction against the Acting Deputy Collector, defendant, can do no harm, and, in view of the position originally taken by the Internal Revenue Department, it may go against him."

Find Precedents Far Back.

The majority opinion and the opinion of Judge Rogers both go exhaustively into the law on the question of the right of the District Court, as a court of equity, to enjoin a District Attorney from conducting criminal prosecutions. The history of the growth of equity courts, the creation of the Star Chamber and the Chancery Court in England and cases hundreds of years back are cited to prove that from the earliest days of equity courts to the present the rule has been that an equity court could not step in to prevent criminal prosecutions. Three exceptions to this rule are noted by Judge Rogers, who finds that an injunction can be issued by an equity court when one party in a civil suit before that court tries to start criminal proceedings against his opponent on the same issue; or when a District Attorney goes outside his province and proceeds in such a way as to inflict needless property damage; or when a District Attorney attempts to proceed criminally under an unconstitutional law.

Judge Rogers goes back to a fishery quarrel on the River Ouse in England in 1742 in explaining the equity court's right to interfere when a dissatisfied litigant tried to take his case into the criminal courts.

After discussing all the exceptions, Judge Rogers holds that none of them apply to the present and that no warrant exists here for the enjoining of the Federal District Attorney. Judge Rogers goes on as follows to dissent from the majority opinion sustaining the injunction of the Collector of Internal Revenue:

"In view of these affidavits I find no justification for the issuance of an injunction against McElligott. The intention to do the prohibited acts is not shown to exist but is expressly shown not to exist.

"In Real Estate Trust Co. vs. Hatton 194 Pa. St. 449 it was held that where the defendant by answer and in open court disclaimed any intention of doing the acts sought to be enjoined a preliminary injunction should be denied, but that the bill would be retained with leave to the plaintiff to apply for an injunction if the defendant disregarded his avowed intention."

No Doubt of Legislative Intent.

In concurring with his associates in reading the act as prohibitive of intoxicating beer only, Judge Rogers said:

"As it is desired that the Judges express their opinion as to the meaning of the words 'no beer, wine, or other intoxicating malt or vinous liquor,' I state my opinion. It is that the rule of construction known as ejusdem generis applies. Where general words follow the enumeration of a particular class of things the general words will be construed as applicable to things of the same class as that enumerated. The paramount duty of a court is to see that no effect shall be given to any law which violates the Constitution. After that the next duty is to see that effect is given to the legislative intent. I am unable to see any escape from the conclusion that Congress in enacting the law had in mind intoxicating liquors. In that conclusion I agree with my associates.

"Whether beer containing not more than 2.75 per cent. of alcohol is intoxicating is not a question of law but one of fact and will be determined at the final hearing upon the merits."

SUES AL JOLSON FOR DIVORCE

Comedian's Wife Blames "Wine," Women, and Race Horses."

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 26.—Wine, women, and racehorses, are blamed by Mrs. Henrietta Jolson, who today filed suit for divorce from Al Jolson, New York comedian. She also charges neglect.

Mrs. Jolson declares that her husband dispatched his secretary, Frank Holmes, from New York to California to plead his cause, but has kept the telephone and telegraph wires hot with his reconciliation pleas.

"Come back to me and I'll give you all the money and clothes and motors you want," Mrs. Jolson alleges Al said in one of his telegrams.

"But," added Mrs. Jolson, "I don't want his money and motors now; what I want is my freedom."

She also alleges that he gambled heavily on the race tracks around Baltimore and New York.

"Recently," continues Mrs. Jolson, "I read that he was building a palatial home on the Pacific Coast. I wanted to know for whom he was building this castle, but I could not find out. It must certainly was not for me."

Mrs. Jolson asks for $2,000 monthly alimony, alleging that her husband's income is more than $3,000 weekly, and that he has amassed more than $200,000.

HAMBY SMILES AT DEATH SENTENCE

Murderer of Bank Employe Condemned to Electric Chair in Week of July 28.

SAID VICTIMS HAD CHANCE

Displayed Anger When Justice Fawcett Denounced Him as a "Fiend Incarnate."

Gordon Fawcett Hamby, or Jay B. Allan, as he prefers to be called, who was convicted of murder in the first degree for killing two employes of the East Brooklyn Savings Bank, was sentenced yesterday by Justice Lewis L. Fawcett, in the Supreme Court, in Brooklyn, to die in the electric chair at Sing Sing Prison during the week beginning July 28.

Except for a brief period while listening to a scathing denunciation by Justice Fawcett, the prisoner maintained the indifferent attitude shown by him since his arrest. In the prisoners' pen in the basement of the Court House after sentence had been passed, Hamby declared that the remarks of Justice Fawcett had stung him for a moment, not with fear or remorse, but with anger. He asserted that he could hardly restrain himself while the Justice was talking, and said that he believed that the Justice should have confined himself to the imposition of sentence. After making this statement Hamby had an interview with Deputy Police Commissioner Ellen O'Grady. Neither would say what was their topic of conversation.

The court room was crowded beyond capacity when Hamby was brought in handcuffed to Deputy Sheriff Jessie J. Shortell. Among the crowd were many women, anxious to be present at what will probably be the prisoner's last appearance in the outside world. Hamby was carefully dressed as usual and stepped up to the bar with a smile.

"Hamby," Justice Fawcett said in addressing him, "Mr. McCaffry, an able lawyer of thirty years' experience, was assigned to defend you and to look after your rights and to see to it that you had a fair trial in accordance with the law. He faithfully protected your rights and discharged the trust imposed upon him. He has done all that you would permit him to do. Hamby, you stand before this court convicted of an atrocious crime that shocked all this community last December. You shot and killed two respectable citizens while engaged in a bold, daring daylight bank robbery. Your crime is the most heinous ever committed in Brooklyn. Your record proves you to be a bandit plying his nefarious vocation during the last decade with absolute disregard to the property and life of men.

"You have admitted killing three men and shooting twice as many and robbing upward of thirteen banks under your cloak of refinement. There is no worse enemy to society than the educated criminal. Beneath the exterior of your apparent refinement is a fiendish spirit incarnate. Your diabolical career is at an end. You have no expressed regret for the cold-blooded murders you committed, and there can be no regret over your expiation of paying the full penalty of the law."

When Justice Fawcett finished speaking Hamby asked if he might say something. Justice Fawcett gave him permission and without any apparent excitement, the prisoner said: "In reply to your charge of cold-blooded murder I wish to say from the standpoint of one who participated in the robberies that they all had a chance.

"They never had a chance, and that remark will get you nothing," replied Justice Fawcett in a sharp manner.

After Hamby had been taken to the prisoner's pen Frank X. McCaffry, his counsel, asked for the appointment of a commission to inquire into Hamby's sanity.

"I am convinced that Hamby is not absolutely sane," said Mr. McCaffry. "The very fact that he refused to allow me to do anything for him in the nature of a defense or to allow me to move for an appeal so as to have the case reviewed by the Court of Appeals practically compels to conclude that he would have shot the top of his head off rather than be taken alive. [illegible] trial he asked me to get permission from the court for him to address the jury. Within five minutes he completely changed his mind and told me that people might consider such an act as one of bravado. I do not believe he is sane now, and for the peace of my own mind, I would appreciate the appointment of a commission."

District Attorney Harry E. Lewis told Justice Fawcett that although he believed Hamby to be sane he would not oppose the appointment of a commission. Later in the day Justice Fawcett designated Dr. Cecil McCoy and Dr. Anna Martin Ralston, two well known alienists, as a commission to make an investigation as to Hamby's mental condition.

While in his cell at Raymond Street Jail, before being brought to court, Hamby talked with several newspapermen. Among other things, he said: "It is nothing for me to die because I am coming back. It may take a few years or it may take several thousand years, of course, but time does not count. Being brought into this world is like being placed in a class of small children, with each trying to compete with each other. Some of us are successful, some are not. As for myself I have flunked."

PILGRIM FATHERS' YEAR.

Whole English-Speaking World to Observe Tercentenary in 1920.

LONDON, June 26.—Viscount Bryce, former Ambassador to the United States, presided this afternoon at a meeting of the Anglo-American Society. Those present included Lord Weardale, Sir Charles C. Wakefield, Sir Robert A. Hadfield, Professor Israel Goliancz, A. D. Flower, Mayor of Stratford-on-Avon; representatives of the English free churches, Robert P. Skinner, the American Consul General; E. H. Scammell of the Canadian Peace Centenary Association, and Dr. Atkinson of New York.

The program arranged for next year's celebration of the Pilgrim Fathers' tercentenary includes a Winter session in 1919-20, special Pilgrim Father lectures, and the issue of commemorative postage stamps.

From January to June there will be educational instruction in schools, churches, and colleges; in May and June meetings and ceremonies will be held at Scrooby, Austerfield, Boston, and Cambridge, England, from which came many of the Pilgrims. It is hoped that the old home of the family of George Washington, Sulgrave Manor, will have been sufficiently restored to allow of a formal inauguration.

British and American delegations will visit Holland on Aug. 5. Beginning Sept. 16, there will be celebrations in Southampton and Plymouth, culminating in the sailing of a new Mayflower for the United States carrying the American delegates and the British and Dutch committees.

In September and October there will be receptions in New Plymouth, (Mass.,) which will be followed by a reception in New York and a tour of America.

From Nov. 9 to Nov. 11 there will be celebrations throughout the English-speaking world in honor of the Mayflower compact and the planting of free institutions in America.

The last Thursday in November has been chosen for a universal celebration of Thanksgiving day. In December there will be universal celebrations, including memorial church services, in honor of the arrival of the Pilgrim Fathers at New Plymouth.

The Anglo-American Society's Executive Committee has decided on the foundation of a chair for lecturership on American history, literature, and institutions, at an estimated minimum cost of $75,000.

The Emerson Shoe
HONEST ALL THROUGH

WHILE STANDING IN FRONT OF ONE OF MY STORES recently a well known shoe manufacturer said to me,—

"EMERSON, why don't you mark up the retail price of your shoes somewhere near the present price of leather. You are selling shoes in your store today at retail cheaper than I can sell them at wholesale."

He was right about the price because leather has gone up about 60% since our present stock of shoes was made.

But I have always given my customers any saving I can make for them as a result of my long experience in knowing when to buy leather.

So I brand a fair and square retail price on the sole of my store shoes, during the process of manufacture—based on actual factory costs. And once stamped the price cannot be raised as it can be on a "pen and ink" price ticket.

An investment in Emerson Shoes today for your needs for the next six months will pay you 25% on your money.

Visit our store—inspect our shoes—compare our prices and values with those of other manufacturers and judge for yourself. This is your opportunity as long as our present stock lasts.

BURLESON REFUSES TO DEAL WITH MEN

Insists Telegraphers Violated Labor Board Regulations to Which He Subscribed.

REFERS THEM TO COMPANIES

Konenkamp Denies That Postmaster General Subscribed to Labor Board Regulations.

SAYS HE FORCED STRIKE

Asserts Differences Can Be Adjusted if Burleson Statement Was Made in Good Faith.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Efforts to bring about a settlement of the telegraphers' strike which were made today at a conference between Postmaster General Burleson and a committee from the American Federation of Labor composed of John M. Walker of the United Mine Workers and W. E. Bryan, President of the Leather Workers' Union, did not prove successful.

Mr. Burleson insisted that the strike had been called in violation of rules laid down by the National War Labor Board to which his Wire Control Committee subscribed, and that he would not direct the companies to take back the men who had walked out. He said that the question was one for the managerial departments of the companies to deal with.

When President S. J. Konenkamp of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union heard that Mr. Burleson had placed his department on record as subscribing to the War Labor Board's regulations, he came back with an open letter to Mr. Burleson in which he said that the strike could be adjusted quickly if such a statement was made in good faith. He said he would take the matter up with the War Labor Board.

The Postmaster General issued a statement in connection with the conference today in which he said:

"When the control of the wire systems was taken over by the Government the Postmaster General, by order, created the Wire Control Board as a governmental agency to direct the operation of these properties, which took the place of the War Labor Board in so far as the wire systems were concerned, with full jurisdiction and powers hithertofore exercised by the War Labor Board over the relations existing between the owners and employes of these wire properties. The Wire Control Board has repeatedly announced that its policy was to adhere strictly to all rules and regulations which had been prescribed by the War Labor Board.

"(1) That the Western Union would receive a committee of its own men only who desired, individually or in a group composed of the employes, to present requests for better conditions of labor as to hours, compensation, and otherwise, and that if an agreement could not be reached the matter should be referred to this board (War Labor Board) and the question disposed of in accordance with the procedure provided for the Board under the rules guiding it;

Not Required to Recognize Union.

"(2) That the Western Union should not be required in any way to deal with the union or to recognize it;

"(3) That the Commercial Telegraphers' Unions should agree with the National War Labor Board and guarantee to it that in any effort by its members to secure better conditions of labor it would not itself initiate it, and would not permit its members to use the strike, but that it would submit their grievances to the National War Labor Board and abide by the decisions under its procedure;

"(4) That if any employe of the Western Union Telegraph Company, a member of the Telegraphers' Union, should fail to conform with this agreement and to abide by the rules and principles of the Board, the Western Union Telegraph Company might discharge such employe, and that the National War Labor Board would sustain such discharges.

"The Postmaster General required the re-employment of all employes of the Western Union Company who had been dismissed because of affiliation with labor organizations. As to the Postal Telegraph Company, information from the Wire Control Board received through the managerial officers of that company is that they have never discharged employes because of union affiliation, and that at the time of the strike no demand had been made on the company by its employes and no specific reason has been assigned by them for the strike.

"The Wire Control Board has rigidly adhered during the entire period of Government control to the policies and principles laid down by the War Labor Board for these companies.

"It has repeatedly been announced by the Wire Control Board that strikes on the part of employes while the wire systems were under the control of the Government were not permissible. Whether the 270 of the 40,000 Western Union employes and the small number of employes of the Postal Telegraph Company who went on strike are now to be taken back into the service of these companies is a matter resting with their managerial officers. These employes voluntarily left the service of the companies in violation of the rules of the War Labor Board and the Wire Control Board, and the Postmaster General will not direct their re-employment."

President of Telegraphers Replies.

President Konenkamp of the telegraphers' union, replying to Mr. Burleson, wrote as follows:

"I have read your statement with considerable amazement because of your reference to the National War Labor Board after you had denied that board jurisdiction in the telegraph case.

"In fact, I have before me at this writing a copy of a letter from Joint Chairman Manly of the War Labor Board reading in part as follows:

"'I know that this dissatisfaction with the wages fixed by the wire board is much more acute and affects a very much larger number of people. The War Labor Board, however, has no jurisdiction over the wages of telegraph and telephone employes and has been unable to take any effective steps in that field.'

"I was told personally upon appeal to the board that you had denied the jurisdiction of the board and refused to permit them to adjust our grievances.

"I am quite sure that others will share in my surprise to learn that you now claim that we have violated the principles of the National War Labor Board. The records of the board will not bear you out, but they will show that we had exhausted every effort before that board previous to declaring the strike.

"If you had been willing to have the War Labor Board handle our grievances there would have been no strike.

"Instead, the telegraph companies have been permitted to run roughshod over the orders issued over your name, dismissals, discrimination, and persecution have been permitted to run rampant until the men were driven to desperation. The only answer they received from your office was that the matter was under investigation.

"Despite the statement of the telegraph officials, we know that the service is not normal, and against Mr. Carlton's reported 273 employes on strike, we might refer you to the 375 on strike in Omaha, the 350 or more in Atlanta, Ga., the 160 on strike in New Orleans, all from the Western Union, without taking into account the thousands on strike throughout the country.

"If it is your contention that the National War Labor Board has jurisdiction in disputes of this kind, if you will agree now that it has jurisdiction, I am sure that arrangements can be made in short order to adjust this dispute."

Jamaicans Oppose Union with Canada

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, June 26.—The Jamaica League, a social and political organization representing a large number of working classes, passed the following resolution today:

"That this meeting of the Kingston branch of the Jamaica League is of the opinion that a political union of Jamaica with Canada is undesirable, and would suggest that the question of the federation of the West Indies should receive the serious consideration of the people of this island."

LYNCH NEGRO WHO CONFESSED CRIME

Hanged and Burned at Scene of Assault on White Woman.

APPEAL TO GOVERNOR FAILS

Mississippi Executive Said Interference Would Lead to Deaths of Hundreds.

ELLISVILLE, Miss., June 26.—Trailed for ten days through southern Mississippi by posses which included several hundred members of his own race, John Hartfield, a negro, confessed assailant of an Ellisville young woman, was captured desperately wounded in a canebrake this morning, rushed by automobile to the scene of his crime, hanged to a gum tree, and burned to ashes. His victim identified him and witnessed the execution.

Governor Bilbo, petitioned during the day to intervene, in a statement issued at Jackson shortly before the lynching, declared himself "utterly powerless," and said that interference would lead only to the deaths of hundreds of persons and that "nobody can keep the inevitable from happening."

The lynching was conducted in a manner which the authorities characterized as "orderly." Guarded by a committee of citizens of Ellisville, Hartfield was taken first to the office of Dr. A. J. Carter who, after an examination of the gunshot wounds received by the fugitive when he made his fight against capture, declared the negro could not live more than twenty-four hours. In the meantime a group of silent men were piling cross ties and brush in a depression in the ground near the railroad trestle. There was no shouting. Arrangements apparently had been made days ago.

After Hartfield had been identified upon being brought here, there were quiet conferences. Members of the committee circulated in the crowd. At 5 o'clock the statement was circulated that there would be a "hanging at the big gum tree." Hartfield was told what the crowd intended doing with him but merely repeated "you have the right man."

From the physician's office, Hartfield was taken to the street and faced the crowd. "You have the right man," he reiterated. Then a noose found its way around his neck and the trip to the big gum tree was started, the crowd still ominously silent.

Under the big gum tree Hartfield forcibly detained his victim all of the night of Sunday, June 15. It was on a limb of the same gum tree that Hartfield was hanged as soon as the rope could be pulled by hundreds of hands. Then occurred the first demonstration. While the body was in its death struggles, pistols were produced by men in the crowd and fired point blank at the swinging form. Before the rope had been cut by bullets, burning faggots were thrown under the body and an hour later there was only a pile of ashes.

No arrests were made after the lynching and tonight the little town was quiet. Most of the visitors from the surrounding country had left for their homes.

MGR. BURKE, PAULIST HEAD.

Pastor of St. Mary's Church, Chicago, Elected Superior General.

The Very Rev. Thomas F. Burke, C. S. P., of St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church, Chicago, was elected yesterday Superior General of the Paulist Order in the United States. Mgr. Burke succeeds the late Very Rev. John J. Hughes, of this city, who died about two months ago. Mgr. Burke was elected Superior General at a meeting of the General Chapter of the Order, held in the Paulist Monastery at Fifty-ninth Street and Columbus Avenue. Mgr. Burke, who is in the city, declined to make a statement last night.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., June 26.—The Rev. Thomas Francis Burke, C. P. S., has been for four years head of the Paulist Fathers in Chicago, and pastor of St. Mary's Church at Ninth Street and South Wabash Avenue.

Mgr. Burke was born in Chicago in 1871; and studied for seven years at St. Xavier's Academy and College. Following his ordination Father Burke was in Toronto, Canada, for a number of years, where he founded a Newman Society in the University of Toronto for the benefit of Catholic students. In August, 1915, he came to Chicago as successor to the Very Rev. D. J. O'Callaghan, who went to Washington, D. C. It is said Mgr. O'Callaghan was Father Burke's closest rival for election as Superior General of the Paulist Fathers.

One of Mgr. Burke's brothers, John Joseph Burke, is editor of the Catholic World, New York, and another brother, William Augustine, is Supervisor of Immigration at Washington, D. C.

SENATE PASSES NAVAL BILL.

Carries $644,000,000 in Appropriations—Aviation Gets $35,000,000.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The Naval Appropriation bill passed the Senate today virtually as reported by the Senate Committee, and now goes to conference. It carries approximately $644,000,000, an increase of more than $44,000,000 over the House total.

Without debate the Senate approved a committee amendment increasing the fund for aviation from $15,000,000, voted by the House, to $25,000,000.

Wilson to Get First Victory Medal.

URGES CONGRESS TO STOP SHIP SALES

Senator Fletcher Opposes Disposal of Our Newly Built Tonnage to Private Interests.

WANTS HOG ISLAND GROUND

Asserts Government Ought to Take Option and Continue to Build Vessels There.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The adoption of a permanent merchant marine policy probably will be hastened by the program which has been adopted by the United States Shipping Board of disposing of a number of its large steel cargo carriers to private American interests. A sale of nineteen of the ships at prices ranging from $210 to $225 a deadweight ton was made recently by the board and, hearing that more sales are contemplated, the Senate has taken cognizance of the situation.

An effort was made today by Senator Fletcher, a minority member of the Senate Commerce Committee, to obtain action on a resolution recommending that the sales be stopped. There was a general debate in which Mr. Fletcher received general support, but no action was taken, pending a further investigation.

Senator King, Democrat, during the debate, asked if the Government, in selling at $210 a ton, was not suffering a loss.

"I have no doubt that the board is getting all that can be had for these ships," replied Senator Fletcher. "I am impressed that $210 a ton is a very excellent price for steel ships. This idea of selling ships because they can be sold at or a little above cost, when they can pay for themselves in a few months, is a mistake. There is a real shortage of ships, and will be for some months and perhaps years to come. Freight rates will continue abnormally high. The Government ships can serve our commerce on advantageous terms to shippers and still earn enormous profits, and I believe that should be done, rather than sell the ships and have those profits go to the purchasers.

"We are now seriously threatened with a policy which will place us where we were in 1914. It is that we are to cancel contracts right and left. We are to sell our ships. We are to rely on the patriotism and vision and enterprise of private individuals to keep our flag on the ocean and use the ships which the Government has built and sold them, and such as they may build, to save the country, the producers and manufacturers and merchants from being dependent on our competitors in foreign markets for the delivery of our goods."

Senator Fletcher said that since the armistice the Shipping Board has canceled contracts calling for 3,937,000 deadweight tons, of which about 2,500,000 were steel and the remainder wood. The keels were not laid for about 3,500,000 tons of the cancellations, he said. Completion of existing contracts, said Senator Fletcher, will bring the aggregate of completed ships to about 13,000,000 deadweight tons.

The war ended with a deficit of 18,062,000 deadweight tons in the world's shipping, said Senator Fletcher. He quoted the following figures:

Allied and neutral tonnage in 1914	39,465,000
Losses during the war	21,404,000
Construction, allied and neutral	14,247,000
Enemy tonnage acquired	3,795,000
Loss due to failure to build	14,713,000
Net deficit due to war on June 1, 1919	18,062,000

The value of the world's shipping in July, 1914, was only $2,500,000,000, said Senator Fletcher. The United States, he said, plans to spend $3,800,000,000 and own one-fourth of the world's shipping when the authorized program is completed.

"The Shipping Board and the Director of Operations recommend that the Government discontinue the construction of ships as soon as existing contracts are performed," Senator Fletcher continued, "that the Government sell its ships and retire from the operating business. The very important question is, therefore, what shall be the future policy of the Government in respect to these matters. Congress must determine now whether:

"1. The Government shall cease the building of ships when those under contract are completed. If so, what is to become of the Hog Island plant, which has cost about $60,000,000 as it stands, the yard at Bristol, Penn., and rights under the option respecting the submarine boat yard at Newark and interests in other yards?

"2. Shall the Government sell off all its ships, built and acquired, and if so, upon what terms and conditions?

"3. Shall the Government cease the operation of its ships entirely and abandon all organization and plans heretofore undertaken in that connection?

"I think unquestionably we are taking our place on the sea. The problem now is, what shall we do to maintain that position and increase it?

"On the first question, as to policy regarding construction, I do not favor the abandonment of all construction by the Government and scrapping the yards in which such large sums of money have been invested. I think the Government might gradually work out of construction, but in the meantime get the benefit of the plants and facilities already created and build such ships for such purposes as the country needs.

"For instance, we have the option to acquire the title to the Hog Island property, on which we have expended about $66,000,000, for $1,740,741.15, and we can exercise that option at any time. It embraces 927.14 acres of land, with about a mile frontage on the Delaware River, including riparian rights, piers, fifty shipways, warehouses, railways, water, sewer, and lighting systems, buildings, and improvements of every nature. As a great ocean terminal the property is worth practically what it has cost, but at auction it would not bring one-tenth its real value.

"But whatever we do as to the agency yards at Bristol and Newark we should unquestionably exercise our option and acquire title to the yard at Hog Island. My judgment is we ought to continue to build ships there."

ASKS ABOUT LAND BOUGHT.

House Resolution on Camp Sites Introduced Aimed at Baker.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Representative Mott, Republican, New York, introduced a resolution today asking Secretary Baker to furnish the House with detailed information concerning purchases of land by the War Department since June 15, when the House passed the Army Appropriation bill containing a provision prohibiting land purchases.

Mr. Mott said he understood Major J. J. McConnell had paid out $3,000,000 for purchases at Camps Lee, Taylor, Pike, Sherman, and Travis.

Dying Soldier Sends His Only Possession, a Diamond Ring, to Jewish Welfare Board

The Jewish Welfare Board announced yesterday that Mrs. Schwartz, Chairman of the Entertainment Committee of the Jewish Welfare Board of Staten Island, had received the following note, signed by a patient of the Fox Hills Military Hospital:

"Dear Mrs. Schwartz: I take pleasure in leaving you this token of my esteem and affection. You and your organizations are the only ones that have brought sunshine into the last days of my life."

Accompanying this letter was a little envelope containing a diamond ring of unique setting and a note from the surgeon of the hospital explaining that it was the patient's last desire before he died that the ring be delivered to Mrs. Schwartz.

In his note the surgeon added: "It might interest you to know that this ring was all that the poor boy had. It must have been an heirloom for he treasured it above everything. The head nurse tells me that the soldier was not satisfied until he got the explicit assurance that the ring will reach you. He then died peacefully. It might also interest you to know that the soldier was not a Jew."

POGROM STORIES WERE EXAGGERATED

All Entente Representatives at Warsaw Agree Reports Were Highly Colored.

JEWISH REDS FOUGHT POLES

British Official Representative's Version of What Happened in the Streets of Vilna.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 26.—Official reports have now been received here concerning the recent fighting between Jews and Poles.

The British representative at Warsaw reports that when the Poles entered Vilna, street fighting occurred for three days. Thirty-four Polish soldiers and sixty-four Jews were killed. Of the latter, ten were shot in the street fighting and the rest were executed for firing from houses at the Polish forces. The British representative adds that large quantities of machine guns, rifles, ammunition, and bombs were discovered in the homes of Jewish members of the Bolshevist administration, who had offered active resistance to the Poles.

After order had been restored 200 Jews were arrested and tried before a commission composed of Jews and Poles. About half have already been released. The commission is still at work and is sending many more home day by day.

Demonstrations also took place on June 6 at Cracow, and one Christian woman was killed and 55 men were wounded, of whom 22 were Jews. Considerable quantities of arms were found in Jewish homes and a number of arrests ensued.

All Entente representatives at Warsaw agree that the reports of Jewish pogroms in Poland have been greatly exaggerated. J. K. Prothero has also challenged these reports in an article in The New Witness. He denies the accuracy of statements concerning a massacre at Pinsk which were published here on May 6. He refers to statements circulated from Copenhagen that "on Easter Sunday almost the entire Warsaw press published anti-Semitic articles. The Gazette of Poranna invited the masses to take revenge for the crucifixion and for the evident loss of Danzig, which is said to be the consequence of Jewish agitation."

Prothero denies of his own knowledge that such statements are true. He was in Warsaw on Easter Sunday and that day not a single newspaper was published. There was a general holiday, he says, and none of the printers and compositors worked.

F. S. PEABODY FOR SENATOR.

Chicago Merchant to Run for Place Sherman Will Vacate.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 26.—Francis S. Peabody, Chicago merchant and prominent in the Democratic Party, is to be drafted as Democratic candidate for United States Senator in the 1920 campaign. Mr. Peabody will run for the vacancy occasioned by the fact that Senator Lawrence Y. Sherman, Republican, is completing his present term next year and will not be a candidate for re-election.

Mr. Peabody enjoys considerable influence with party leaders throughout the nation, many of whom, it is said, have encouraged local Democrats to centre attention on him. President Wilson is numbered among his close political associates.

Mr. Peabody was born in Chicago July 24, 1859. He is a graduate of Yale in the class of 1881, and now is President of the Peabody Coal Company, the Consumers Company, and other large corporations of the city.

STRIKE BLOCKS EXPRESS CO.

Westcott Suspends Deliveries Under Demand for 100% Advance.

The walkout of one hundred wagonmen of the Westcott Express Company has resulted in a suspension of deliveries by that company, although it was said yesterday that the assistance of other express companies and taxicabs had prevented any congestion of baggage already on hand.

C. C. Lambert, general manager of the company, said the demands of the men for shorter hours, more wages, and no Sunday work amounted practically to more than 100 per cent. increase, and that the company had no intention of granting the demands.

Patrolmen are on guard at the headquarters of the company, Lexington Avenue and Forty-second Street, but thus far the strike has been conducted in an orderly manner.

OLD 71ST MEN RETURN.

Arrive at Newport News on the Transport Artemas.

PHILADELPHIA, June 26.—The transport Santa Barbara, with thirty-one officers and 1,545 men aboard, docked here today. On the Santa Barbara are the 155th Provisional Battalion, Battalion Headquarters; 236 Sales Commissary Unit, 318th Field Remount Squad, 3d Clothing Squad, 341st Butchery Company, 64th Camp Hospital; 1st Camp Hospital, 16th Veterinary Hospital; 31st Sanitary Squadron, 21st Military Police, 251st Military Police, 254th Aero Squadron; 638th Aero Squadron, 28th Aero Squadron, and 66th Engineers.

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., June 26.—The transport Artemas arrived here today from St. Nazaire with 4,500 officers and men, including members of the 54th pioneer infantry, created from the old 71st New York Regiment. Many negroes, members of the 529th Engineers, also were aboard. Other troops on the vessel were the 80th Transport Corps, three casual companies, and 270th Bakery Company.

CHARLESTON, S. C., June 26.—Three thousand troops arrived here today on the transport Zeelandia from Brest. Among the units were 308th Engineers, 309th Service Battalion, detachments of 224th Engineers, 305th Remount Squadron, 336th Engineers, 223d Infantry, and a casual company from Illinois.

L. M. GOLDBERG LIQUOR ADV.

In the wine and liquor advertisement of L. M. Goldberg, 380 8th Avenue, inserted yesterday, the price of the Fenwick 8's bottled in bond appeared as $2.00 instead of $2.60. Attention is called to the L. M. Goldberg advertisement on Page 13 today.—Adv.

COURT VINDICATES ANOTHER WOMAN

Judge Wadhams Reverses Magistrate Cobb and Criticises Vice Squad Police Activity.

SENDS REBUKE TO ENRIGHT

Declares It Is Not the Duty of Detectives to Abet the Commission of Offenses.

Another woman seeking removal in the criminal courts of the stigma of arrest and conviction on the uncorroborated testimony of vice-squad policemen, had her case reviewed by Judge Wadhams in General Sessions yesterday. He reversed the conviction by City Magistrate Cobb and rebuked the police and criticized their methods on the ground that if any offense had been committed the arresting officer aided and abetted its commission.

This appeal was made by Mrs. Louise Hutchins, a widow, living with her son, eight years old, at 115 West 104th Street, who asserted that she was innocent of the charge of soliciting, which was made against her following her arrest on Jan. 10 by Detective Thomas Cassidy at Broadway and Forty-eighth Street. She was convicted the same night in the Women's Night Court on the uncorroborated testimony of Cassidy. Sentence was suspended, however, by City Magistrate Cobb, and she was placed on probation for one year.

The statements of Mrs. Hutchins and of Cassidy, as presented to Judge Wadhams in the appeal, differ very materially. Mrs. Hutchins said that her presence on Broadway that night was due to engagements she had with army officers concerning entertainment projects for soldiers, a work in which she had been engaged for some months during the war in her capacity as a public entertainer, and that this conference concluded with a dinner at Rector's. Through her attorney, Maurice L. Rippe, Mrs. Hutchins gave this version of the circumstances of her arrest:

"I had left the party and had started homeward when I was accosted by a man, whom I supposed at first was one of two civilians who had been present at our dinner. At his suggestion I accompanied him to a supper table at Churchill's. When I announced that I was going home he said he would take me home in a taxicab. We got into the vehicle and he took me to the West Forty-seventh Street Station, where I was held on the charge afterward made in court. The man, whom I supposed was a friend of one of the diners, a Mr. Greenbaum, was Policeman Cassidy."

Cassidy told the court that Mrs. Hutchins had asked him for $20. Judge Wadhams, in reversing the conviction and vindicating Mrs. Hutchins, made this statement of the facts and of his opinion of the case:

"It is conceded upon the argument that a police officer assigned to special duty for the purpose of protecting the moral standard required by the code in the City of New York, while on duty, engaged in conversation with a young woman, and thereafter took her to a restaurant known as Churchill's; that while in this place the police officer and the defendant had supper together. It does not appear in the record whether this was paid for by the police officer out of the public funds or out of his private funds. Thereafter a cab was entered, with the ostensible purpose of taking the defendant home.

"It is alleged by the people through this witness that the defendant acted in a manner which brings her within the provision of the statute while in the company of this officer.

"It is unnecessary to examine whether or not the evidence, which was the unsupported testimony of the police officer, if believed, would establish this charge beyond a reasonable doubt, for the reason that the method of procuring the evidence offends the public conscience. If any offense was committed, the officer aided and abetted, if he did not procure, its commission.

"Officers of this city are not employed by the people to accost young women and take them into public restaurants and spend the evening with them for the purpose, if possible, of thereafter having them commit an offense and arresting them. The act on the part of the policeman is as much more indecent than anything that the woman could have committed that his own statement of his manner of conduct in the obtaining of evidence does not warrant belief in his testimony."

Judge Wadhams instructed the Clerk of the Court to call the attention of Police Commissioner Enright to the conduct of his officers. The court said:

"It is time these methods on the part of police officers were stopped. It is the duty of the Police Commissioner to see that the conduct of his detectives is such as to warrant that confidence in the Police Department which the city has always had in its police officers."

John C. Watson, an ex-justice of the peace in California, now of 323 West 22d Street, summoned Dr. John Knox of 344 West 22d Street to Jefferson Market Court yesterday, charging him with disorderly conduct in striking his 14-year-old son, John Watson, Jr., on June 11. Magistrate Francis X. Mancuso, after a full hearing, dismissed the complaint.

"My decision is not influenced by a fear that it may be reversed in a higher court," said the Magistrate. "Bombastics, rattle-brained talk and spread-eagle oratory do not worry me, nor is my conviction of justice and right to be changed by such loud-voiced comments."

Former Assistant District Attorney Anthony Burke, who appeared for Dr. Knox, said: "Do your remarks refer to me?"

"They do not," rejoined the Magistrate. "The hasty critic I refer to is not now in court, but I wish he were."

McADOO IN PEACE LEAGUE.

To Serve on Executive Committee—Other New Members.

The League to Enforce Peace announced yesterday that William G. McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, had joined its National Executive Committee, and would hereafter take part in directing the work of the organization.

Other members elected to the League's National Executive Committee are: John M. Whitehead, formerly State Senator of Wisconsin; Martin T. Manton of New York, Federal Judge for the Second District, and Major Fred J. Miller of Center Bridge, Pa.

M'GURK WARNS BRITISH LABORITES

Tells Conference Advocates of Direct Action Risk Civil War.

PROTEST AGAINST BLOCKADE

Delegates Also Vote for Admission of Germany Into League of Nations.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 26.—Many eyes are anxiously fixed this week on Southport, where the annual conference of the Labor Party is being held, for signs which will indicate what is in store for this country in the admittedly difficult times coming.

The opening session has gone far to inspire confidence that organized labor will keep a level head and thereby act as a counterweight against the extremists whose ambitions and desires outrun the relatively slow processes of constitutional action. It is already being predicted that Southport may hear hot language but will register cool decisions.

One of the first matters taken up was the question as to whether the Triple Alliance of Transport Workers should take direct action to obtain political ends. Robert Smillie and Robert Williams are protagonists of such a move and they have behind them a strong feeling on the part of the labor world against conscription and interference in Russia. They want to bring about a great strike in order to force the Government into the adoption of their views and immediate action embodying them, regardless of all other counteractions.

A majority of the labor leaders, however, regard strikes for political purposes as unconstitutional and argue that labor can obtain due consideration for its political demands by political weapons without having recourse to industrial weapons, which should be reserved for industrial purposes. A strong lead was given in this direction by Chairman McGurk. After referring to the rise of Bolshevism, McGurk said the western democracy having successfully emerged from the protracted struggle with militarism, there was danger, unless peace was speedily vouchsafed, of a new conflict.

Negotiations in Paris had been full of difficulties and perplexities. There were two conflicting diplomacies, the old and the new. President Wilson and Lloyd George, who was an advocate of the new policy, had to contend with very strong opposition on the part of the French, Italian and Japanese representatives to secure Nationalist aims rather than firm international settlements. As a result there had been a number of compromises and violations of principles which labor could not approve.

There was, however, much in the settlement with which labor could identify itself, especially the League of Nations. Turning to the question of direct action, McGurk appealed to labor to remain constitutionalists.

The movement which was on foot to employ the strike weapon for political purposes, he said, would be an innovation which few responsible leaders would welcome, but the danger was there and the proposal was being canvassed with energy.

Robert Williams, who, incidentally, described Winston Churchill as the British Kolchak, spoke hotly in favor of direct action, and Robert Smillie asked where did political questions end and trade union questions begin. The present Government was sitting in its place by fraud and corruption, and its stoppage by the trade unions might be constitutional and justified.

James Sexton agreed that the Government had grossly deceived the country on the question of conscription, but there was another general election coming and labor had only to get ready for it.

"A few years of sound agitation and preparation is better than risking, and you are risking, (he said to Smillie and Williams,) a civil war in this country which will destroy all your organization. If you destroy government by national strike. What are you going to put in its place? You would be letting loose elements that would lead to anarchy. It is all very well to talk about revolution. I am a revolutionist of social character, but I do not believe in letting mad dogs run loose."

Other speakers for and against followed, among them being Arthur Henderson, who wanted the question settled at once, but on Chairman McGurk saying the subject should be reserved for further discussion a decision was postponed.

SOUTHPORT, England, June 26.—The British Labor Party conference today adopted a resolution calling for the speedy admission of Germany to the League of Nations and the immediate revision by the league of the "harsh provisions of the treaty which are not consistent with statements made on behalf of the allied governments when the armistice was made." There was only one dissenting vote.

The resolution, which was introduced by J. Ramsay Macdonald, also called upon the labor movement in conjunction with the Socialist Internationale to undertake a vigorous campaign in support of the policy enunciated in the resolution "as the first step toward the reconciliation of peoples and the inauguration of a new era of international co-operation and good will."

Mr. Macdonald said he agreed that if Germany had won the war the peace terms she would have made would have been far more severe. He declared Germany must bear the burden of her actions, but that her punishment should not be in the form of revenge.

John R. Clynes, former Food Minister, who seconded the resolution, said that Germany should be punished through reparation and indemnities because the annexation of territory would leave behind it a sense of wrong.

Another resolution adopted by the conference protested against the blockade of Germany and against the failure to incorporate in the peace treaty measures for the restoration of industry throughout Europe, with equality of fiscal treatment. It also protested against the lack in the peace treaty of any adequate international control of raw material and food.

SWEDEN FIRM ON ALANDS.

But Offers to Submit Dispute with Finland to Peace Conference.

STOCKHOLM, June 25, (French Wireless Service.)—The Swedish Government, in replying today to a note from the Government of Finland, insists that the question of the future of the Aland Islands (in the Gulf of Bothnia, between Sweden and Finland,) shall be settled by a plebiscite.

It is declared that if the Finnish Government does not wish to negotiate on the basis proposed in the Swedish note of November, 1918, Sweden will put the question before the Peace Conference.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, June 25, (French Wireless Service.)—The new constitution adopted today by the Diet provides that the first President shall be elected by the Diet. His term of office will be six years.

R-34 Is Unable to Start Flight Before Tuesday

EAST FORTUNE, Scotland, June 26.—The giant British dirigible R-34 will not be ready to begin the proposed flight across the Atlantic before Tuesday.

Mechanics now are at work putting in one motor and overhauling another. The navigator is on leave until Tuesday.

PRESBYTERIANS WILL PUSH WORK ABROAD

Announce Plan to Spend $500,000 to Aid Protestants in War Zone.

ANSWER CATHOLIC ATTACK

Fund Will Not Be Used for Proselyting Purposes, Dr. Foulkes Declares.

The restoration of devastated Protestant Churches in the war zone will be pushed at once by the Presbyterian Church in the United States, according to plans announced yesterday at Presbyterian Headquarters, 156 Fifth Avenue. Dr. William Hiram Foulkes, General Secretary of the Presbyterian New Era Movement, said that $500,000 would be spent this year by the Presbyterian Church in this cause. Of this amount, about one-half according to the plans is to be spent among Protestant bodies in France and Belgium which are accredited agencies of the evangelical churches in those countries, the money to be disbursed directly by the agencies themselves, for the salaries and equipment of pastors, for the training of students for the Gospel ministry, for the rebuilding of churches and manses, for the support of schools and theological institutions directly connected with the agencies to which funds are sent, and for approved co-operative community activities among the various evangelical Protestant bodies.

About one-fourth of the fund will be appropriated to the agency for the Waldensian Church of Italy, including specific gifts made directly to the Waldensian Church by individual Presbyterian givers. About one-fourth of the fund will be spent among Protestant bodies other than Presbyterians in the war zone.

An immediate survey, it is announced, will be made of the needs of these Protestant Churches, preliminary to the distribution of funds, some of which have already been pledged. Monthly remittances will be made to the agencies which it has been determined to assist, and these agencies will be required to make accounting and frequent reports. Relief work, it is announced, is to be conducted with a minimum of administrative expense, as the Chairman, Treasurer, and Secretary of the Presbyterian General Assembly's Committee in charge of the work will serve without compensation. None of the funds, the announcement says, will be used for any members of the Committee to make trips to Europe; but in case it is necessary for any representative to visit Europe special provision will be made for such expense.

Organization of the Committee.

Dr. H. G. Mendenhall of 311 West Seventy-fifth Street was elected permanent Chairman of the Committee and Dr. Foulkes permanent Secretary. Dwight H. Day, Treasurer of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, was made Treasurer of the Committee by the action of the Presbyterian General Assembly.

The Committee chose an Executive Committee as follows: Dr. Mendenhall, Dr. Foulkes, Dr. Arthur J. Brown, Dr. David G. Wylie, Dr. Sylvester W. Beach of Princeton, W. S. Coffin, and Colonel H. W. Hodge.

The Executive Committee appointed Dr. Foulkes, Mr. Coffin, and Colonel Hodge as a committee to confer with similar committees from other evangelical churches contemplating similar work in Europe, with a view to co-operating and avoiding duplication. Chairman Mendenhall appointed Mr. Coffin to make a study of the situation in France, Dr. Wylie and Mr. Coffin to investigate the condition of the Protestant Churches in Bohemia, and Dr. Beach for special investigation of the possibility of evangelical work among the Germans.

Dr. Foulkes Outlines Plans.

Dr. Foulkes said that the Presbyterians' plan was to restore and build up Protestant churches and agencies already established, and that the fund was not to be used for proselyting purposes.

"In view of the attack of high officials of the Roman Catholic Church, stating that our aim is to Protestantize France," said Dr. Foulkes, "it is proper to reaffirm the definite purpose of the Presbyterian General Assembly's Committee, which is not to build up a fallen Church in France, but to assist all the needy Protestant churches of France that are already there and that have as much right to existence and support as has the Roman Catholic or any other Church.

"The Presbyterian Church," continued Dr. Foulkes, "has successfully undertaken to secure a fund of approximately $500,000 for the relief of the stricken Protestant churches of the war zone. It has been actuated by feelings of humanitarian sympathy for those who with scant resources have lost so heavily. It has recognized the ties of a common Christian faith and the obligations resting upon the virile Protestantism of the United States to help its struggling sister churches in Europe.

"To read into this worthy and broad-minded service a sectarian purpose and a hostile attitude toward any other Church is entirely unjustified. It is an interesting theory, although it is very ancient, that the mere carrying on of Protestant Christianity is an attack upon Roman Catholicism. The Presbyterian Church has consistently proclaimed the principles of Protestant Christianity in every land and will continue to do so with increasing power. Its purpose is positive, not negative.

"The struggling Protestant churches of France and Belgium and the brave representatives of the Waldensian Church of Italy, with other similar bodies elsewhere in the war zone, deserve the utmost support that can be given them by the enlightened people of a free nation and a free Church, who have steadfastly resisted tyranny of every sort, both political and religious.

"The Roman Catholic Church has every right to support its work abroad by the gifts of its adherents in America, although it was not permitted to include several millions of dollars for the reconstruction of Roman Catholic churches in Europe in the recent united war drive. The Protestant churches have not alone the same right, but they have also the responsibility to propagate those conceptions of religion which are so nearly parallel to the moral issues for which America stood in the recent war.

"The Presbyterian Committee does not regard this work in France as foreign mission work in pagan lands, but instead as an exemplification of a spirit of helpfulness to sister churches."

REACH AGREEMENT IN PRODUCE STRIKE

Employes Promise to Return to Work Today Under Terms of Settlement.

FOOD CRISIS IS AVERTED

Pact Approved at Conference Covers Period Lasting Until May 1 Next Year.

CONTRACT A COMPROMISE

Drivers to Get from $28 to $30 a Week and 11-Hour Day—$30 a Week Wage for Porters.

Following a conference of several hours in the rooms of the Boosters' Club, 178 Franklin Street, last night between produce merchants and representatives of the teamsters, chauffeurs, and porters employed by them who have been on strike since Monday morning, announcement was made by both sides that a satisfactory agreement had been reached and the men would return to work this morning. The meeting was attended by Joseph R. Buchanan, United States Commissioner of Conciliation, sent from Washington to help effect a settlement of the strike, which rapidly was bringing a food crisis to this city.

The terms of the agreement were given out by L. J. Lippman, chairman of the dealers' committee, as the labor representatives left to go to the headquarters of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, 205 Chambers Street, where many of the strikers were waiting to hear the result of the conference.

"A satisfactory agreement has been reached by the three sides, the produce trade, the market truckmen and the truck drivers," Mr. Lippman said. "Some concessions were made by all, and as a result an amicable compact has been made until May 1, 1920, at least. Provision was made against the possibility of a peremptory strike in the future. There is also a special arbitration clause in the contract."

Under the terms of the settlement the drivers obtain an eleven-hour day with a wage of $28 a week for a single team and $30 for a double team. A ten-hour day and $30 a week wage was granted to the porters.

The settlement came as a surprise, as earlier in the day, commission merchants said they had the situation well in hand. It is believed the threat of the butter and egg men, whose union numbers about 4,000, to join in a sympathetic strike, beginning this morning, hastened the decision of the employers to meet their men. The commission merchants had expressed a willingness to discuss the differences with the porters, but they are allied with the Market Truck Owners' Association which had refused to grant the demands of the drivers.

The merchants were able to move perishable produce with the aid of non-union labor. Before noon, nearly all the fruit and vegetables had been loaded on trucks, and were on the way to various parts of the city. For the first time since Sunday, cars at Jersey City were unloaded and their contents carted to New York. The trucks moved under heavy police guard to the New Jersey Central Ferry. Much of the merchandise had spoiled, it was discovered when the cars were opened.

In the market district along Washington Street fifty-four patrolmen and mounted police under Captain Dan Costigan patrolled the district against possible outbreaks by the strike sympathizers who went to the vicinity. No attempt was made by the strikers to interfere with the activities of their employers. At strike headquarters Benjamin Popp, business agent of the men, said only "a few guerrillas" had been put to work.

Approximately 1,500 carloads of foodstuffs are on sidings in the Pennsylvania and New Jersey Central yards, the accumulation of four days. Additional men will be put to work today unloading the produce and releasing the cars, which the railroads badly need.

ASBURY PARK REFUSES TO HEAR LA FOLLETTE

Protests by Citizens Result in the Cancellation of Senator's Lecture Engagement.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., June 26.—United States Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin has been withdrawn as a speaker at a concert by Anna Case in the Ocean Grove Auditorium on July 5. This was announced here today by S. Hurok, managing Director of the Van Hugo Musical Bureau of New York, which has leased the auditorium for a series of concerts.

The action was taken as the result of growing protest against the appearance of the Senator. Mr. Hurok said he had tried through a speakers' agency to engage Champ Clark or William Jennings Bryan, but had been unsuccessful. When Senator La Follette was offered he accepted, believing there would be no objection to him, he said.

"We accepted him only because the concert that night is to be our first concert, and we thought it would help popularize the entertainment," said Mr. Hurok. "We have substituted for Mr. La Follette the Rev. Newell Dwight Hillis of Plymouth Church, Brooklyn."

Mayor C. E. F. Hetrick and Dr. Thomas H. Pratt, President of the Board of Education, voted last night with ten other members of the educational round table, at a dinner in the Coleman House, to protest against the proposed speech. Colonel John W. Aymar, a member of the Board of Education, made the motion, which was seconded by Dr. Pratt, who declared Senator La Follette was "a four-flusher."

Others who voted for the protest, which was unanimously adopted, were Postmaster Harrison C. Hurley, City Commissioners George W. Pittenger, Dr. H. S. Kinmouth, and Thomas J. Winckler, Dr. James F. Ackerman, and City Clerk Harry B. White.

FAIL TO HASTEN STRIKE.

French Metal Workers Unable to Advance for General Walkout.

PARIS, June 26.—The Executive Committee of the Metal Workers' Union has failed in its attempt to have the proposed general strike begin before the date already selected. The metal workers in the Paris district are on strike at present, and hope to be able to get the support of a general strike.

The committee in charge of the general strike decided that to advance the date or in any way modify the plans might endanger the success of the strike. The metal workers, however, will receive financial help.

MARSTON MEDALIST FOR FOURTH TIME

Baltusrol Golfer Leads Big Field in First Round at Apawamis with Card of 73.

NEARLY 100 IN TOURNEY

Ashforth and Peacock Tie for Second Place, with 77—First-Round Matches Will Begin Today.

With a lead of four strokes over his closest rivals, Max Marston of Baltusrol won his fourth medal of the season in the qualifying round of the Apawamis Club invitation golf tournament yesterday with a card of 73. Close to 100 contestants had entered, and out of these enough finished to fill five sixteens.

Intermittent rain during the day made things generally uncomfortable for the players, but despite this the scoring was decidedly on the low side, 83 or better being required to make the first sixteen.

Only two others out of the field, A. B. Ashforth of Garden City and Grant Peacock of Princeton, got below the 80 mark, each making the round in 77. Marston and Ashforth played together, the former New Jersey champion going out in 36, to 37 for Ashforth. In fact, so fast did the latter go that for fourteen holes he more than held his own with his playing partner.

Marston started with a trio of fours, and practically the only mistakes on his part were at the eleventh and fourteenth holes. At both he had penalty strokes in the water, taking five at the eleventh and seven at the long fourteenth. His card follows:

Out	4	4	4	5	3	4	4	3	5	—36
In	4	5	3	3	7	4	3	4	4	—37—73

John M. Ward, the veteran Garden City man of baseball fame, just managed to squeeze in with an 83, 41 out and 42 back, as was the case with B. T. Allen, former Staten Island champion, who had 45, 38—83.

Even though he had two penalty strokes on the inward half, W. H. Gardner of Buffalo, former college star, managed to make the last nine in 38. He had gone out in 44, which gave him a total of 82. T. V. Bermingham, representing Wykagyl, one of the best in the Westchester district, also had 42, 38—80, while Gaines Gwathmey of the home club finished with 41, 39—80.

H. L. Downey, another Apawamis man, had all manner of fault to find with his score yesterday. After getting a fine 38 to the turn, he needed 48 for the second half, for a total of 86. He took three putts on several occasions, and at one hole coming back he holed out in 8. His score landed him in the second sixteen, while another fine player in that division is Morton L. Fearey, former Staten Island champion. Feary had 43, 42—85.

Those who made the main division are scheduled to start their first-round matches this morning at 9:52, pairs to follow thereafter at four-inmute intervals. The draw follows:

Ashforth vs. B. T. Allen, Gardner vs. Hill, Lima vs. Holland, Ladd vs. Marston, Hall vs. Gwathmey, Conner vs. Ward, Bermingham vs. Brewster, Sulzberger vs. Peacock.

MAX BOHLAND TO COMPETE.

Will Run at Singer Employes' A. A. Meet at Elizabethport.

Max Bohland of the Paulist A. C., national cross-country running champion, will compete in two events Sunday at the annual track and field meet of the Singer Employes' A. A., to be held at Elizabethport, N. J. Bohland has entered for the 1,000-yard handicap run, in which event he will receive an allowance, and for the two-mile handicap run. In the latter race the hill-and-dale titleholder will start from scratch.

Twenty-eight runners are scheduled to oppose Bohland in the two-mile chase, all of them liberally handicapped. In the 1,000-yard run, Homer Baker of the Glencoe A. C. will compete from scratch.

William Plant, former national seven-mile walking champion, will return to competition after an extended period of inactivity. Plant has entered for the two-mile walk, in which his most dangerous rivals will be Lieutenant Frank P. Keiser and Joseph II. Pearman.

A number of local clubs have entered strong track teams in an effort to win the point trophy. The Paulist A. C. and Glencoe A. C. top this list with thirty-five entries each. Brooklyn A. A. and Mohawk A. C. have nominated thirty-three entries each.

RED SOX MAKE BIG DEAL.

Trade Barry and Strunk for Roth and Shannon.

A baseball deal that has been quietly under consideration for some time was completed yesterday when the Boston Red Sox traded Jack Barry and Amos Strunk to the Philadelphia Athletics for Bobby Roth and Maurice Shannon. Harry Frazee, owner of the Red Sox, announced the completion of the deal last night, and said that no money was involved.

Frazee, it is known, has been trying for three weeks to make a deal with Connie Mack. However, the tall leader was not ready to accept the proposition the Boston owner made him. Frazee, it is understood, did not at first wish to part with both Barry and Strunk.

The deal is one that is expected to help both clubs. Manager Barrow has been planning to make a change on his club since the team has been unable to get up into the first division. He felt new blood was needed in the club. At the same time, there has been a cry in the American League for more strength in Philadelphia and Washington, which two clubs are making such a poor showing that it has affected the receipts in both towns materially and other club owners are complaining.

Barry and Strunk were originally developed by Connie Mack, and sold by him when he dismantled his famous champions. They returned to the club where they made their reputations. Bobby Roth has been playing good ball for several years, and Shannon is a young player developed by Mack who has great promise, and who has been playing very well this season.

YANKEES FURTHER AHEAD.

Though Idle, Advance Through Defeat of Indians and Sox.

The rain kept the Yankees idle yesterday, but the enforced layoff came as a blessing in disguise. While the Huggins' athletes were resting the Tigers were trouncing the Cleveland Indians, while the Browns were beating the Chicago White Sox.

As a result of these setbacks to their closest rivals in the race for the league calico, the Yankees advanced to an advantage of a game and one-half over Cleveland, and two games over the White Sox. The standing is complicated somewhat by the fact that the trailing teams have played in more games than the Yankees, and have, therefore, won and lost more.

The idleness is expected to put the Yankees on edge for the Boston Red Sox, who come here this afternoon to open a five-game series. Two games will be played this afternoon at the Polo Grounds, the first commencing at 1:30 o'clock. The other games will be decided on Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

HARVARD GOLFERS LEAD.

Crimson Trio Take Places in Intercollegiate.

PHILADELPHIA, June 26.—Three Harvard players, two men from Yale and one each from Princeton, Pennsylvania and Columbia survived the first round of match play for the individual championship of the Intercollegiate Golf Association staged under great difficulties at the Merion Cricket Club late this afternoon.

The weather was bad enough in the morning, when the qualifying round was run off, but it grew infinitely worse in the afternoon, when for a while it seemed that the matches would have to be postponed. Many of the contenders threatened to forfeit, but only one man in the first flight declined to toe the mark.

Those left in the fight for the title are T. B. Davis, Captain of the Yale team, who carried off the low-score medal in the qualifying round, and who meets R. M. Round of Pennsylvania in the second match play tomorrow; A. L. Walker, Jr., the Columbia Captain and former metropolitan interscholastic champion, who tackles H. S. Lake of Harvard tomorrow, J. Simpson Dean of Princeton, medal winner at the recent Lynnewood Hall and Wilmington tournaments, plays Sidney Scutt, the brilliant Eli youngster, tomorrow, and Ralph Wales of Harvard, will take on his teammate, C. W. Baker, tomorrow morning.

On form it looks as though either Dean or Scott should come through in the lower bracket, while Davis and Walker are fighting it out in the upper half.

There were only two close matches in the first round, Dean having to travel to the nineteenth hole before trimming J. H. Douglas, also of Princeton, while Round of Pennsylvania barely nosed out D. E. Coburn of Yale by 2 and 1.

The summary:

First round of match play:

First Sixteen.—T. B. Davis, Yale, defeated E. H. Herendeen, Princeton, 6 up and 4 to play. R. M. Round, Penn., defeated D. E. Coburn, Yale, 2 up and 1 to play. A. L. Walker, Columbia, defeated J. B. Seamans, Penn., 5 up and 3 to play. J. S. Dean, Princeton, defeated I. H. Douglas, Princeton, 1 up, (19 holes.) Sidney Scott, Yale, won from H. Maxwell, Princeton, by default. R. H. Wallace, Harvard, defeated G. S. Webster, Penn., 5 up and 4 to play. C. W. Baker, Harvard, defeated W. H. Potter, Harvard, 4 up and 3 to play.

Second Sixteen.—H. E. Calves, Penn., defeated R. McCague, Princeton, 4 up and 3 to play; S. B. Duncan, Harvard, drew a bye; Daniel Rhodes, Penn, drew a bye; L. Liggett, Harvard, defeated Bert Bell, Penn, 7 up and 5 to play; D. Jones, Harvard, defeated E. L. Rhodenburg, Columbia, 3 up and 2 to play; R. W. Thorington, Princeton, won from R. A. Hight, Princeton, by default; R. K. Hanson, Pennsylvania, defeated J. P. Tunis, Columbia, 9 up and 7 to play. T. B. Davis, Yale, won the qualifying round and gold medal during the morning session. He turned in a card of 77.

Princeton led in qualifications with five men, Harvard was second with four, Pennsylvania and Yale had three each, and Columbia one. All of Williams's men withdrew.

The players to qualify were:

Davis, Yale, 77; Baker, Harvard, 78; Walker, Columbia, 82; Dean, Princeton, 83; Coburn, Yale, 84; Wales, Harvard, 84; Lake, Harvard, 85; Scott, Yale, 85; Seamans, Penn, 86; Potter, Harvard, 86; Herendeen, Princeton, 86; Douglas, Princeton, 87; Round, Penn, 87; Webster, Penn, 88; Maxwell, Princeton, 90; Jones, Harvard, 90; Rhodenburg, Columbia, 90; McCague, Princeton, 90.

Maxwell won from Jones, Rhodenburg, and McCague in the play-off.

Four Left in Connecticut Golf Play.

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., June 26.—W. Parker Seeley of Brooklawn, R. H. Deming of Hartford, Roger H. Hovey of Shuttle Meadow, and E. L. Scofield of Woodway were the winners in this afternoon's play of 18 holes in the annual State championship of the Connecticut Golf Association on the Shuttle Meadow course. In the semi-finals of thirty-six holes tomorrow Deming will meet Seeley and Hovey will play Scofield.

Bobby Jones in Semi-Final Round.

NEW ORLEANS, June 26.—Today's play in the seventeenth annual championship matches of the Southern Golf Association left Whitney Bouden and Nelson Whitney of New Orleans and Louis Jacoby of Dallas and "Bobby" Jones, Jr., of Atlanta, to compete in semi-final rounds tomorrow. Jones is the present title holder.

TIGERS WIN LONG TILT WITH INDIANS

Heilman's Triple and Flagstead's Single in Twelfth Break Up Pitching Duel.

DETROIT, June 26.—Harry Heilman's triple and a single by Flagstead, with one out in the twelfth inning, gave the Tigers a victory over the Cleveland Indians here this afternoon, 1 to 0. The two hits, coming in quick succession, brought to an end one of the best pitching duels that has taken place in the major leagues this season.

Hy Jasper, recently rescued from the minors by the Cleveland Club, outpitched Bernie Boland, the home pitcher, up to the fatal twelfth. He had allowed only four hits, all singles, and they were so separated that nothing had developed in the way of a run. Jasper had retired Veach, first home batsman to face him in the twelfth, when Heilman crashed one to the bleachers in centre for three bases and carried in the winning run on the single which followed.

Boland allowed the Indians only five singles, and two of these went to the credit of Jasper. Both teams backed up the pitchers in brilliant style, with Young, Bush, and Gardner starring on the defense.

PECK'S BATTING STREAK.

Yankee Shortstop Has Hit Safely in Last Fourteen Games.

Roger Peckinpaugh's latest batting streak has reached its fourteenth consecutive game, and if Peck can hit safely in his next two games he will tie his previous mark for hitting in consecutive games. He had gone through sixteen games without missing a hit up to the game of June 5 at the Polo Grounds when Eddie Cicotte of the White Sox held him hitless.

The new streak began on June 11 in the second game of the series between the Yankees and Detroit Tigers, and in the fourteen games played since that date Peck has made a total of twenty-seven hits in fifty times at bat, a .540 clip over a stretch of two weeks' play. One game produced four hits for the New York shortstop, in three other games he hit safely three times, four other games were good for two hits each, and six times he got but one hit per game. During this hitting streak four home runs have bounded off Peck's bat.

Peck incidentally climbed above the .390 mark by making two hits in three times at bat against Perry. He continues to lead the league by a wide margin and he has been climbing steadily for several days.

REDS HAVE BIG INNING.

Pound Adams Hard and Beat the Pirates by 7 to 0.

CINCINNATI, June 26.—In a game that was stopped by rain at the end of the first half of the sixth inning, Cincinnati beat Pittsburgh today, 7 to 0. A batting rally off Adams in the fourth, which included five hits, combined with a base on balls and a wild throw by Barbare, gave the Reds six runs.

BIG IMPOST FAILS TO HALT CIRRUS

S. C. Hildreth's $25,000 Colt, with Loftus Up, Captures Heavyweight Handicap.

Cirrus, the three-year-old son of Tracery-Morningside, regained some of the $25,000 S. C. Hildreth paid to H. P. Whitney for him last Fall by carrying off the heavyweight handicap at Aqueduct yesterday in a very game manner. With an impost of 127 pounds, many believed the colt had been harshly treated by Mr. Vosburgh, but the finish was a vindication of the handicapper. Showery weather did not seriously affect the attendance, for it was estimated that 8,000 watched the sport, but it was an afternoon of intermittent drizzling, and few of the jockeys were fortunate enough to finish with dry silks. The track was slow, but to the eye not seemingly in bad shape, and the races were truly run.

On his début for the season on Tuesday Cirrus was outpaced by Dominant and Ima Frank, carrying 112 pounds, and this, with the two facts that he was conceding weight by the scale, and is regarded by many as one that likes a longer distance than six furlongs, enabled his followers to get plenty of 4 to 1 against him. Peter Piper and Rodgers, well in at 108 pounds, were both at shorter prices. Ultimatum, starting after a long rest, did not make the successful comeback that some anticipated.

Peter Piper was first from the barrier attended by Ultimatum, which ran into the lead and for a spell flattered his supporters. But lack of condition evidently told, for Ultimatum quickly shot his bolt and slowed up to a canter. Cirrus, nicely ridden by Loftus, waited on the pace until the sixteenth post. Then he came with a rush and volplaned past Peter Piper, who hung on gamely and was only beaten by half a length.

War Zone, which had a poor ride from Hamilton when last out at Jamaica, had some supporters in the tenth renewal of the Union Selling Stakes for three-year-olds, but he was at no time a contender. Youneed, very much at home on the slow course, was much the best of the field and won nicely by a length and a half. Daydue, the champion three-year-old of the New Orleans meeting last Winter, led the others by two lengths for the place, and Day Due in a drive just beat out the favorite Lion d'Or for the show honors.

In the steeplechase for four-year-olds, Elysian made his first appearance since his purchase by Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark last Fall at Belmont Park for $6,000, and made a stirring finish with Edward M. Weld's Belle o' the Sea. The latter was a well-supported favorite and Elysian in as strong demand as second choice. The two were real contenders, Elysian waiting on the pace, but Belle o' the Sea running a waiting race under Crawford's good judgment of the situation. At the last turn Crawford made his run, and as Kennedy with Elysian had plenty in reserve, the two were over the last fence like a team and they made a splendid finish. Belle o' the Sea, however, had the speed and captured the verdict by half a length.

Miss Shackleton, on her performance at Havre de Grace and Pimlico, and Fair Colleen, which was an improving filly at Jamaica, were well thought of in the two-year-old dash that opened the card, but J. W. McClelland's St. Germain was the actual favorite. An outsider, R. R. Doctor's Glen Light, which was only nibbled at, although at 12 to 1, made a decisive ending, after making the pace, by winning by three lengths, with St. Germain about as far from Miss Shackleton, which finished third.

Thirteen in the field proved no hoodoo for Andrew Miller's stanch five-year-old Ticket, but it may have kept some of the wise ones off the son of Ballot, for there was plenty of 8 to 1 against him. Always a good performer on a holding track, as his sire was, Ticket began slowly, but when called on came through as an arrow from the bow, and captured the race by nearly two lengths. Basin was second, about the same distance from N. K. Beal, which was four lengths ahead of Lord Herbert, the 9-to-2 favorite, and the bunch.

An even dozen faced the starter in the closing race, at four and a half furlongs, for maiden fillies. This time a crowd did not mean an upset. Hal Parr's daughter of Fair Place, favorite at 5 to 2, came through with a rush when urged in the stretch, and won pulling up by a length. Walter M. Jeffords's Flying Flower, strongly backed as second favorite, was as easily secure for the place honors.

MEADOW BROOK FOUR WINS.

Defeats Cooperstown Poloists by 8 Goals to 5¼.

Special to The New York Times.

HEMPSTEAD, N. Y., June 26.—Star poloists from the Meadow Brook and Cooperstown Polo Club lined up here today in the semi-final match for the Meadow Brook Club cups for teams under existing handicaps. Cooperstown, aggregating twenty-two goals for its team, allowed the Meadow Brooks two goals handicap. This apparently was unnecessary, as the Long Islanders won by a net score of 8 to 5¼ goals.

The winners lined up with Fred McLoughlin, Fred H. Post, Shaw McKean, and Devereux Milburn. Cooperstown played with F. S. Von Stade, C. Perry Beadleston, Charles C. Rumsey, and Frederick N. Prince, Jr.

A slight shower at the commencement of the match left a slippery course. This resulted in Perry Beadleston coming a nasty cropper at the opening of the second chukker. At the ending of the fourth chukker, Major Milburn was struck on the elbow by the ball which Shaw McKean was passing to him. The severe blow stopped play for a while. When play was resumed Milburn made a brilliant drive and scored a difficult goal from the south boards at midfield. Fred Post, a three goal man, was the spectacular player of the game, scoring five goals.

During several melees while Meadow Brook was at the goal, Post picked the sphere from the ponies' feet, scoring handily. Von Stade did some remarkable riding for Cooperstown in the last half. Of the seven goals hit, Rumsey made two and Beadleston one.

The summary:

Meadowbrook—By earned goals, 7; allowed by handicap, 2; lost by penalties, 1; goal for two fouls; net, 8 goals. Cooperstown—By earned goals, 4; lost, 1¼; goal by penalties for three foul crosses and one safety; net score, 5¾. Referee—Captain Harry H. Holmes. Timer and scorer—J. Eugene Geer.

PROTEST A. A. U. DECISION.

Glencoe A. C. Officials Insist Friedlander Was Eligible.

The situation arising out of the recent Intersectional Athletic League track and field meet at Macomb's Dam Park, when the athletes of the Paulist A. C. and Glencoe A. C. tied for the point prize, was further complicated yesterday when the Glencoe A. C. officials filed a protest with the A. A. U. on the decision of the Registration Committee which declared P. Friedlander ineligible to compete for the Glencoe A. C. Friedlander scored a double victory for the Glencoe A. C. His performance was disallowed, however, on the ground that he had not properly filled out his entry blank. This decision deprived the Harlem club of some of its points and gave the Paulist A. C. title to the point cup.

In a written protest yesterday the Glencoe A. C. submitted that Friedlander was perfectly eligible to compete as a member of the club. It was stated that no provision had been made on the entry blanks for athletes to fill in the numbers of their registration cards. Through this oversight on the part of the officials of the Intersectional Athletic League no registration numbers were printed, as is customary, opposite the athletes' names on the program. The entry blank, it was stated, provided only that in order to be eligible an athlete must be a member of a club in good standing with the Intersectional Athletic League. The Glencoe A. C. is affiliated with the Harlem and Heights Athletic League, a subsidiary of the Intersectional Athletic League.

Basing their contention on these facts the Glencoe A. C. officials are prepared to demand a rehearing of the case. It is probable a special meeting of the Registration Committee will be called soon and the case thoroughly discussed.

Friedlander was not the only competitor disqualified after gaining points in the recent meet. F. Harrison of the Mohawk A. C. and J. Schwartz, a novice of the Hungarian-American A. C., were also declared ineligible on similar grounds to those on which the decision was made in Friedlander's case, that the athletes had allowed their registration cards lapse.

COMPULSORY ATHLETICS.

All Dartmouth Freshmen Must Participate in Sports.

HANOVER, N. H., June 26.—Announcement was made today that participation in athletics would be required of all freshmen at Dartmouth College next year. Freshmen will be permitted to express their preference for any particular sport. Harry Hillman, track coach, will be in charge of the system.

American Boxer Loses in Paris.

PARIS, June 25, (By Associated Press.)—Ted Jamieson, light heavyweight of Milwaukee, was defeated on points in a bout here last night by Nilles, a French heavyweight. Jamieson was national A. A. U. 175-pound champion in 1917.

WILLARD AND DEMPSEY GET DOWN TO THE HARDEST OF INTENSIVE WORK IN TRAINING CAMPS

WILLARD PRACTICES TERRIFIC UPPERCUT

Champion Specializes on Blow He Thinks Is Adapted to Dempsey's Style of Fighting.

CHALLENGER KEEPS BUSY

Goes Six Rounds and Appears to Be Ready Now to Step Into Ring in His Quest for Title.

Special to The New York Times.

TOLEDO, Ohio, June 26.—Big Jess Willard went through ten rounds of boxing at his Casino camp on Maumee Bay this afternoon. The champion was care free and playful with his sparring partners and he let them all bang away at him to their heart's content, and none of them could erase the smile from his face. Three rounds with Jack Hempel, three with Walter Monahan, two each with Joe Chip and "Steamboat Bill" Ward, and one with a new boxer, Fred Allen, constituted Willard's day of work.

Before and after the bouts, Jess quickened about the ring shadow boxing. In this part of his matinée, Willard cut holes in the air with short, swift uppercuts. With no opposition in sight, these uppercuts looked savage. There seems to be some method in Big Jess's seemingly pantomime.

In Dempsey's crouched style of fighting his jaw is always stuck out some distance ahead of his body. The place where Jess directs these imaginary uppercuts is just about the spot where Dempsey's jaw would be under ordinary conditions. Hence, one cannot help but believe that Willard is practicing this uppercut for a purpose. He does not use it against his sparring partners, perhaps because he considers their jaws too brittle.

Dempsey on His Toes.

There was a striking difference between the work of the two fighters this afternoon. Over at Dempsey's camp at the Overland Club the challenger boxed six rounds with his sparring victims. He was on his toes all the time, he ducked and sidestepped and one-stepped all over the ring with an elasticity of step which reminded one of a highly trained sprinter waiting for the starting gun. He cut loose a lot of hard smashes. One of them bowled the Jamaica Kid over so quickly that the Kid didn't know what hit him. The challenger went six rounds, two with Big Tex, two with the Jamaica Kid, and two with Jock Malone of St. Paul.

When Dempsey was boxing, his jaw was set and there was a serious look on his face. He looks as if he was ready to step into the ring to fight for the heavyweight title right now. With Willard it is different. Only occasionally does he land a solid blow. He is always spilling his punches. He cut Walter Monahan's lip with a jab and made Joe Chip's mouth bleed, and then seemed sorry that he had hurt his sparring partners.

Willard is his own boss. He directs his own training. He does as he pleases. There is no discipline or method about his work. He goes about it with an indifference which delights the folks who believe that Dempsey is going to win. They say that Willard is 38 years old if he is a day. Maybe he is. There is a supreme confidence about him while he is in the ring which gives one the impression that he regards this coming fight as a mere canter. There is an undeniable impression that he feels that he has nothing to worry about.

Willard Smothers Partners.

Willard, with his remarkable reach of 84 inches, was able to smother all his boxing partners any time he felt like it. Willard boxed this afternoon with his mouth open and between rounds seemed to be puffing considerable. The Dempsey fans say that Jess's wind is short and that he ought to have more road work. The champion compelled all his sparring partners to pay a lot of attention to his wind. Jess let his arms hang at his sides and told them to whale away at him as hard as they could. It must be remembered that Jess was set for these smashes in the wind, and that's quite a different matter than when a boxer gets a crack in the wind when he isn't expecting it. While he was boxing Joe Chip he told him to punch him in the solar plexus. Chip walloped him for all he was worth high in the chest.

Jess smiled and said: "That is not the solar plexus; it's down here," and he pointed to the right over the belt where he wanted Chip to smash him. The champion looks a lot better than he did when he fought Frank Moran in New York in 1918. For a man his size, his beltline looks reasonably small, although he seems rather soft amidships when he isn't set for the stomach blows. He wears nothing but blue trunks and his skin is clear and healthy looking. Willard will be in no better condition for the fight on July 4 than he is right now. His work in the ring appears slow, but it is plenty fast enough to smother any activity on the part of his sparring partners.

Willard's fight with Moran didn't call for the speed which he had to show against the black man. In Dempsey, however, Willard is going to meet a man who is remarkably fast for a heavyweight.

Willard is not worrying. His argument is that he will fight when he has to and not before. Willard is lazy while training; there is no denying that fact. Dempsey is just the opposite. He bounds around as if he was on springs, and, in fact, his friends would like to see him slow down a bit. They are afraid that he may be too fine for the big scrap when it comes.

Crowds Watch Boxers.

Toledo is all agog about the fight. Every day is a holiday. The cavalcade which goes out to the training camps every afternoon reminds one of a circus crowd. Hundreds of autos clog the roads and the parade just crawls along to Maumeebay. Hundreds of fashionably dressed women go out to see the boxers work. They stand in the hot sun and seem to enjoy it, while the mosquitos buzz around. Both training camps were so jammed with spectators today that it was impossible to move around comfortably in the inclosures. The gate money at the training shows will amount to quite a bit. Dempsey gets the largest crowd because he charges only a quarter, while Jess gets half a dollar. The training camp receipts are piling up into thousands of dollars.

Tex Rickard will announce the name of the referee tomorrow. It seems pretty certain that it will be Ollie Pocord, the local official. The State boxing authorities here want him, and the promoters want to favor the officials as much as possible. Rickard will be one of the two judges, for it is said that is the one thing which Willard has insisted on. The other judge will probably be either Bill Brown of New York or Jack Welsh of San Francisco.

The big arena in Bayview Park will be finished in time for the fight. The wooden octagon is completed on seven sides except for the installation of the board seats; the framework is all up. One side of the octagon is left open so that all the excess lumber and machinery can be carried out before the inclosure is built up.

The arena will seat 80,000 spectators, and there are still plenty of seats. Rickard says that the high-priced seats are going fast and that Wednesday's sale alone reached $20,000. The gate will amount to a million, there is no doubt.

The motion picture part of the show has been settled. The pictures will be marketed by a syndicate in which Rickard, Willard, Dempsey, and Frank Hall of New York will have equal shares. The pictures can be exhibited in Ohio and anywhere outside of the United States. They can't be taken to another State to be shown. Billy Roche has arranged with the promoters to take the pictures to Europe and show them to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Visitors are coming into town fast. Around the Secor Hotel it looks just like Times Square, and many of the sporting sentry who parade Broadway are already here and the hotels are crowded. They have signs up in the lobbies that all reservations are gone for July 2, 3, and 4.

Little Betting Yet.

Dempsey is a hot favorite here. There is a lot of betting talk, but most of the bets thus far are only conversational. Joe Mulvihill of Danbury, Conn., says he has a millionaire under his wing who is willing to bet $100,000 on Dempsey at even money. The real betting hasn't started yet. The sports say there will be plenty of Willard money here before the Fourth. The few bets that have been recorded are long shots that Dempsey will crack huge Jess on the jaw in the first or second round and send him snoring. Naturally, the odds on this interesting turn of affairs are very long.

Frank Moran, who was beaten by Willard in 1916, arrived today, and shook hands with Jess for the first time since that fight. Moran chatted with Jess a long time, while the crowds in the hotel lobby waited around with eyes and mouths open, many of them expecting, perhaps, that the boxers would get angry at each other. Moran says that Willard will win. So does Charley White, the Chicago lightweight, who arrived today.

REFEREE FOR FIGHT PICKED.

Board Is Silent on Choice, Which Will Be Announced in Toledo.

The referee for the Jess Willard-Jack Dempsey heavyweight championship boxing bout, to be held in Toledo July 4, was selected last night at a meeting of the Association of Boxing Control. Members of the board refused to divulge the identity of the ring arbiter, following the meeting. It was announced that were a number who declared they were telegraphed to Toledo to Promoter Tex Rickard, and would be made public from Toledo.

In the absence of any definite announcement as to who would referee the bout, speculation was rife among followers of boxing. Ollie Pecord of Toledo, whose name was among those suggested, was declared to be the most likely choice for the position, and there were an umber who declared they were willing to wager Pecord would get the assignment. It is understood that with Pecord in the ring as referee, Bill Brown, a veteran referee, and Robert Edgren, a writer, would act as ringside judges.

WOULD STOP BIG FIGHT.

Resolution Asking Governor to Act Introduced at Washington.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—A resolution requesting the Governor of Ohio to prevent "the threatened desecration of the nation's birthday" by a prize fight between Willard and Dempsey at Toledo, July 4, was introduced today by Representative Randall, Prohibitionist, of California.

"One of the participants in this proposed fight," Mr. Randall said, "engaged in a similar fight a few years ago with Jack Johnson, a fugitive from justice, who has confessed that he was bought off and threw the fight to his adversary. Why should a fight between bruiser slackers, who were not brave enough to join the war against German murderers, be permitted in this country?"

RIGHTS FOR PICTURES LET.

Frank G. Hall Successful Bidder for Willard-Dempsey Pictures.

It was announced yesterday at the office of Frank G. Hall, President of the Independent Sales Corporation, that Mr. Hall had returned from Toledo, Ohio, with the motion-picture rights to the Willard-Dempsey fight in Toledo on July 4.

No sum of money was mentioned, the only additional information being that the nearest bidder to Mr. Hall was the Pathé Company. A camera man and a director will leave at once for Toledo to make pictures in the training quarters of the fighters.

COLL DEFEATS CROZIER.

Wins Easy Victory in Bout at Bensonhurst Y. C.

J. Coll of the Kennedy Boys' Club, a newcomer in amateur boxing, scored a surprising victory last night over Edward Crozier of the Bronxdale A. C. in the final bout at 140 pounds of the Bensonhurst Yacht Club's monthly tournament. Crozier, a runner-up for Metropolitan A. A. U. title laurels, was completely outclassed and outboxed by Coll throughout the three-round session. Crozier, however, tried hard from start to finish of the bout.

J. Zeller, Pastime A. C., and A. Epstein, Mercury A. C., furnished an interesting struggle for the 120-pound prize. So hard did the lads battle that the judges were unable to agree on a winner at the conclusion of the regulation three rounds and an extra period of two minutes was ordered by the referee. This session ended with the judges in another disagreement, and then the referee awarded the bout to Zeller.

Sol Seemen of the Brooklyn A. A., New York State 108-pound champion, carried off the prize for the 110-pound division, scoring over H. Levine, Clark House A. A., in the final bout.

The summaries:

120-Pound Class.—Semi-Final Bouts—J. Schwartz, Clark House A. A., defeated Harold Evans, Kennedy Boys' Club, three rounds, judges' decision; Edward A. Young, Eastern District Y. M. C. A., defeated D. Murphy, Brooklyn A. A., three rounds, judges' decision. Final Bout—Schwartz defeated Young, three rounds, judges' decision.

140-Pound Class.—Final Bout—J. Coll, Kennedy Boys' Club, defeated Edward Crozier, Bronxdale A. C., three rounds, judges' decision.

MRS. WARING WINS IN TENNIS TOURNEY

Her Victory Over Mrs. Pritchard in Straight Sets at Orange Is a Surprise.

Although rain prevented the continuation of the men's events in the Middle States Championships at the Orange Lawn Tennis Club yesterday afternoon, several matches in the women's singles were completed before play was interrupted, and a start was made with the women's doubles.

The upset of the day came in the defeat of Mrs. W. H. Pritchard by Mrs. S. H. Waring in straight sets, 6—3, 6—3. The latter has always classed with the best of the local women players so far as strokes and court tactics were concerned, but has hitherto lacked endurance and physical strength to make her game thoroughly effective in obtaining tournament results. Yesterday, however, she refused to tire, even though facing an unusually steady and hard-hitting opponent. Mrs. Pritchard depends upon the speed and placement of her drives to bring the points, and the persistent defense of Mrs. Waring gradually deprived her of her usual control, so that she lost many a rally through errors. It was fast tennis, however, and the winner fully deserved her success. Mrs. Waring then started a third round match against Miss Martha Bayard, but this was abandoned with the score all even.

Another surprise was the strong battle put up by Mrs. E. S. Eberhardt against Mrs. Robert Le Roy, the former winning the first set at 6—3 before the back-court expert could get well started. Mrs. Le Roy, however, squared the match by the same score, and, with her strokes eventually rounding into real form, swept through the rubber without the loss of a game.

Miss Florence Ballin and Miss Florence Sheldon played perhaps the best tennis of the third round, the former taking two sets, 6—3, 6—4, but having to work hard for the points all the way. It was the superior getting ability and greater driving power of Miss Ballin that won for her.

Miss Marie Wagner, after a straight-set victory over Mrs. Miller in the third round, took on Miss Helene Pollak, who had advanced by her even more one-sided defeat of Miss Louise Scherer. These two steady drivers became involved in a tennis argument which threatened to run to the limit of their endurance, Miss Wagner leading at 6—5 in the opening set when the rain interrupted the match. The rallies were long, both players having excellent control of their strokes, but lacking the punch to kill the ball for the points, and depending upon errors, which were very slow in coming. Miss Wagner's slight advantage of versatility was just beginning to assert itself when time was called.

Mrs. D. C. Mills reached a semi-final bracket yesterday through her victory over Mrs. Ingo Hartman in straight sets, 6—1, 6—2. The only other singles winner was Miss Muriel Parker, who eliminated Mrs. N. Dain at 6—3, 6—2.

Only one match was started in the doubles, and this did not progress far beyond the first set. Mrs. L. Gouverneur Morris and Miss Florence Ballin getting a 6—4 advantage over Miss Mulqueen and Miss Ceres Baker, the Metropolitan Girls' runner-up. The games were 1—all in the second set, when the rain stopped further play.

The summaries:

Middle States Championship.—Women's Singles—Second Round—Mrs. S. H. Waring defeated Mrs. W. H. Pritchard, 6—3, 6—3.

Third Round—Miss Helene Pollak defeated Miss Louise Scherer, 6—1, 6—4; Miss Marie Wagner defeated Miss J. Miller, 6—1, 6—3; Miss Muriel Parker defeated Mrs. N. Dain, 6—3, 6—2; Mrs. Robert Le Roy defeated Mrs. E. S. Eberhardt, 3—6, 6—2, 6—0; Mrs. S. H. Waring vs. Miss Martha Bayard, 6—6, (unfinished;) Miss Florence Ballin defeated Miss Florence Sheldon, 6—3, 6—4.

Fourth Round—Miss Marie Wagner vs. Miss Helene Pollak, 6—5, (unfinished;) Mrs. D. C. Mills defeated Mrs. Ingo Hartman, 6—1, 6—2.

Doubles.—First Round—Mrs. L. Gouverneur Morris and Miss Florence Ballin vs. Miss Mulqueen and Miss Ceres Baker, 6—4, 1—1, (unfinished.)

AMERICAN NET PLAYERS WIN

Take All Matches from English at Wimbledon.

WIMBLEDON, June 26, (By Associated Press.)—In the third round of the tennis tourney today, Dean Mathey (America) beat U. S. Brown, (England) 6—3, 7—5, 6—3.

M. J. G. Ritchie (England) beat Capt. Cassels, (America) 6—0, 6—1, 6—4.

Capt. Watson M. Washburn (America) beat P. F. Parker, (England) 6—3, 7—5, 6—3, 6—3.

Capt. Graves (America) beat W. C. Crawley, (England) 6—0, 6—3, 6—4.

Miss Ryan (America) beat Miss McKane, (England) 6—1, 6—4.

READY FOR NET TOURNEY.

Many Local Stars to Try for North Side Title.

One of the largest of the local tennis tournaments begins tomorrow afternoon at the University Heights Club, 191th Street and Harlem River, the title at stake being that of the north side championship, with a challenge cup in competition as well as first and second prizes in singles and doubles. Last season this event drew over eighty entries, and, according to the report of J. W. Mersereau of the Tournament Committee, the number will be exceeded by tomorrow's list.

The present north side champion is Frank T. Anderson of Brooklyn, who is also the holder of the Metropolitan junior and Long Island titles. Frank is the younger of the two Anderson boys, and will appear as the playing-through defender in the University Heights tourney, while his brother, Fred C. Anderson, will also make another try for the north side honors. Francis T. Hunter of Cornell and the United States Navy, a former holder of the challenge cup, will attempt to repeat his success in the coming event, and another prominent contender of the past is Albert J. Ostendorf, recently returned from France, where he competed in the officers' tournament of the A. E. F. Leon Croley and Alex Iler, one of the best doubles teams of the season, are entered individually and collectively. Young Iler did his best work of the season this week in holding the metropolitan champion, S. Howard Voshell, absolutely even in forty games, divided at 5—7, 7—7, 6—6, with no decision possible, and his play tomorrow will be watched with interest. Ingo Hartman, Allen Behr, J. H. Steinkampf, E. H. Binson, and others of the regular metropolitan circuit are sure to be among the entries, while the home club itself will contribute such stars as H. H. Manchester, W. M. Fischer, R. J. Clapp, E. H. Henderson, Paul Martin, and J. W. Mersereau.

A concert was given by the University Heights Club at the Fordham Community Theatre last night, with Edna Kellogg, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company; Robert McNamara, baritone; John Palmer, monologist, and other artists on the program, and a tennis dance is scheduled for tomorrow evening at the clubhouse.

Play will begin on the eight clay courts of the club at 2:30 tomorrow afternoon, and it is planned to finish the tournament on the Fourth of July. The grounds may be reached by Broadway subway to 207th Street, or by train from Grand Central to University Heights Station. They lie on the east side of the Harlem River, just north of the 207th Street bridge.

STRONG NET TEAMS NAMED.

Chicago-California Combination Has Star Players.

The announcement of the names of players who will make up some of the teams which will compete in the intersectional team tennis tournament at Cincinnati July 10 assures some high-class competition. The Chicago-California combination looms up as a strong contender. The players named for this combination are Samuel T. Hardy, Jr., of Green, Jr., and Ralph H. Burdick, all of Chicago, and William M. Johnston, Axel Graven, and Robert Kinsey of California.

Among the Easterners who are expected to compete against this strong combination are William T. Tilden, Jr., of Philadelphia; Vincent Richards of Yonkers; Ichiya Kumagae, formerly of Japan, but now making his home in New York; S. H. Voshell of Brooklyn, and Wallace Johnson of Philadelphia.

MAKING PLANS FOR TENNIS TITLE PLAY

Committees Named to Handle National Championships at Forest Hills.

Plans for the national tennis championships which begin Aug. 25 at the West Side Tennis Club, Forest Hills, L. I., were discussed in detail at a recent meeting of the club's tournament committee, of which Julian S. Myrick is Chairman. This committee acts with the one representing the United States National Lawn Tennis Association, consisting of President George T. Adee, Edwin F. Torray, and C. Frederick Watson, Jr. The preliminary arrangements involve several changes which are expected to find favor with every one interested in the events.

Six championships are to be decided at this tournament—the national singles, the junior and boys' championships in singles and doubles, the veterans' championship, and the father and son championship. This variety of competition, as an attraction for the spectators, will be increased by the probable entry of many players of note from other countries.

In view of these favorable prospects the committee decided to return to a seating plan approximating that of 1914, when thousands of spectators were accommodated. Work will begin in a few weeks on the erection of the stands. Hugh C. Guiler has charge of this feature of the arrangements.

An innovation will be the placing of the working press gallery on the roof of the clubhouse porch. This brings it close to the courts and players, but because of the limited space seats will be assigned to working representatives only on application from the papers which desire to be represented. Edward B. Moss, O. L. Becker, and Paul B. Williams have charge of arrangements for the press.

The entertainment of visiting players will be in the hands of Stuart Johnston and Charles S. Landers.

Harry Parker will handle the tickets, as in past seasons, and these will soon be available at 101 Park Avenue, telephone Vanderbilt 111. Season tickets, good for a seat during the whole tournament, cost $5.50, and will be sold until Aug. 20. Daily tickets will be sold only at the grounds on each day of play. They cost $1.10 until Saturday, Aug. 30, then $2.20 for the rest of the matches. William A. Campbell will be in charge of police arrangements inside and outside the grounds, and William A. Gallon and G. A. L. Dionne will be in charge of the grounds.

Details of service in the clubhouse, lockers, meals, tents, and the like have been assigned to C. G. Heyliman, and Raymond D. Little will see to the extra train service required by the crowds attending the championship. S. W. Merrihew will supervise the preparation of score cards, draw sheets, and program, and to Lyle E. Mahan and W. D. Hadsell has been assigned the task of securing a corps of ushers.

George T. Adee, President of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association, is referee of the tournament. Edward Conlin and Elon K. Hooker will provide the corps of umpires required to handle the matches.

Through its Tournament Committee, composed of L. R. Hayes, E. R. Wiley, B. E. Easley, F. T. Fogg, M. Gibson, H. Riddell, and David Robertson, the South Side Tennis Club of Chicago has issued announcements of the ninth clay court championship. The events, which begin on July 12, include men's singles and doubles, women's singles and doubles, and mixed doubles. Entries close on July 10, except for the women's events, which close on July 14. These must be addressed to the club, Seventy-third and East End Avenue, Chicago. Out-of-town players are not required to report until Monday, July 14.

George T. Adee, President of the National Association, has been named as referee. From the number of entries already in hand the committee anticipates the largest tournament that has ever been played for this title.

AMERICANS WIN ON RANGE.

Take First Eighteen Places in Le Mans Tourney.

LE MANS, June 26, (By Associated Press.)—The United States made a clean sweep of the honors today in the individual rifle competition of the Interallied games on the d'Avours range. American marksmen took the first eighteen places in the matches. The lowest score made by any of the twenty-five of the American entries landed that rifleman in thirty-fourth place. There were 175 marksmen representing eight nations.

First Sergeant Stanley Smith of Cleveland won the championship with a score of 275 points out of a possible 300 on the international targets. He led the field at all ranges except one.

The runner-up medal went to Gunnery Sergeant Lester V. Henson of Divernon, Ill., with a score of 266. Third place was won by Corporal Richard J. Titus of Hackensack, N. J., with a score of [illegible].

An overcast sky, a cold rain, and a strong, treacherous wind, made the shooting difficult.

Louis Percy of France led the competitors of other nations. His score of 245 gave him nineteenth place. After an unfortunate start on the short ranges, he improved remarkably and at 500 and 600 yards lip both slow and rapid firing he shot among the best. Major William O. Morris of Canada was twentieth with [illegible].

The leading marksmen of other competing nations, their scores, and their standings, were:

Major Vasile Glutsou, Rumania, 216; forty-first place; Lieutenant Licurgee Fabi, Italy, 204, forty-ninth place; Sergeant Andre Vrhos, Greece, 203, fifty-first place; Sergeant Alfredo Hais, Portugal, 197, sixtieth place; Private Seraphin Cornelius, Belgium, 191, seventy-second place.

PADDOCK IS VICTOR IN 100-METER DASH

Californian a Winner, with Teschner Second, at Interallied Games.

PERSHING STADIUM, France, June 26, (Associated Press)—C. W. Paddock, Pasadena, Cal., won first place in the 100-meter final of the interallied games here today. Edward Teschner of Lawrence, Mass., was second. Howard of Canada was third. Paddock's time was 0:11⅓.

Three Americans qualified yesterday for the finals of the interallied games in both the 110-meter high hurdles and the 200-meter dash. In each event two Americans won their heats in the semi-finals and one ran second. The hurdlers qualifying were Robert L. Simpson of Chicago and Fred W. Kelly, Los Angeles, who won their heats, and W. B. Ames, Oak Park, Ill., who was second to Wilson of New Zealand.

American athletes took the first three places in the grenade-throwing contest. Chaplain F. C. Thompson, Los Angeles, won with a throw of 74 9-10 meters. His brother, S. C. Thompson, was second with 73 1-10 meters. Dominick C. Wycavage, Luzerne, Penn., was third.

The soccer football team representing the United States beat the Canadians in a strong finish.

The first incident to mar the good feeling that has prevailed during the games occurred today. A number of French enlisted men, contestants in the games, were invited into the covered grandstands when rain began to fall. When American military police told them to leave the crowd protested. After much hooting by the crowd and shoving and pulling by the military police, Colonel Johnson of the Games Committee marshaled the police. Order was re-established and good feeling soon prevailed.

EDDIE MAHAN TO COACH.

Will Handle Boston College Eleven in Autumn.

BOSTON, June 26.—Lieutenant Edward Mahan of the Marine Corps, former captain of the Harvard eleven, will coach the football team of Boston College next Fall, it was announced today. Mahan, who is now in Rumania, sent word that he expected to return in July. He acted as coach for the University of Southern California eleven several years ago. He will succeed Charles E. Brickley, another former Crimson captain, as Boston College coach.

FIGHT NEWS FOR SOLDIERS.

K. of C. to Install Ringside Service at Its Community Centres.

The Knights of Columbus is arranging for a ticker and bulletin service from the Willard-Dempsey fight to hospitals, camps and K. of C. community centres throughout the country where soldiers are housed. This service will give the wounded and other veterans a detailed account of the fight while it is actually in progress, as an expert sport writer has been detailed to cover the story.

In many instances K. of C. secretaries will be in attendance to provide the men with smokes and other little comforts. In New York the service will be installed in Greenhut's, Polyclinic, Fox Hills and Gun Hill Road hospitals.

CASH READY TO MEET RAILROADS' NEEDS

Dividends and Other July 1 Obligations Will Be Paid Without Certificate Issue.

TOTAL OVER $100,000,000

Director Hines Opposes Bill to Restore Rate-Fixing Power to Commerce Commission.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The United States Railroad Administration will meet all essential July 1 requirements of the railroads under its control with cash payments and without the issuance of additional certificates of indebtedness, it was announced tonight. Slightly more than $100,000,000 will be necessary and this will be provided by economies and by the readjustment of funds now at hand.

Reports which it is stated have been circulated in New York City and other financial centres to the effect that the Railroad Administration was facing serious difficulties in obtaining the monies necessary and might not be able to meet the legitimate requirements for July 1 were denied officially at the Railroad Administration offices tonight.

These reports, it was stated, have absolutely no foundation in fact and the necessary cash to assure the payment of dividends and the satisfaction of other obligations will be available.

Former Representative Swager Sherley, now at the head of the financial division of the Railroad Administration, is in charge of the work of providing the funds needed, final preparations for furnishing which were made at conferences today.

The decision not to issue further certificates of indebtedness was reached when the House and Senate passed the bill providing an addition of $750,000,000 to the revolving fund of the Railroad Administration. The Administration had asked for $1,200,000,000, but the $750,000,000 granted, which will be available as soon as President Wilson is able to attach his signature to the bill, will be sufficient for the present. In cutting down the appropriation to this sum the intimation was given that further funds would be made available if the future situation warranted such action.

Appearing before the House Interstate Commerce Committee today on the bill to restore the power of fixing railroad rates to the Interstate Commerce Commission, Walker D. Hines, Director General of Railroads, testified that the Railroad Administration was thoroughly studying the present situation and the increasing deficits, with the purpose of reducing expenses as far as possible. Then, if necessary, he said, rates would be increased to wipe out deficits occasioned by increased cost of materials and wages and falling off in business.

Mr. Hines said he opposed the bill because it would divide authority between the President and the Interstate Commerce Commission. He said that while the President had control of the roads, and could increase operating expenses, he should also have power to increase rates if necessary. The bill under consideration, which has already passed the Senate, would restore the rate-fixing power to the commission and permit the President to control the operating expenses.

"As a matter of principle, it is wrong to have the President responsible for the operation of the railroads and at the same time give the commission the power to suspend rates before it has been decided they are unreasonable," said Mr. Hines.

"Does the Railroad Administration, at the present time, contemplate further increases in rates?" asked Representative Sims of Tennessee.

"We are giving consideration to that problem," replied Mr. Hines. "My own view is that we have two phases of the question to consider. Our present deficit is due to two things, first, to the falling off of business, second, to the increase in wages and the cost of materials, which are not met by the revenues arising from increases in rates. We are trying to segregate these questions so as to determine how much of the deficit is due to falling off in business, and how much to the failure to make a sufficient increase in rates."

The committee obtained the impression that when this investigation was completed a move would be made to increase the rates to meet the deficit, although Mr. Hines would not say positively that this would be done.

"Does the public interest demand that legislation of this character shall be enacted, especially in view of the fact that Congress proposes to legislate with a view to establishing a permanent railroad policy?" asked Mr. Sims.

"The President has announced that the railroads will be returned to their owners at the end of this calendar year," replied Mr. Hines. "During the short continuation of the period of Federal control, it seems to me, the responsibility for operation and other matters should be concentrated on the President. The things which brought about the demand for this legislation resulted from annoyances due to the pressure of war necessity. If those interested in this legislation could remove from their minds the memory of those things I believe there would be no demand for this legislation. The public interest would be fully protected without it.

"As the bill now stands," added Mr. Hines, "it would upset the whole scheme of rate initiation and put on the Government the liability of paying the debts of railroads.

"This plan of suspension would create this situation. The President initiates rates. The commission would have power to suspend but would be under obligation to substitute other rates. There would be a division of responsibility which would be unfortunate."

Representatives of short-line railroads asked the committee to amend the bill so as to provide for payments of claims against the Government.

MAY BAR AMERICAN FILMS.

British Exhibitors Fear Competition Will Swamp Them.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 26.—Competition between American and British interests in the film industry was discussed at the Summer conference of the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association held at Glasgow yesterday.

R. C. Buchanan, of Edinburgh, moved a resolution pledging all exhibitors to refuse to book any films or enter into any contract with the Famous Players-Lasky Film Service, unless the Council were satisfied that the company indicated was not tied to or allied with any company formed for the purpose of promoting companies for the building of cinematograph theatres in this country.

The Council of the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association was also invited to arrange for a meeting of renters, manufacturers and exhibitors of films to ensure that joint action should be taken.

Buchanan declared that the American syndicate threatened to swamp British interests.

The resolution was carried unanimously.

OPEN FIGHT ON BILLBOARDS.

E. L. Millard Tells Real Estate Boards That Values Are Affected.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 26.—The National Association of Real Estate Boards in convention today subscribed as a unit to the declaration of Everett L. Millard, President of the Municipal Art League of Chicago, that the advertising billboard is now recognized generally as one of the leading nuisances in the home life of our cities. There was not a dissenting voice among the two thousand delegates to his severe arraignment.

The opening guns in the battle against sign boards were fired today. "I do not wish to argue before you that the billboard is a nuisance, because you already know it," the Chicagoan said. "The boards to which I refer are those purveyors of information to an unwilling public which line so many of our public streets. It is not an aesthetic question only which interests. In practically every large city the billboards' unsightliness affects real estate values and net returns and detracts heavily from the value to the people of municipal investments in parks and boulevards. Fortunately, we now have the authority of the courts behind us on a perfectly sound legal basis for regulating and prohibiting these eyesores under the public power where the objections are such that they may be demonstrated to a court. Washington has prohibited boards on the theory that it was for the public welfare. Chicago has a law, held valid, which prohibits signs on roofs without majority consent and another which bars them from residential districts. In New York Fifth Avenue is infinitely more attractive than Broadway, littered from every viewpoint with a mass of signs."

He urged the creation of a national committee to organize the brokers of the whole country for warfare against systematic defacing of public property.

The United States Government plans now contemplate the sale of all houses owned by the Government, at cost and upon easy terms, not to housing speculators, but to individuals anxious to become owners, Irving E. Macomber, Vice President of the U. S. Housing Corporation, declared before the convention here today. It is the intention of the Government to get out of the housing business as soon as possible and to give the "own your own home" movement substantial impetus along the line indicated.

MERWIN GRAY A SUICIDE.

Former Stock Exchange Member Found Dead at Summer Home.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, June 26.—Merwin Gray, a prominent Hartford financial man and until recently a member of the New York Stock Exchange, shot and killed himself at his Summer home on the shores of Bolton Lake, fifteen miles east of this city, yesterday, his body being found at 6:30 in the evening by a caretaker. He had been ill and depressed, and from intimate sources it is reported that financial reverses had for some time bothered him. He was 42 years old and leaves a wife, a son, and a daughter.

Leaving his family in Hartford, he motored to Bolton yesterday and supervised work being done about his place. About noon he sent his caretaker, Albert M. Skinner, on an errand. About 6:30 Skinner sought Mr. Gray. He went to the boat house and found his employer's body on the floor, the revolver lying near.

Acting Medical Examiner Rockwell determined that Gray had shot himself about noon or early in the afternoon. Gray recently sold his seat in the Stock Exchange for $70,000. He was a member of the Hartford Club, the Hartford Golf Club, and the Twentieth Century Club.

MRS. SKEELS ON STAND.

Nurse Accused of Murder Testifies for Five Hours.

LAWRENCE, Mass., June 26.—Mrs. Bessie M. Skeels testified for more than five hours today in her defense of the charge that she poisoned her patient, Miss Florence M. Gay of Andover. At first she was bright and cheerful, but in the late afternoon she showed signs of fatigue and weakness and was excused until tomorrow.

Under cross-examination by Attorney General H. C. Attwill Mrs. Skeels showed a defective memory for dates and did not remember clearly when she first learned of Fowler's solution. Early in her testimony she said she had first learned of the solution from medical books and from a woman in the West, but this afternoon she said she had first learned of it from a druggist in Bayonne, N. J., and still later she said Miss Gay had told her of it.

Dr. Libby, who attended an autopsy on Miss Gay's body, described the symptoms for both acute and chronic arsenical poisoning. He said there were some diseases with similar symptoms and that for some of them Fowler's solution was a remedy.

REPORT ON CITY'S INDUSTRIAL TRADES

Committee on Educational Survey Shows Conditions in Printing and Carpentry.

POOR VOCATIONAL PROGRAM

Central Responsibility Lacking—Little Co-operation Between Employers and Workers.

The results of the Industrial Education Survey of New York City, which was authorized by the Board of Estimate in April, 1916, are given in a report which presents a study of the composing and press-room sections of the printing trades and the carpentry and joinery trades. The survey was confined to four trades because of the limited resources that were at the disposal of the committee, the Chairman of which is C. R. Richards, the Director of Cooper Union. Other members of the committee include William J. Ettinger, the Associate Superintendent of Schools; U. S. Commissioner of Labor Statistics Royal Meeker, Emil J. Dearing of the International Association of Machinists, John J. Mulholland of the Pattern Makers' League, and George A. Stevens of the New York State Department of Labor.

"The trade surveys," says the report, "brought out varying conditions in the four trades investigated. The printing trade, for instance, was found to be steadily increasing in numbers and output and constantly making use of new and progressive methods of production—a trade representing good wages and steady employment, where success and advancement are largely dependent on alertness of mind and a store of both general and special information—in other words, a trade where superior knowledge is a distinct asset."

"On the other hand, in the case of carpentry, the findings revealed a trade declining in standards, if not in actual numbers engaged, declining from one of the best among the building trades, considered from the standpoint of regularity of employment and relative wages, to one of the poorest. They showed an industry made up of specialists, whose success descends often on the quantity rather than the quality of the work performed. Apprenticeship in this trade is practically a thing of the past. The trade is being recruited either from helpers in the various branches, who are rarely engaged under 18 years of age, or from mature workers coming into the city from the outside."

A report of the findings in the other two trades investigated are not included in the report given out yesterday. They were the inside electrical workers' trade and the machinists' trade. The report on these trades, as well as of those already mentioned, may be obtained from the publisher of The City Record, so long as the printed supply continues. Only a limited number of the copies of the report were printed.

A survey of the industrial classes maintained by the Board of Education has also been made by the committee. This survey was made by a staff of school men, and indicates that the Board of Education has made "very limited provisions for the day of vocational schools."

"The buildings," says the report, "occupied by the industrial classes are not, as a rule, adapted to the needs of this type of work. Many of the shops are small, poorly lighted, and badly ventilated. The equipment is so limited in many of them that it is impossible to offer well rounded courses in the elements of the trades."

The study of the evening industrial classes, the report adds, show a lack of organization that has seriously interfered with the effectiveness of the work, the supervision of the classes being left almost entirely in the hands of the school Principals. The survey also emphasizes the lack of co-ordination between the schools and the employers and employes, while, it is stated, "there was very little evidence to show that an attempt had been made to secure this co-operation, which is held to be absolutely necessary in developing an industrial school program."

Furthermore, it is stated, the administration of the vacation schools represents a situation of divided responsibility and one "that is lacking in expert control and adequate supervision." The lack of centralized responsibility, the committee adds, "makes it almost impossible to deal with the problem as a whole."

The committee makes various recommendations, among which is one for the establishment of a central school for printing, to provide extension courses for journeymen and apprentices and "all-day pre-employment classes for youths intending to enter the trade." It is also recommended that central schools for the building trades be established. The establishment of the office of Director of Industrial Education is also recommended.

GILBERT SUCCEEDS FINEGAN

Made Deputy State Commissioner of Education by Regents.

ALBANY, June 26.—Frank D. Gilbert of Albany, Chief of the Law Division of the State Department of Education, has been elected unanimously Deputy State Commissioner of Education by the Board of Regents upon nomination by Commissioner of Education John H. Finley, it was announced tonight. Mr. Gilbert succeeds B. Thomas E. Finegan, who resigned to become State Superintendent of Education of Pennsylvania.

Mr. Gilbert will have charge of the legal and legislative work of the department, sitting for the Commissioner in hearings and assisting in the administration of school laws.

George M. Wiley, Chief of the Division of Examinations and Inspections of the Education Department, has been designated to take charge of the educational work which was in charge of the former Deputy Commissioner until the necessary modifications to the appropriation bill will make possible the permanent filling of the position.

Deputy Commissioner Gilbert was born in Bainbridge, Chenango County, in 1867. He was graduated from Hamilton College in 1889 and was admitted to the bar in 1892. His salary will be $6,000 a year.

WOULD REOPEN COCCHI CASE

Mrs. Humiston Contends Three Accessories Have Not Been Arrested.

Mrs. Grace Humiston, who unearthed the body of Ruth Cruger, said last night that as a result of further investigation she is convinced that there are at least three accessories to the crime who have not been arrested. She added that there is a woman in the case who knows all about the murder. Three days before the body was discovered this woman, Mrs. Humiston said, had retained a lawyer, although at that time she had no reason to believe she was under suspicion.

In the opinion of Mrs. Humiston the District Attorney should reopen the investigation of the case, with a view to possible indictment of the persons suspected of being accessories to the crime. Cocchi, she added, should be brought back to this country to testify.

French Reduce Price of Tobacco.

PARIS, June 26.—The provisional appropriation bill for July was passed by the Chamber of Deputies today by a vote of 383 to 94. The Chamber also adopted an amendment to the bill reducing the price of fancy tobacco 20 per cent. below the price existing before May 27. The Government, which controls the sale of tobacco, increased the price of fancy tobacco 180 per cent. on May 27.

THE BUSINESS WORLD

Prices Good at Navy Goods Sale.

The sale by Burling & Dole yesterday at their auction room, 380 Broadway, of navy-owned goods, was considered highly satisfactory on all goods but shoes. Two lots of these were sold around $3 a pair, but the prices buyers were willing to pay appeared too low and the shoes were passed up. On serges and flannels prices close to, and in some instances exceeding, present market quotations for similar fabrics were obtained. Cotton goods, consisting of drills and sheetings, were sold at what were considered exceptionally fair values.

Sale of Ordnance Material.

Sealed bids will be received by the New York District Salvage Board of the Ordnance Department up to tomorrow at 10 A. M. for 2,600 tons of mixed scrap and 60 tons of copper wire, located at the Morgan General Ordnance Depot, Morgan, N. J. The same office will open proposals on Monday next at 11 A. M. for 321,183 pounds of steel shells, having 1,304 pounds of copper bands attached. This material is located at the McKiernan Terry Drill Company, Dover, N. J. Further information may be obtained at the office of the Ordnance District Chief, 1,107 Broadway.

Not Much New Machinery.

In discussing the loss in production in the woolen mills at the present time, the representative of several mills stated yesterday that one of the reasons for the tardy output is the lack of new machinery. He explained that, while the mills were turning out Government work, manufacturing was done under high pressure and no stop was made to take the usual care of machinery. For this reason the number of replacements was quite small. He does not consider the efficiency of most mills at present up to the mark from the standpoint of manufacturing facilities.

Umbrella Men Form Association.

With a charter membership representing an annual aggregate output of more than $10,000,000, a new trade organization has been formed here under the name of the Umbrella Manufacturers' Association of America. The object of the association is to promote the good and welfare of the umbrella manufacturers and their employes. It grew out of a luncheon meeting held at the Aldine Club on Tuesday. At this meeting a committee appointed for the purpose during the Victory Loan drive reported on the advisability of organizing an association of umbrella manufacturers, and the report was followed by an unanimous vote in favor of the proposition. J. B. Hulse of the Hulse Brothers & Daniels Company of this city is Secretary pro tem. Details of the association's plans are to be worked out by a Board of Directors, which will meet in the near future.

Raw Silk Prices at New Records.

New record prices for raw silk continue to be reached, in spite of the difficulty, in doing business that is imposed by the marked delay in the transmission of cable messages. A gain of almost 200 yen per picul was shown in the Yokohama market in the last week, late cables quoting Double Extra Crack at 3,500 yen. Sinshiu No. 1 is held at 3,240 yen. The advance has been accompanied by active buying, chiefly for American account, and available stocks are now reduced to from 4,000 to 5,000 bales. Reports received from Canton and Shanghai by H. L. Gwalter & Co. of this city, say that those markets are very strong and tending upward. The feature of recent trading at Milan was the entry of American buyers into that market in an active way after an absence of more than two years. Lyons is bare of Asiatic silks, which are said to have been purchased at high prices by German interests. The local market continues strong and active, and prices are advancing steadily in sympathy with the sustained upward trend of the primary markets.

Fancy Duvetyn Hats for Fall.

Duvetyn models in rainbow colorings look as though they are going to be strong for the early Fall season, according to an authority on millinery matters. Many of the makers of the higher-priced hats are showing attractive little models that use as many as six different blended shades of that material. A popular type of this hat is a turban which has a subdued shade of the cloth for the body, with brilliantly colored folds of the duvetyn on the side crown. These folds are about three-quarters of an inch high. The front of the turban is about five inches high, but it slopes down to about 3½ inches in the back. Another favored shape on which rainbow hues of duvetyns are used is the so-called tire brim turban. In this case the material is laid in narrow bias folds, four or five rows of one shade being followed by an equal number of another color.

Gray Goods Prices Mounting.

Prices continued to rise in the local gray goods market yesterday. The attention of buyers was again largely given to printcloths, and among the sales put through were 39-inch 68-72s at 19½ cents for July-September delivery. For similar delivery 38½-inch 64-60s brought 16¼ cents and then 16½ cents, although there was some question as to how generally the latter figure, as an asking price, had been met by buyers. There was no doubting the sincerity of sellers' demands for it. Sixteen cents was paid early in the day for 38½-inch 64-60s, some of them for September shipment, but later they were difficult to obtain at that figure. Even at the asking price of 16¼ cents they were not offered very plentifully. In the sheetings there were second-hand sales of spot 48-square four yards at 15¼ cents, but the mills would not sell under 15½ cents from all accounts. A net price of 17¼ cents was asked for four-yard 56-60 sheetings.

They Might Be More Timely.

Quite a good deal of the friction that exists in industrial circles when demands for higher wages are made might be avoided, it was said here yesterday, if these demands were not so often made of the employers without previous warning. This is especially true in industries where the style element is a prominent factor, and which makes necessary the division of the business year into seasons. In line with the old adage about striking when the iron is hot, the employes of a well-known manufacturing concern waited until the salesmen had been called in from the road, because the Fall season's production had been covered, and then demanded a marked increase in wages. The fact that the higher wages would have to be paid for the making of merchandise sold on production costs based on labor charges before the demands were made did not worry the workers a particle. They asserted that they wanted "theirs," and intimated that the problem forced on the concerns by their demands was not their lookout. Had the demand been made before the salesmen took the orders, it could have been met more easily, for the increased production cost could then have been absorbed in the selling prices.

BANKRUPTCY NOTICES

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, Southern District of New York.—In the matter of MARY HOPE HAMMOND, alleged bankrupt.

It appearing to my satisfaction from the petition of Samuel D. Johnson, duly verified June 23rd, 1919, that a petition was duly filed in this Court on the 7th day of June, 1919, praying that the above named Mary Hope Hammond be adjudged a bankrupt and that a subpoena directed to the said alleged bankrupt was duly issued out of this Court to the Marshal of this District, and that the said Marshal has been unable to serve the same upon the said alleged bankrupt, and that the said alleged bankrupt is not now within this district so that personal service may be made upon her, and that diligent effort has been made to ascertain the whereabouts of the said alleged bankrupt, but that she is not within the jurisdiction of this court.

It is, on motion of Cass & Apfel, attorneys for petitioning creditor,

ORDERED that the said above named alleged bankrupt, Mary Hope Hammond, plead or answer on or before the 14th day of July, 1919, to the petition herein, filed in the office of the Clerk of this Court on the 7th day of June, 1919; and that in case of her failure to plead or answer thereto, adjudication shall be made against her according to the prayer of said petition.

AND IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that this order be published in The New York Times once a week for two successive weeks, said publication to commence not later than the 27th day of June, 1919, and that a copy of this order be mailed to the said alleged bankrupt at her last known place of residence, to wit: 22 West 49th Street, Manhattan Borough, New York City, Southern District of New York.

Dated, New York City, June 23rd, 1919.

AUGUSTUS N. HAND, District Judge.

U. S. DISTRICT COURT, SOUTHERN DISTRICT of New York.—Bankruptcy, No. 26[illegible]. Notice is given that ABRAHAM PIASE, JOSEPH KALINSKY, and JOHN HILLMAN, individually and as co-partners, trading under the firm name of Princess Garage, bankrupt, has applied for a discharge from all their debts. The quotations are for six months' paper.

Going for Double-Breasted Coats.

One of the leading clothing houses reports that, in the orders thus far received on the Fall line, double-breasted styles of men's sack coats have sold a full 60 per cent. of the total bookings. Some of these styles have coat skirts longer than the waist seam effects, reaching as long as 31 inches. Conservative retailers who are not doing much buying of the real novelty models are reported to be placing a good proportion of their business on double-breasted styles.

Suede Vests for Women.

In the line just being prepared by one of the leading women's neckwear houses for the Fall and Winter season, one of the styles featured will be vestees and vests for women made of a suede-like material. While the popular form of vestee will be followed in certain numbers, others will be designed practically on the same lines as a man's vest. The neck opening, however, will be round shaped. Buttons of round metal shapes will be used to trim the front of these new neckwear models. Buyers have been quite well pleased with the new styles, and a vogue is predicted for them.

FEAR NO WHISKY LOSSES.

Bankers Expect All Loans on Warrants to be Liquidated.

It was said yesterday that bankers who have been lending money on whisky warrants are not especially apprehensive over the coming of prohibition. The amount of such warrants against which bank loans are being made, it was stated, has been reduced from around $300,000,000 a year ago to not more than $50,000,000 at the present time, and those that are still being used as collateral are expected to be liquidated without serious difficulty.

It was pointed out yesterday that most of the merchants who held the liquor a year ago have substantially lightened their burden since then. The sharp advance in prices early this year attracted many speculative buyers into the market, and on that demand many of the large dealers sold heavily, and after selling, closed out their loans at the banks. At the present time, or by July 1, it is estimated that the amount held in warehouses will not be much in excess of 40,000,000 gallons, while floor stocks are expected to be between 10,000,000 and 20,000,000 gallons.

Under war-time prohibition, it was further explained, it will be possible to export whatever surplus remains after July 1 and until the Constitutional amendment goes into effect, but after the latter date exports will not be possible. Meanwhile, the export field is not as large as many seem to believe. It was said yesterday that Great Britain and the British colonies are still holding an embargo against imports of whisky, and several other European countries are doing likewise. Cuba and South America, whence a good demand is coming, are without warehouse facilities for handling a very large surplus.

However, one banker who has been interested in the subject, said that in all probability large exports would not be attempted until late in the Summer, as many in the trade believe the war-time prohibition will be ended by September, and dealers, he thought, would be inclined to keep reserve stocks here for that contingency.

EMPLOYES CHARGE WASTE.

Federal Employment Service Again Under Fire at Capital.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Charges that the United States Employment Service was wasteful and extravagant and was incompetently operated were made before the joint Senate and House Labor Committees today by Charles H. Burroughs, an auditor of the Shipping Board, formerly connected with the service.

"The whole bureau is rotten," he said. He cited one employe who started at a salary of $1,500 a short time ago and now received about $4,500.

Stanley Lynn, an employe of the service, testified that its representatives made many unnecessary trips around the country. He charged that three Pullman vouchers showing that Jeannette V. Densmore, sister of Director General John B. Densmore, and two other persons had made a trip from New York to Atlantic City at Government expense had been secretly removed from the records.

BUSINESS NOTES.

The first meeting of the Women's Neckwear Association, under the direction of the new officers, will be held on July 1 in Room 311 of the Fifth Avenue Building, 200 Fifth Av. One of the most important topics to come up for consideration will be the question of Fall styles.

A "Fete de la Mode d'Automne" is to be held by the National Garment Retailers' Association on the evening of Aug. 4 on the roof of the Century Theatre. Among the various features of the occasion, which will mark the conclusion of the association's second year, will be a display of Fall fashions on living models. The exhibitors will be retail houses who are members of the association, which is out of the ordinary in affairs of this kind.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Advance, but Fail to Inspire Enthusiasm—Volume of Business Falls Off.

Yesterday's stock market, so far as price movements were concerned, was strong. But it was far from being impressive. The volume of business fell off to even smaller proportions than those of Wednesday, when the long sequence of million-share days was broken, and there were plenty of times when the ticker was silent, a condition which had not previously obtained in many months. There were some sensational advances, notably in one of the motor stocks, and several others in this group, as well as some of the oil and tobacco stocks, were also strong, and, for that matter, the whole list with very few exceptions acted well, but it did not display the exuberance that has been noticeable on so many occasions in the recent past. Even the strongest shares failed to attract the excited followings which have been wont to run with the leaders, and such attempts as were made to stimulate enthusiasm usually petered out without accomplishing their object.

It is natural for the stock market to hesitate at this time of year. On this particular occasion it is perhaps more logical than usual for it to do so. The final conclusion of peace is now a matter of a few days, at most, and with the official ending of the war a vast new effort is looming ahead of the financial community. This effort, in a broad way, has very little to do with the stock market; on the contrary, it is entirely possible that it will detract from the market by diverting funds which might go into the financing of speculation but which will be used elsewhere. A readjustment of banking strength, probably to be brought about by the mobilization of credits for use in foreign trade and in domestic enterprise, will hardly leave the huge surplus for collateral demand loans to which Wall Street has become accustomed these last few months.

The crops, too, will shortly be attracting a great deal of attention, and they will require probably more money this year than ever before, for the crop units are as high priced as ever, and there is promise that there will be infinitely more units than ever before produced. This certainly will be true of wheat, and while some of the other major cereal crops may not exceed their bumper records, they are likely to come close enough to the high records to make the total for all crops the largest thus far seen.

High money rates were again in evidence yesterday at the opening of the money market. Call loans were renewed at 9 to 9½ per cent., and there was a larger volume of business of this kind done at the renewal hour than on several recent days. After the big bulk of the borrowings had been satisfied the rate declined until in the last half hour of the day it ranged from 5 to 5½ per cent. Considering that the month-end requirements will be pressing from now on, it is not likely that any material recession will be made until after the turn into July, if, indeed, it is seen then. However, in this respect, recessions in rate are not apt to have the usual importance, for it seems probable that even if rates are lowered there will not be any material expansion in the available supply.

The movement of exchanges continued downward yesterday. Sterling again went against London, while both the Paris and Genoa rates sold off. Of the neutrals practically all moved in favor of this centre. Swiss francs hardened slightly. The Spanish rate approached closer to parity than at any time since before our entrance into the world war.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Railroad Requirements July 1.

The actual financial requirements of the railroads as of July 1 will be approximately $191,000,000, of which it is generally understood that the carriers themselves will provide approximately $80,000,000. This leaves more than $116,000,000 to be met chiefly by the Railroad Administration. Of the July 1 requirements $88,000,000 is for interest due, $34,000,000 secured notes, and about $10,000,000 unsecured notes, $27,000,000 to meet dividend requirements, more than $6,-850,000 funded debt maturities, $4,200,000 equipment trust certificates, and $40,000,000 in other corporate requirements. The figures shown above are approximate.

Bank Check Use Increasing.

While no complete figures are available to show the increase in the use of bank checks in this country bankers estimate that more than 75 per cent. of our business is transacted by means of checks. Suggestions have been made repeatedly in Congress to place a stamp tax on checks, but have not materialized because attempts to estimate the revenue which would accrue have failed, as such calculations are hard to obtain. Also a stamp on bank checks here is not well thought of as it is believed that such taxation would increase the demand on the country's currency. In Great Britain the tax has resulted in a smaller increase in the number of checks used since 1913.

Pierce Arrow Dividends.

Pierce Arrow felt the weight of a fair amount of selling orders yesterday and closed at 57⅝, off 1⅛, after making a recovery in the later trading from the low at 56⅞. No definite news appeared to account for the selling, but reports were circulated through the financial district that when the directors of the company get together at their regular dividend meeting next month that unfavorable dividend action may result. This was not verified yesterday, but the rumor persisted, and it was further reported that the board would act conservatively, in order to take care of the company's broad expansion program.

Equipment Trust Meeting.

The Car Allocation Committee of the Association of Railway Executives will meet today at 2 o'clock at Association headquarters to read and discuss the plan prepared and submitted by the committee of bankers headed by Jerome J. Hanauer, of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., for the financing of the $400,000,000 equipment ordered by former Director General of Railroads W. G. McAdoo. It is understood that the committee will not make any statement about the plan until it has been presented to representatives of the Railroad Administration, which will probably not be until next Monday.

Five Newcomers.

Five new stocks made their début and were traded in on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday. Remington Typewriter moved to the big board from the Curb and closed after one day of activity with a net loss of more than a point. Jones Brothers's Tea, on the other hand, gained ½ a point, Consolidated Cigar on a small turnover duplicated this, Endicott Johnson moved slowly, and Freeport Texas Company, on a turnover of less than 1,000 shares, gained 2 points.

Baltimore & Ohio Off 3¾.

Passing of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company common stock dividend on Wednesday by the Directors was reflected yesterday in the action of the stock. On greater activity that has been witnessed in this issue for many weeks—the turnover was approximately 30,000 shares—liquidation by timid holders forced the stock down to 45½. In the later trading there was a fractional recovery to above 46, the net loss for the day being 3¾ points.

Higher Freight Rates "Discussed."

Although Director General of Railroads Walker D. Hines has reiterated from time to time his belief that an increase in freight rates would mean an immediate increase in the cost of living, dispatches received in Wall Street yesterday intimated that the question of further freight rate increases were receiving "serious consideration" by officials of the Railroad Administration. Testimony of the Director General before the House Committee on Interstate Commerce has been to the effect that additional revenue must be found to offset growing deficits.

Chandler Has Big Rise.

One of the outstanding features of yesterday's trading was Chandler Motor, the net gain for the day being within a fraction of 22 points. At one time during the course of the market Chandler was selling higher than General Motors, which moved through a narrow range. The floating supply of Chandler is not any too plentiful, according to reports, and this was borne out yesterday by the wide spread between bid and asked quotations. At one time this amounted to as much as 15 points. The decidedly favorable reports of earnings which have come from the company recently have apparently been responsible for the upbuilding of the issue.

New York Air Brake Strong.

New York Air Brake moved forward for a gain of 3½ points yesterday, the issue closing only a point under its high for the day at 122½. Since the drop in the price for the stock in anticipation of a reduction in dividend from 20 to 10 per cent. early in the year, there has been a gradual recovery. The company has already entered upon a new line of work in the readjustment from a war to a peace basis; this in the manufacture of motor trucks. Delivery of these trucks will begin within a short time. Certain earnings on munitions work will not appear until they are incorporated in the 1919 report.

Copper Price Moves Forward.

The price of copper continues to move to higher levels regardless of the question of supply and demand. Yesterday quotations ranged from 18¾ to 18½ cents a pound for June and July delivery, while the August price was about 18½ cents. There is apparently no tremendous buying movement on foot at present, although there are steady sales of the metal. On the present basis of price advances it appears not at all improbable that the prediction of 20-cent copper by September or October will be realized.

Cigar Stores at New High.

The strength which has been manifest for some time in United Cigar Stores was again in evidence yesterday, the issue moving into new high ground just before the close at 168½, from which there was a reaction of only ⅛. Cigar Stores has been advancing consistently ever since the announcement that the chain of stores would probably be the nucleus of the United Retail Stores Corporation. An exchange plan of two shares of United Retail Stores Corporation for one of Cigar Stores is rumored.

Offer Steel Foundries Stock.

Richardson, Hill & Co. of Boston, are offering an issue of $9,000,000 American Steel Foundries 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock for public subscription at 98½ and accrued interest. The proceeds of the sale, according to the circular describing the offering, will be used to purchase control of the Griffin Wheel Company. Net quick assets of the company applicable to the issue are reported to be equal to more than $115 a share, and the combined working capital of the two concerns is reported as being $17,[illegible].

EXCHANGE DUTCH SHARES.

Equitable Trust Co. Tells of Plan to Have Only One Kind of Stock.

The Equitable Trust Company, depository for Royal Dutch stock, has issued an announcement to holders of "New York" and "American" shares representing Royal Dutch ordinary stock, recommending that holders of the American shares exchange them for New York shares so that there will ultimately be only one class of stock. This recommendation is made to facilitate the right to subscribe at par for one share of new stock for each four shares of old that are held. The announcement says:

"Owing to the fact that additional 'American' shares can only be issued against actual deposit with the depository in New York City of the Royal Dutch Company ordinary subshares, 'American' shareholders wishing to avail themselves of the subscription privilege, and to receive new stock in New York in the form of 'New York' shares may do so by exchanging their present holdings of 'American' shares for 'New York' shares without cost to them at the office of the Equitable Trust Company on or before July 7."

In case this is not done transferable warrants will be issued to the holders of the American shares of record July 7, entitling them to subscribe to new Royal Dutch ordinary subshares at the rate of one such Royal Dutch subshare for each twelve American shares held.

The agreement as to the New York shares is elastic, permitting the issue of New York shares against the deposit of Dutch stock in Holland, which eliminates the necessity of shipping Dutch stock to New York.

Extra Dividend for Chemical Co.

The Virginia-Carolina Chemical Company has announced the declaration of an extra cash dividend of 2 per cent. on the common stock, payable Oct. 1, to stock of record Sept. 16. A year ago the company declared an extra 2 per cent. dividend, payable in Liberty bonds. At the same time that the extra dividend was declared yesterday the regular quarterly common and preferred dividends were also announced. The common disbursement is payable Aug. 1 to holders of record July 15, and the preferred is payable July 15 to stock of record July 7.

$90,000 for Stock Exchange Seat.

It was announced at the New York Stock Exchange yesterday that the membership seat of Spencer K. Mulford, Jr., had been sold to George J. Stockly for $90,000. The last previous sale was for the same amount. At the same time the following membership transfers were announced: Dudley Davis to Pierpont Davis and Alexander W. Thomson to Arthur G. Delany.

Texas Co.'s Gross Earnings $26,-864,710.

The report of the Texas Company and subsidiaries for the first four months of this year shows gross earnings of $26,-864,710 and net earnings amounting to $7,424,645, while the balance for dividends was $4,640,779. The surplus after dividends is reported at $2,306,404.

SENDING GOLD ABROAD.

$2,750,000 Going to Spain and $2,000,000 to the Orient.

Two gold engagements for export to Spain were announced yesterday, Heidelbach, Ickelheimer & Co. took $2,000,000, and Goldman, Sachs & Co. took $750,000 in gold coin. These engagements, it is understood, will go forward at an early date.

On vessels sailing for the Orient today and tomorrow, approximately $2,000,000 gold will be dispatched to China. This is in addition to $1,000,000 which was sent to Shanghai and Hongkong last week. Bankers said yesterday that the aggregate of the movement to China would probably be close to $10,000,000. Also, on the same ships taking the metal to China, large shipments will be made to Japan.

To date, approximately $9,000,000 has been sent to Japan. This gold has been withdrawn from San Francisco and Seattle, as has also the gold destined for China. Within the next week it is expected the Japanese consignments will total close to $10,000,000.

$25,000,000 New Goodrich Stock.

The stockholders of the B. F. Goodrich Company have authorized an increase in the capital stock of the company from $84,600,000 to $109,600,000. The increase of $25,000,000 is to be in 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock of the same type as the present preferred. The common and preferred stockholders of record July 1 will be offered $15,000,000 of the new preferred on a pro rata basis. For each share of the old preferred or common a stockholder will be entitled to subscribe to .1773 of a share of the new stock at $102 a share and accrued dividends.

A Record For Safety

When a corporation has always paid the interest and principal on its obligations, and in addition has an earning capacity which has permitted it to pay substantial stock dividends regularly for years, there is reason to believe in the safety of the bonds and notes issued by that corporation.

We recommend at current quotations the note of a corporation which has the above record. The yield at present is over 7.35%.

Investments of Special Merit

It is naturally confusing for the average investor to select among the great number of listed and unlisted stocks and bonds the securities that are the most appropriate to buy and hold. We have chosen for special consideration several investments which we regard as having the qualities of security, and offer as liberal a return as can be obtained conservatively.

The Best Way to Obtain a Large Income

In a conservative way is to purchase preferred stocks which are well protected by property and by earnings. Many of the strongest corporations have considered it advisable to put on the market preferred stocks, rather than bonds. This method of financing has indirectly saved money for the borrowers through decreased taxation and has directly improved the income of investors. For our recommendations of preferred stocks ask for Circular No. 457.

COTTON HITS 34.95, A CIVIL WAR PRICE

Highest Figures Set This Year, When Spot Cotton Sells Up 100 Points on the Day.

BUYING GENERAL IN RISE

Weather Over the Belt Unfavorable and Crop Conditions Are Growing Worse, It Is Said.

Another feverish advance in cotton future contracts, which took prices to the highest figures seen this year, and close to the records of last year, when cotton sold above 34 cents for the first time since the civil war, occurred in yesterday's trading on the Cotton Exchange. The advance, which set in almost with the opening of business and continued with but few interruptions throughout the session, ran to more than 100 points in practically all options. Spot cotton here sold at 34.95, up 100 points on the day and the highest thus far this season.

In the rise the buying was general. Wall Street and the Western speculative interests were conspicuous yesterday, many operators who have been confining themselves to stocks since the break in cotton the last week in May, reappearing as cotton bulls, while local ring traders and southern and local spot people also were consistent and at times aggressive buyers. The chief source of supply came from Liverpool, where the market failed to respond to our advance as well as it should and where there appears to be more apprehension over the Manchester labor situation.

The weather over the belt was again very unfavorable, more rains being reported in many sections, with crop conditions getting worse, if anything, than they have been. It is now admitted on all sides that the crop situation is becoming alarming, and estimates of less than 12,000,000 bales are the rule, rather than the exception.

The National Ginners' Association yesterday published its monthly report of condition, as of June 23, two days before the Government takes its condition figures, and the report showed only 70.7, as against the Government's estimate of 75.6 last month. The Department of Agriculture will publish its June 25 report on Tuesday next and the trade is expecting a figure of anywhere from 73 down to below 70. Realization of even the higher figure is likely to be considered bullish, as acreage is almost certain to be considerably reduced from last year, and a poor crop indicated. The prospects for an acute shortage become apparently stronger every day.

The market yesterday held its advances almost to the close, with last prices up 85 to 100 points over the previous day's closing.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Previous Day.
July	33.13	33.98	32.85	33.95@33.98	32.95

The local market for spot cotton was steady at 34.95c for middling upland, up 100 points; sales nil.

Southern spot markets were: Galveston, 34.20c; New Orleans, 32.50c; Savannah, 33c; Augusta, 32.37c; Memphis, 32.75c; Houston, 33.75c; Little Rock, 32.50c.

Yesterday's cotton statistics were:

BROKERS' SPECIAL TAX DUE.

Collector Edwards Issues Statement Regarding Method of Making Returns.

William H. Edwards, Internal Revenue Collector for the Second District, yesterday called attention to the fact that the special tax imposed on brokers by Subdivision 1, Section 1001, is due on or before July 1 this year for the year ending June 30, 1920. Collector Edwards made the following statement:

"If a broker is a member of a stock or produce exchange, or board of trade or similar organization, and if the average value of the seat or membership during the year ended June 30, 1919, was $2,000 and not more than $5,000, $100 additional is due; if such value was more than $5,000, $150 additional is due.

"A special tax return on Form II. must be executed and filed by each broker or each firm of brokers, as the case may be.

"A separate return must be made covering each office maintained, including branch offices.

"The additional tax on account of membership should be paid in connection with the return filed by the main office (one return only required for both the general tax of $50 and the additional tax) and a notation should be made on the returns filed by branch offices that the additional membership tax was paid by the main office. In case the additional membership tax is paid by the main office of a broker, the branch offices will be required to pay only the $50 tax.

"Attention is called to the reverse side of Form II., where the annual taxes of $150 and $200 are given for brokers owning seats. It should be noted that each of these amounts includes the $50 occupational tax."

Chemical Stocks

Efforts are now being made to secure the passage of legislation looking to the protection of American-made chemicals and dyestuffs. A special Tariff Commission appointed by the President has recommended the passage of such legislation and hearings on the subject are now being held by the Ways and Means Committee. There can be no doubt that the passage of such an act would prove of great benefit to American chemical manufacturers.

We have prepared special reports on the following companies, any of which will be sent to prospective investors upon request.

Gasoline Substitutes

At a recent conference in this city between the American Petroleum Institute and the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, considerable time was devoted to the discussion of possible substitutes for gasoline from coal-tar bases and from alcohol, but the general consensus of opinion seemed to be that these substitutes would prove impracticable for at least a generation, and there was no danger of an inability to supply motor fuel for a much longer period. The law of supply and demand would naturally govern future prices.

July Reinvestments

Income From Uninvested Funds

IF you have investments which mature or on which interest is paid on July 1st, it is your immediate problem to consider the reinvestment of these funds.

Our BOND DEPARTMENT can furnish you with information regarding investment securities and can recommend bonds and notes best suited to your requirements.

The July issue of our booklet "Investment Recommendations" describes a number of attractive investments, yielding up to 7 per cent., in which are included issues of Governments, railroads, municipalities, public utilities, and industrial corporations.

If you should desire to hold your funds in reserve, you can nevertheless keep them on a satisfactory earning basis through a deposit account with us, bearing interest on daily balances. We pay a higher rate of interest on deposits subject to 30 days' notice of withdrawal, or on certificates of deposit issued for from three to six months.

It will be a pleasure to explain, personally or by mail, how we may assist you in keeping your funds profitably employed.

Opportunities for The Well-Informed Investor

The well-informed investor appreciates that the present low prices for conservative investments are due primarily to the unusual conditions now prevalent throughout the world, and not to any impairment of the true value of the properties securing such investments. As a matter of fact, he realizes that property values and earnings are, in most instances, even greater today than ever before. If you have funds to invest, or securities maturing in the near future, we suggest that you send for our Special List No. 1238, "Conservative Investments."

The Future of the Railroads

Director General Hines and Senator Cummins have expressed certain definite views concerning prompt and constructive railroad legislation by Congress. Copies of the speeches referred to will be furnished on request.

With the enactment of such legislation many railroad securities should have a substantial advance. Seasoned securities issued well within physical value of the property and amply protected by earning capacity can now be purchased at prices to yield up to 8½%, and such issues should logically be benefited.

We do not carry speculative accounts but solicit correspondence regarding railroad securities with present or prospective investors and are prepared to make suggestions for the purchase or exchange of securities.

AMERICAN FOUNDRY SURPLUS $9,671,813

Company's Gross Earnings During Year Ended April 30, 1919, Were Largest in Its History.

HEAVY WAR TAX ALLOWANCE

Sum of $24,475,000 Set Aside to Defray These Expenses, Says Annual Report.

Earnings of the American Car and Foundry Company for the year ended April 30, 1919, were the largest in its history, according to a statement contained in the company's annual pamphlet report, which, however, does not disclose the value of the gross business. The surplus, after deducting charges, taxes and preferred dividends, was $9,671,813, or the equivalent of $32.23 a share on the $30,000,000 of common stock. The surplus was $9,181,742, or $30.60 a share, in the preceding year. The report shows a particularly heavy allowance for war taxes, the amount set aside to defray these being $24,475,000. The net, before this heavy tax allowance, was the equivalent of nearly $114 a share on the common stock.

Another reserve of $2,400,000 was established to provide for the payment of common dividends, this making total reserves of $7,200,000 that have been set aside for dividends on the common stock. This is sufficient to maintain the 8 per cent. dividend rate for a period of three years. The balance sheet shows that certificates of indebtedness and Liberty Bonds to the amount of $32,052,000 were held at the close of the year. The amount of cash on hand was $16,843,587. The value of orders on the books of the company at the close of the fiscal year amounted to about $100,000,000.

In his remarks to the stockholders W. H. Wooden, President of the company, says in part:

"The future of the railroads is of concern to the whole country, and is of vital concern to this company. President Wilson has said the roads will be returned to private ownership before the close of the current year—but their ultimate disposition rests with Congress. So long as that remains uncertain, so long it is likely there will be a lack of activity in the buying of equipment for domestic use. It would seem that the entire matter has been so thoroughly discussed from every viewpoint that it is ripe for final decision. At the heart of the problem lies the question, shall the twenty-three hundred railroads of the country, representing an investment of $17,000,000,000, be compelled to continue to furnish their commodity—transportation—at a price which is not fundamentally based upon the cost of the production of that commodity? There can be but one answer to this. Whether the remedy for the anomalous condition now existing, and which has existed for the past decade, shall be found in Governmental ownership, or in a continuance of Governmental operation, or in a Governmental guarantee, or in a Federal railroad incorporation act, or in a consolidation of all the roads into a limited number of systems, it is a fact demonstrated by experience and not to be lost sight of that the power to make rates should not be entrusted to any body of men who are not to be held accountable for the adequacy of the rates made. The people have the right to expect that Congress will not adjourn without making a final decision that will be fair to the roads, to the owners of their securities, and to the commerce and industry of the country that are directly or indirectly dependent upon the prosperity and the efficient operation of the roads.

"In the letter to stockholders of June 27, 1918, it was stated that the Director General of Railroads had placed orders with various equipment companies for 100,000 freight cars, and that this company had been awarded the building of 31,000. During the year work on the construction of these cars had proceeded—but because of the omission of the Congress prior to its adjournment in March last to replenish the fund available to the Director General, that official found himself without the money necessary to meet his obligations with respect to payments. This situation naturally was the cause of considerable anxiety. Various ways to meet the difficulty were discussed with the officials of the Railroad Administration, and it finally was decided that the Director General should issue certificates of indebtedness—these to be paid as soon as he shall have available the money with which so to do. It is entirely certain that the Director General will not be able to take up these certificates out of the ordinary income of the roads under his control. It is essential, therefore, that Congress should make the appropriation necessary not only to permit him to redeem these certificates but also pay for the equipment remaining to be built.

"The uncertainty of the governmental policy with respect to railroads renders impossible at this writing any forecast as to what business may be expected during the year now current in the way of equipment for domestic use. There already is, and undoubtedly will continue to be, a demand for the company's products from foreign countries—both from new nations which have come into being with peace and from older countries whose activities for almost five years have been given over to the prosecution of the war. Such demand from these countries is likely to be large and insistent—larger and more insistent than can for some time to come be met by their own facilities for production. This will open up new problems of finance and of credit—but there is no reason to believe that these problems cannot be solved or that the company will not be able to obtain its fair share of the business. During the fiscal year just closed orders for 10,000 cars for Italy and for 3,250 cars for India were booked."

NATIONAL ENAMELING & STAMPING CO.

7% Cumulative Preferred Stock

Exempt from Normal Federal Income Tax

Preferred as to Assets and Dividends. Par value $100 per share. Dividends payable quarterly on the 30th of March, June, September and December.

From a letter of the President, Mr. George W. Niedringhaus, we summarize as follows:

The Company is the largest producer in this country of enameled wares, galvanized goods, stamped, tinned, japanned, nickeled and sheet metal wares of all kinds.

It also has an annual steel production for the open market of ingots and plates estimated for the coming year at 450,000 tons.

Dividends on $8,546,600 outstanding Preferred Stock have been paid continuously since the organization of the company in 1899. The present additional issue will definitely close the full authorized amount of $10,000,000.

Proceeds of present financing will be used to acquire a substantial interest in the St. Louis Coke & Chemical Company, which will furnish hot metal and other products to the company's steel mills. This will effect large savings annually and will increase the company's steel output.

Net total assets, after deducting Federal taxes, depreciation, bonded debt, etc., on December 31, 1918, amounted to over $311 for each share of Preferred Stock. Net quick assets amounted to $10,201,812, exceeding the entire $10,000,000 Preferred Stock now to be outstanding.

Net profits for the last four years have averaged $2,462,590 annually, or over four times dividend requirements.

This additional Preferred Stock will be listed on the New York Stock Exchange, where $8,546,600 is already listed.

EXCHANGE TO HELP END STOCK FRAUDS

Notifies District Attorney That Officers and Members Will Give Full Co-operation.

HOLD CONFERENCE ON PLANS

Swann Starts a Broad Inquiry Concerning Swindlers in Financial District.

The New York Stock Exchange notified District Attorney Swann yesterday that its officers and members desired to co-operate in every way with him in his investigation and announced determination to drive the swindlers and fake stock promoters out of the financial district. This offer of assistance from the Exchange was presented by H. K. Pomroy and H. G. S. Noble, both former Presidents of the Exchange, in a conference at the District Attorney's office. Commenting on this visit, the District Attorney said:

"Mr. Pomroy and Mr. Noble, representing a special sub-committee of the Exchange called, at their own suggestion, for a conference with me for the purpose of tendering to me aid and co-operation of the committee they represent in furtherance of the District Attorney's investigation and prosecution of corrupt stock promotions, practices, and dealings. The whole situation was considered by the District Attorney and his assistant with Messrs. Pomroy and Noble, and Walter F. Taylor, counsel for the Stock Exchange."

Mr. Swann suggested to the committee that they and their associate members and committees could give material aid by giving information against manipulators of worthless stocks and against suspicious and questionable transactions of certain promoters and other invaders of Wall Street who were not identified with any of the exchanges or if its legitimate business. The District Attorney told his visitors that he thought the members of the various committees of the Exchange would be able to get the necessary information concerning the operations of "crooked concerns and swindlers."

The only objection to this procedure, the committee told Mr. Swann, was based on the question of whether the Exchange would care to officially appear in the guise of a crusader against persons in the financial district not members of it, because that might give opportunity for criticism and impression from some sources that the movement was actuated by selfish motives. For this reason and others the Exchange members, it was said, would not care to pose as censors of financial morality for the entire financial interests. But it was agreed that the matter would be taken under consideration, with the intention of working out some ethical and practical plan of assistance.

Officers and members of the Curb Market Association and of the Consolidated Exchange offered their co-operation with the District Attorney some days ago. All of the representatives of the exchanges and business interests in the streets told the District Attorney they were anxious to have condition improved, for the continual arrests of prosecutions of this or that promoter and cheap stock swindler made a bad impression in the public mind that did not always see the distinction between the acts of these offenders and the great volume of honest business that is in daily progress.

Assistant District Attorney John T. Dooling took three witnesses before a Grand Jury yesterday in the investigation and charges against the promoting concern of H. C. Loup & Co. at 50 Broad Street. These witnesses were Miss Margaret McGabe, a public school teacher of 545 West 152d Street, who asserts that she lost an investment of $12,000 by trading with the firm; Miss Clara Christian, secretary and bookkeeper to a member of the firm, and F. J. Hoey, an accountant employed by M. J. Hoey & Co. at 74 Broadway.

According to Dooling the charges against members of Loup & Co. are grand larceny, forgery, and hypothecation of securities put up as collateral for marginal accounts and trading. It was rumored at the Criminal Courts Building yesterday that Frank Taylor and Joseph Kalsey, whom Dooling said the police had been requested to arrest, were willing to appear at any time they were asked to do so. District Attorney Swann said he did not know of any such offer, and did not care whether the men voluntarily appeared or not, as the Grand Jury proceedings would take care of the situation. It was said that Herbert C. Loup, who asserts that he permitted the use of his name but had no active part in the business of H. C. Loup & Co., will be a witness before the Grand Jury today.

Dooling sent Detective John Canniff to the office of C. W. Galvin & Co. at 50 Broad Street, on the same floor as that of Loup & Co., to get books and papers for inspection in connection with a complaint made by Dr. Johannes Meyer of 2,038 Fulton Street, Brooklyn, who claimed that he had paid $100 to a salesman of the concern for 100 shares of stock in the Texas York Producing Company, but had not received the stock. Irving Bloom, Secretary of the company, told Dooling that the salesman who collected the money had failed to report it to Galvin & Co. Dooling said he would continue his investigation of the firm.

Kodak Company Earns $14,051, 989

The Eastman Kodak Company, in its annual report for last year, shows net profits, after Federal taxes, of $14,051,-989, or the equivalent, after the payment of preferred dividends, to $70.02 a share on the common stock. In the preceding year the earnings were $14,542,-567, or the equivalent of $72.53 a share on the common.

MRS. GOULD FILES PROTEST.

Alleges French Courts Incompetent, Claiming New York Domicile.

Copyright, 1919, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

PARIS, June 26.—Mrs. Frank Gould has filed opposition to the judgment of divorce by default rendered in favor of Frank Gould. She alleges the French courts incompetent on the ground of her claim to a domicile in New York. This constitutes a complete change in the plan of defense originally adopted by Mrs. Gould.

Mrs. Gould claimed one-half of her husband's fortune on the ground of community property, which could only exist if she had a domicile in France.

Mr. Loeb, attorney for Mr. Gould, said today:

"We had always claimed Mr. Gould's domicile was in New York. We are pleased to see Mrs. Gould has adopted this view in her latest pleading. We are convinced that Mrs. Gould will accept the jurisdiction of the French court. In fact she introduced her countersuit in the original proceedings and had interjected several appeals.

"The question of the competency of the French court will be pleaded shortly, if the French court decides to keep jurisdiction of Mr. Gould's divorce."

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Less activity and substantial gains throughout the list featured yesterday's session on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. Cerro de Pasco was bid up 6¾ to 63½. United Cigar Stores 2¼, and International Nickel 1, all to new high levels for this year. American Car and Foundry rose 3¾, while Baltimore & Ohio, on announcement of temporary suspension of dividend payments, was offered down 2¾. General Motors made an early gain of 4½ and Studebaker of 2¾, while Pierce-Arrow fell back 2½. The oil issues were consistently strong, Royal Dutch of New York moving up 1¾, while Mexican Petroleum rose 2 points. On buying of the tractions, Brooklyn Rapid Transit moved up 3¾. Interborough Consolidated preferred 2¼, and United Railways preferred 1½. United States Steel common, after opening off ⅜, became firm and moved up 1¼.

Sioux City Service Company

Sioux City, Iowa

First and Refunding (Now First) Mortgage Sinking Fund 5% Gold Bonds Due January 1, 1928

The Sioux City Service Company owns and operates the entire street railway system in Sioux City, Iowa, and also owns and operates an electric light and power generating plant, distributing system and central station steam heating system in Sioux City.

Sioux City, the wholesale distributing center for a large surrounding territory, has important industries, including stock yards, packing houses, grain markets, etc. The present estimated population of the city is about 70,000.

These bonds are secured by an absolute first mortgage on the electric lighting, power and steam heat distribution systems and the electrical generating and steam heating plant of the Company, and upon retirement of $750,000 First Mortgage Bonds due July 1, 1919, will also be secured by an absolute first mortgage upon the entire street railway property of the Company.

Under the terms of the mortgage additional bonds may be issued for additions, improvements, etc., at not to exceed 75% of the actual cost thereof, and then only when gross earnings are five times and net earnings are twice interest charges on all bonds outstanding, including those proposed to be issued.

The mortgage under which the bonds are issued creates a strong sinking fund, obligating the Company to deposit with the Trustee sums which will aggregate $1,200,000 by the maturity of these bonds, at least one-half of which must be used in retiring First and Refunding Bonds, and the balance for permanent extensions and improvements to the property for which no bonds may be issued.

Gross earnings have increased from $815,554 in 1915 to $1,111,722 in 1919, and net earnings are over two and one-quarter times annual interest charges on all bonds now outstanding.

The Company operates under favorable franchises which, with minor exceptions, extend beyond the life of these bonds.

The management of the Company is under the direction of interests closely affiliated with Armour and Company.

A more complete description of the issue will be furnished upon request for Circular NA-12

REAL ESTATE FIELD

Apartment house property was a strong feature of yesterday's realty market. Important among the Manhattan transactions was the sale of the Latham, a seven-story apartment house at the northeast corner of 122d Street and Morningside Avenue, by Mrs. L. B. [illegible] to Joseph Shank, operator. The structure, which occupies a plot 100 by [illegible], is rented for almost $38,000 a year and was held at $300,000. R. A. Martin Company negotiated the sale.

On the Heights the Leonard Estate of Syracuse, N. Y., sold to Mendel [illegible]berger, 452 Fort Washington Avenue, northeast corner of 186th Street, known as the Dacorn, a six-story elevator apartment house, on plot 100 by [illegible]. S. and J. H. Albert were the brokers in the sale.

In the same vicinity, Harold Court, a six-story elevator apartment, at 1,447 to 1,457 St. Nicholas Avenue, on a plot [illegible].11 by 150, is reported to have been resold by Abraham Leipzig, who recently purchased it from the Harriman National Bank. The property is assessed by the city for taxation purposes at $[illegible]0,000.

New Corporation Buys Bronx Flats Held at $450,000.

The two six-story apartment houses occupying the block front on the south side of 163d Street, between Fox and Simpson Streets, have been resold by the Benenson Realty Company to a recently organized investing corporation. The structures contain 16 stores and have a frontage of 206 feet on 163d Street, 128 feet on Simpson Street and [illegible] feet on Fox Street. The houses accommodate over eighty-two families, and were held at $450,000. A. Blumenthal negotiated the sale.

$78,000 for Bronx Lots at Auction.

As a result of the successful auction of twenty-eight lots owned by the estate of Frances T. Lord, in the West Bronx section, conducted yesterday in the Vesey Street salesroom by Joseph P. Day, almost $78,000 will be divided among seven charitable institutions. Lots in the Grand Concourse brought $4,300 each, on Creston avenue $3,200, on Anthony Avenue $1,400, and on Ryer Avenue $1,900.

Heights Apartment Sold.

Viva Realty Company, Inc., through Kantrowitz & Esberg, its attorneys, has resold to Benenson Realty Company 2 Pinehurst Avenue, the northwest corner of 177th Street and Pinehurst Avenue, an apartment house approximately 125 by 96, held at $210,000.

William Street Property Sold.

Boernie Leerburger sold to a client of William H. Whiting & Co. the five-story and basement building on the southwest corner of William and Ann Streets, known as 155 William Street. The building covers a lot 21 by 68 and is a Reformed Protestant Dutch Church leasehold. The property is assessed at $60,000.

Brown Buys Another Loft.

Frederick Brown bought from the Manboro Realty Company through I. B. Wakeman, 16 East Seventeenth Street, an eight-story loft building, on a lot 25 by 92, between Fifth Avenue and Union Square.

Corporation Acquires Loft.

The 217 Mercer Street Corporation, (B. Howie, B. B. Morton, and M. Metzler,) formed at Albany yesterday, will take over the property at that address from Frederick Sellar. It is a five-story loft, on plot 56.10 by 51.10 by irregular, adjoining the northwest corner of Bleecker Street.

Tenement Deals.

Edward H. Burger, lawyer and operator, sold the five-story tenement and stores at 1,838 Madison Avenue to the Princeton Realty & Mortgage Co. This property was purchased last week by Mr. Burger, who sold it for cash. Steinman & Steinman were the brokers.

Daniel H. Jackson resold to a client of David Lion the five-story tenement, with stores, 37.6 by 100, held at $40,000, at 606 and 608 East 128th Street.

James H. Cruikshank purchased from the Schulte Realty Company 1,325 Avenue A, adjoining the southwest corner of Seventy-first Street, a five-story flat with two stores, on plot 25 by 87, assessed by the city at $17,000. Leon S. Altmayer was the broker.

Private Dwellings.

The estate of Agnes Connolly, represented by Morgan J. O'Brien, Jr., sold the four-story and basement dwelling at 130 East Seventy-third Street, on a lot 15 by 102.2, which has been held at $40,000. The purchaser is Dr. Burton J. Lee, who owns and occupies 128, adjoining. Douglas Gibbons & Co. were the brokers.

The 60 West Sixty-eighth Street Company, formed at Albany yesterday with a capital of $50,000, and Joseph H. Claffy, William W. C. Watson, and H. A. St. George, will take over the four-story and basement dwelling, on lot 18.9 by 100.5, at that location. Title stands in the name of the Mary H. Bunker estate.

The City Real Estate Company sold the modern dwelling, 139 East Nineteenth Street, to the Wilton Holding Company through Worthington Whitehouse, Inc.

Commercial Leases.

Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company, associated with William A. White & Sons, leased the block extending from West Street to the East River between India and Huron Streets, Greenpoint, together with a pier, for the estate of Henry Steers. The tenant is the Ocean Transportation Corporation, engaged in transatlantic trade with Mediterranean ports. The pier will be rebuilt with a modern steel shed. The upland consists of 100,000 square feet and will be improved with warehouses. Adjoining portions of the Steers property are occupied by W. R. Grace & Co., and Bowring & Co.

Julius Blum & Co. leased for a long term the five-story and basement building, 125 by 100, at 532 to 540 West Twenty-second Street. The premises will be used for a warehouse by the lessees, a firm dealing in steel tubing, shafting and screw steel.

The Bronx Market.

E. Sharum sold two five-story flats, 26.3 by 109 each, at 1,774 and 1,776 Washington Avenue, to Ralph Taurone through the Plattsmouth Realty Company, Albert Rosenthal, President.

The estate of H. Haigh sold the vacant plot, 175 by 110, at the northwest corner of Webster Avenue and 188th Street, one block from Fordham Square, to a builder who intends improving the plot with a theatre and stores. Richard H. Scobie negotiated the sale.

The Benenson Realty Company bought the property at 232 East 165th Street, held at $40,000, from the Viva Realty Company, Inc. Kantrowitz & Esberg represented the seller.

Sager & Scapiro resold the five-story walk-up apartment, 50 by 80, held at $53,000, at 1,826 Trafalgar Place, to an investor through Jacob B. Kaplan.

Monroe & Co. sold the two-family brick dwelling on lot 25 by 100 at 646 Faile Street through Samuel Cowen.

Margaret Egan sold the irregular plot at the southeast corner of 176th Street and Weeks Avenue, which also has a small frontage on Grand Concourse and Boulevard, through the Wood, Dolson Company, Inc. The buyer, Mrs. Sadie Lazarus, was represented by Leitner, Brener & Starr. She assigned her contract to Milton S. Hoffman.

Daniel H. Jackson bought the five-story new-law apartment, 34 by 100, held at $65,000, at the southeast corner of Prospect Avenue and 163d Street, from Walter J. and Lucia Heister and Gertrude H. Fink. Leitner, Brener & Starr were the brokers.

The Stebbins Realty and Construction Company, J. Malino, President, bought 904 Vyse Avenue, a five-story apartment house, 72 by 87, renting for $10,000 and held at $70,000.

The Stebbins Realty Company sold 2,017 Lafontaine Avenue, a five-story apartment house, 37.6 by 100, held at $40,000.

Morris Polsky sold 1,033 to 1,043 Boston Road, near Morris High School, two five-story apartment houses, on plot 140 by 185, renting for $30,000 and held at $200,000.

Frederick Brown sold the dwelling on plot 56 by 130, at 1,839 Harrison Avenue, to Frank Schwartz through Thomas J. O'Reilly.

The Park Construction Company, Meyer Krasner, President, sold 919 Avenue St. John, a four-story apartment on plot 33.6 by 100, to Henry Cohen through Leitner, Brener & Starr.

SHERIFF'S SALES.

SUPREME COURT, NEW YORK COUNTY.—BANKERS TRUST COMPANY, Plaintiff, against NATIONAL SECURITIES CORPORATION, Defendant.

By virtue of a certain writ of execution to me directed and delivered, and duly issued after a judgment in favor of the plaintiff and against the defendant in the above-entitled action duly made and entered in the office of the Clerk of the County of New York on the 22nd day of March, 1919, I will expose to sale at Public Vendue on the 27th day of June, 1919, at twelve o'clock noon, (standard time,) at the rotunda of the County Court House of the County of New York, in City Hall Park, in the City of New York, Borough of Manhattan:

I. All property, debts, credits and effects and all rights and shares of stock, with all interest, profits and dividends thereon or therefrom, of National Securities Corporation in the possession or under the control of Guaranty Trust Company of New York, or which may come into the possession or under the control of Guaranty Trust Company of New York, including specifically all the right, title and interest of National Securities Corporation in and to the securities and cash held by Guaranty Trust Company of New York, as Trustee under a certain Trust Agreement, dated July 1, 1914, securing Ten-Year Six Per Cent. Prior Lien Gold Notes, and the interest, profits and dividends thereon or therefrom, the right to redeem said securities and cash from the lien of said Trust Agreement, and all right, claims and demands which National Securities Corporation has or may hereafter have upon or under said Trust Agreement; the securities and cash now held by Guaranty Trust Company of New York as Trustee under said Trust Agreement being as follows:

(a)	4% Notes of Idaho Power Company, due July 1, 1924, for the aggregate principal amount of	$3,290,000.00
(b)	1,500 shares of Idaho Power Company 7% Cumulative Preferred Stock, par value	150,000.00
(c)	149,984 shares of Idaho Power Company Common Stock; par value	14,998,400.00
(d)	500 shares of the Capital Stock of Electric Investment Company; par value	50,000.00
(e)	Cash	304.42

II. All property, debts, credits and effects, and all rights and shares of stock, with all interest, profits and dividends thereon or therefrom, of National Securities Corporation in the possession or under the control of Electric Bond and Share Company, or which may come into the possession or under the control of Electric Bond and Share Company, including specifically all the right, title and interest of National Securities Corporation in and to 173 shares of preferred stock of Idaho Power Company, or the proceeds thereof, held by Electric Bond and Share Company under a certain agreement between National Securities Corporation and Electric Bond and Share Company dated November 20, 1918, and all payments made or to be made under said agreement, and all rights, claims and demands which National Securities Corporation has or may hereafter have upon or under said agreement.

III. All rights, title, interest and claim of National Securities Corporation to demand and receive from the United States Collector of Internal Revenue for the Second District of New York the sum of $218.78, with any accrued interest thereon, representing an excess payment of Federal Income Tax made by National Securities Corporation for the year 1917.

This sale is made pursuant to and in compliance with an order of the Supreme Court of the State of New York in the above-entitled action entered in the office of the Clerk of the County of New York and bearing date the 16th day of May, 1919, as resettled by further order of said Court entered in the office of the Clerk of the County of New York and bearing date the 29th day of May, 1919.

Dated New York, June 20, 1919.
DAVID H. KNOTT,
Sheriff of the County of New York.
JOHN J. MURRAY, Deputy Sheriff.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, June 26. — The Southern Michigan depression of Wednesday night has reached the upper St. Lawrence Valley and pressure is now high from the upper lake region northwestward to Hudson Bay. In the extreme West pressure is quite low except on the Pacific Coast. Showers continued in the lake region, the Ohio Valley, the Gulf and South Atlantic States, and extended into the Middle Atlantic States and New England. There was no other precipitation except some local showers in the lower Missouri Valley, Eastern South Dakota, and along the North Pacific Coast. Moderate temperatures prevailed in the Atlantic and Gulf States, the lake region, and the Pacific States, while elsewhere high temperature continued.

There will be showers Friday and Saturday in the East Gulf and South Atlantic States and on Friday in New England, followed by fair weather Saturday. In the Middle Atlantic States, the lake region, the Ohio Valley, and Tennessee the weather will be generally fair Friday and Saturday. It will be somewhat warmer Friday in the south portion of the Middle Atlantic district and the upper Ohio Valley and on Saturday in the north upper lake region.

Winds for Friday and Saturday—North of Sandy Hook moderate south and southwest, with showers; Sandy Hook to Hatteras, moderate south and southwest, showers Friday, fair Saturday; Hatteras to Florida Straits, gentle to moderate shifting, except south off the Carolina Coast, showers; East Gulf Coast, gentle to moderate shifting, occasional showers.

FORECAST FOR TODAY AND SATURDAY.

West Virginia, Western Pennsylvania, and Western New York—Fair Friday and Saturday, little change in temperature.

Eastern New York—Partly cloudy Friday; showers in east portion in the morning. Saturday, fair.

New Jersey—Partly cloudy Friday. Saturday, fair.

Delaware—Partly cloudy Friday; slightly warmer in interior. Saturday, fair.

Eastern Pennsylvania—Partly cloudy Friday, slightly warmer in south portion. Saturday, fair.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

Wills for Probate.

COMEGYS, COLONEL WILLIAM, Assistant Paymaster General of the Army, deceased, leaves his estate, the value of which is not given, to his only brother, Charles G. Comegys.

KEMP, CHOUTEAU, (May 20,) at 615 5th Av., leaves everything to his widow, Jane Kemp. Deceased left no real property and less than $1,000 in personal property.

STONE, MRS. SALLIE ENGLISH, (May 31,) cut one of her sons from participation in her estate. The estate is divided into six parts among as many children. The will says, "Although I have the same affection for my oldest son, Charles Francis Stone, Jr., as I have for my other children, yet I leave him nothing, and it is my intention he should have none of my estate for reasons he will readily comprehend. But this shall not be construed as forgiveness of any indebtedness due by him to me." The value of the estate is given as in excess of $5,000 in real and $5,000 in personal property. The son who inherits nothing lives in Upper Montclair, N. J.

Education Notes.

The graduating exercises of the Theodore Roosevelt High School were held last evening in the auditorium of the Morris High School, 166th Street and Boston Road.

The William T. Harris School, P. S. 11, 314 West Seventeenth Street, held its graduation exercises on Tuesday. There were forty-one graduates.

There were 27,011 graduates from the elementary schools this season, as follows: Brooklyn, 10,251; Manhattan, 9,558; the Bronx, 4,119; Queens, 2,570, and Richmond, 513.

The public school baths will be opened this Summer, the necessary funds—$6,912—being taken from Reserve Fund 3.

The construction of new school buildings for the present year will cost about 25 per cent. above the original estimate. The Board of Education has asked the Board of Estimate for an additional appropriation of $2,768,411 for this purpose.

Louis Baylis, assistant teacher of physical training in the Erasmus Hall High School, has been transferred to the office of the Acting Director of Physical Training until Jan. 31, 1920.

Corporate stock amounting to $70,000 will be used to purchase, at private sale, property at Beck Street and Longwood Avenue, the Bronx, as a site for school purposes.

Rooms in St. Anselm's Parochial School, 683 Tinton Avenue, the Bronx, used as an annex to P. S. 52, will be rented from July 1, 1919, to July 1, 1920, at a rental of $4,750.

The Civil Service.

City.

The following lists are announced:

Cleaner, female, Board of Education—Mary Kingsley, Julia Martin, Mary Naphin, Grace Reiter, Daisy Kennedy.

Cleaner and pruner, Manhattan—James Sheridan, Samuel Loverso; the Bronx—Frederick Oldehoff, William Tully, Walter O'Rourke, Frank McMahon.

United States.

The commission announces for Aug. 23 an examination for railway mail clerk, for men. Vacancies in the Railway Mail Service throughout the United States, at the entrance salary of $1,100 a year, will be filled from this examination. Competitors will be examined in Spelling, 10; arithmetic, 20; letter writing, 20; penmanship, 20; copying from plain copy, 20; geography of the United States, 10. Applicants must have reached their eighteenth, but not their thirty-fifth birthday on the date of the examination, and must be free from physical defects. They must measure at least 5 feet 5 inches in height, without boots or shoes, and will not be eligible for appointment unless they weigh at least 120 pounds in ordinary clothing without overcoat or hat.

OUT FOR GOVERNOR ON A WET PLATFORM

HOPES TO BEAT AMENDMENT

Declares Supreme Court Must First Pass Upon the Manner of Its Ratification.

James R. Nugent, Democratic leader of Essex County, N. J., and formerly a bitter enemy of President Wilson with whom he is now on good terms, announced his candidacy for Governor of New Jersey at a meeting last night of his supporters at the Robert Treat Hotel, Newark, and made his platform the promise of a "bitter end" fight against prohibition.

Mr. Nugent said that he had intended to support Edward I. Edwards of Jersey City until he had read last week an interview in which Mr. Edwards had announced that he was for prohibition and woman suffrage.

"'It was after reading this interview,' he continued, 'and being cognizant of the attitude of other candidates, that I realized that no man has appeared in New Jersey who possesses sufficient strength of character to come out into the open and stand four-square to the wind against the hypocrisy of prohibition; it was following this interview that I began to think seriously of your invitation, which has resulted in the announcement of my candidacy tonight.

"'Many men in politics say, 'prohition is here, why argue against it?' I wish to say to you, gentlemen, and to the people of New Jersey that prohibition is not here yet, and will not be here until the United States Supreme Court shall have passed upon the constitutionality of the Eighteenth Amendment that was forced, willy-nilly, through the various legislatures of the States of this Union, as every one knows, by coercion and intimidation.

"'The New Jersey Legislature, at its last session, rejected prohibition and declared that it has no proper place in the fundamental law of the nation. I am proud of my connection with the passage of the resolution by the House of Assembly repudiating the iniquitous measure.

"'If I am elected Governor of New Jersey, I shall fight to the bitter end, and shall call into the service all the powers and all the resources of a sovereign State to the end that this amendment, which robs men and women of their personal liberty, confiscates millions of dollars of property and throws hundreds of thousands of men and women out of employment is wiped out.

"'I am not going to argue the question of prohibition. The time for argument is passed. The time for action has come—action, definite and concerted—men who know how to fight—men to whom the word 'defeat' is not known.'"

New York G. A. R. Elects Officers.

ELMIRA, N. Y., June 26.—Colonel Joseph E. Ewell of Buffalo was elected New York State Department Commander of the Grand Army of the Republic at the final session today of the fifty-third annual State encampment. Other officers elected today were: Edward B. Long, Westchester, Senior Vice Commander; Louis Levolley, Albany, Junior Vice Commander; H. F. Dunbar, Union, Medical Director; D. P. Lappius, Schenevus, Chaplain; Charles A. Orr, Buffalo, Assistant Adjutant General and Assistant Quartermaster. Governor Smith was the principal speaker at the camp fire of the veterans at the State Armory.

Young Wife Who Sued Hart Asserts He Suggested a Lawyer to Her.

Mrs. Kate Wolf Hart, testifying Wednesday in the Second District Municipal Court in Newtown, before Judge John M. Cragen, named Mayor Hylan as one of her advisers. Mrs. Hart is a former manicurist, who at 19 years of age married James H. Hart, 57 years old, a wealthy real estate operator of Brooklyn. She is now legally separated from her husband, and is said to be living at Ronkonkoma, L. I. Mayor Hylan advised her in suggesting Charles E. Russell of Brooklyn as a lawyer for her in the proceedings that she was about to institute against her husband, Mrs. Hart testified. In April Mrs. Hart obtained a decree of separation from her husband, alimony being fixed at $175 a month.

Mrs. Hart is defendant in an action brought by Attorney Sidney Rosenthal of 350 Broadway, Brooklyn, to recover $1,000 for services rendered. Rosenthal testified before Judge Cragen that Mrs. Hart engaged him to prepare papers to have a guardian appointed for her, so that she could bring her suit for separation, as she was a minor, and also to prepare the suit. He testified that he did all of the preliminary work and was waiting for Mrs. Hart to sign the papers when she notified him that she had engaged Charles E. Russell. The latter acted for some time for Mrs. Hart, but her attorneys at the present time are Blandy, Mooney & Shipman of this city.

Upon examination Mrs. Hart testified that when she was about to begin her suit she was visited by the representatives of a number of attorneys who solicited her as a client. She testified that Mr. Russell was not one of those who did so.

"Who was the party who recommended Mr. Russell?" she was asked.

Mrs. Hart hesitated, and her attorney said to her, "Tell who recommended him."

"Mayor Hylan recommended Mr. Russell," replied Mrs. Hart.

"And he had offices in the building adjoining your husband some years ago," added Attorney Tierney.

"I don't know about that," replied Mrs. Hart.

Judge Cragen reserved decision in the case.

OPPOSES FUNERAL "TRUST."

Court Refuses to Incorporate Owners of Burial Equipment.

Efforts to regulate the price that may be charged for hearses, carriages, and automobiles for funerals was frowned upon by Justice Stephen Callaghan in the Queens County Supreme Court yesterday when he refused to grant incorporation to the Long Island Coach and Automobile Owners' Association. In announcing his refusal Justice Callaghan said:

"I cannot approve this certificate. The purpose of the proposed corporation as shown in the certificate is illegal and contrary to public policy."

The association, according to the papers filed, aims to improve the hearse, carriage, and automobile service given to the public residing on Long Island and in the City of New York; to protect the business interests of the members by establishing uniform terms for the hire of hearses, coaches, and automobiles, and by providing for prompt payment of accounts between members for the hire of hearses, coaches, and automobiles.

Building of Highway on West Bank of River Is Resumed.

Work has been resumed on the Henry Hudson Drive, which is destined to be the scenic highway on the west bank of the Hudson River, through the Palisades Interstate Park. Announcement was made yesterday by George W. Perkins, Chairman of the Park Commission, that $100,000 has just been made available for continuing the work, and many discharged soldiers are being employed on the road. The section under construction will finish the road to Alpine, opposite Yonkers, and begin the Fort Lee route.

The first mile and a half of the drive northward from the Englewood terminal and the remaining three and a half miles to Alpine subgraded, at a cost of $500,000.

"The ultimate plan," said Mr. Perkins yesterday, "is to construct a drive from Englewood along the cliffs to Alpine. When this is finished, in conjunction with the new Storm King Road, there will be a complete route on the west side of the Hudson from the Park entrance to Albany."

The Storm King Road is one of the greatest road engineering works in the country. It is being built by the State in co-operation with private gifts obtained by the Park Commission. To date more than $368,000 has been spent. The completion of the routes will make the great recreation playground and camping resort at Bear Mountain more accessible to visitors. More than 80,000 persons visited Bear Mountain Sunday.

Opposition to Nationalization Is Growing in the Party.

LONDON, June 26.—Opposition on the part of the Conservatives to the nationalization of the British mines is growing, and there may be a Unionist split if the Government accepts the report of the Sankey Commission recommending that step, according to talk in the Parliamentary lobbies. The Conservatives, like the Labor Party men, are discussing the possibility of a general election before Christmas.

The results of the impending bye-elections in Swansea and Bothwell, where labor candidates are opposing coalitionists, may possibly, it is thought, determine the industrial policy of the Government.

GERMANS REACH VERSAILLES, TREATY TO BE SIGNED TODAY; WILSON SAILS FOR HOME TOMORROW TO FIGHT FOR LEAGUE; OPPOSES ALL RESERVATIONS AND THE FALL RESOLUTION

PROHIBITION ACT PROBABLY HELD UP UNTIL JULY 7

Exodus of Congressmen for Fourth and Appropriation Measures Cause Delay.

WILSON IS DUE HERE THEN

Rumor Still Persists in Washington That He Will Take Action on His Return.

REPEAL POWER QUESTIONED

Representative Hoch, in House, Says President Has No Right to Act.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON June 27.—Action by the House on wartime and national prohibition enforcement legislation will probably be delayed until Monday, July 7, following the return of members of Congress who will be away from Washington over the Fourth of July.

Chairman Andrew J. Volstead of the House Judiciary Committee today reported the text of the enforcement bill as agreed upon by that committee yesterday, with certain minor amendments adopted at another session of the committee today. He has also asked the Rules Committee for a special rule to bring up the bill for consideration on Monday or Tuesday of next week; but it seemed probable tonight that no such rule would be granted prior to July 4.

Strong pressure has been brought to bear by members desirous of going away over the Fourth against consideration of the enforcement legislation until July 7. By that time President Wilson will also probably be in Washington and will probably have indicated whether he intends to take any steps toward halting the enforcement of wartime prohibition on July 1, either by nullifying the act because of the signing of the Peace Treaty or by announcing that he will lift the ban by Aug. 1, when demobilization will almost have been completed, or whether he will take no action.

Despite the absence of any announcement from the White House regarding the President's attitude, there continued to be apparent among the wet leaders at the Capitol today a feeling that the President would soon declare mobilization ended and indicate a belief that there was no longer a need for wartime prohibition.

The legislative situation, demanding the passage of the conference reports on appropriation measures by July 1, makes it almost impossible to take up the prohibition measure and dispose of it in the two calendar days remaining before July 1, when wartime prohibition becomes effective. Many members are scheduled to make speeches out of the city on Independence Day, and a great exodus of Congressmen is expected after Monday. Because of this and the fact that the Judiciary Committee saw fit to place not only legislation to enforce wartime prohibition but also national prohibition in one bill, it is not thought that it will be possible to obtain the consent of the Rules Committee for right of way for the Volstead bill until the Monday immediately following the Fourth.

Liberal members of the House, pledged to prohibition legislation, have made their position plain to the dry leaders—that they do not care to consent to hasty consideration of so important a measure while so many members are absent, since the drastic features necessary for the enforcement of national prohibition, and which do not apply to the enforcement of wartime prohibition, have been carried in the same bill. They have informed Representative Volstead that they favor prompt consideration of wartime prohibition legislation and urged the reporting of the enforcement legislation in two separate bills.

Acting on the suggestions made to him last night, Chairman Volstead introduced a separate bill for the enforcement of wartime prohibition, but the Judiciary Committee today decided by the overwhelming vote of 17 to 2 against separating wartime enforcement from Constitutional enforcement. The bill introduced yesterday was slightly amended today by inserting between Sections 38 and 39 a new section, which will be called Section 39, which will permit the manufacture of near-beer with more than one-half of 1 per cent. of alcohol, provided the excess over one-half of 1 per cent. is sweated out of the product before it is put on the market. This new section reads:

"Section 30. A manufacturer of any beverage containing less than one-half of 1 per centum of alcohol by volume may, on making application and giving such bond as the Commissioner shall prescribe, be given a permit to develop in the manufacture thereof a liquid containing more than one-half of 1 per cent. of alcohol by volume, but before any

MOVES TO CLOSE THE RAND SCHOOL

Attorney General Takes Steps Toward Revoking Radical Institution's Charter.

PLANNED NEGRO UPRISING

Evidence Before Lusk Committee Shows Reds Prepared to Meet Militia.

It was learned last night that Attorney General Charles D. Newton has begun legal steps to have the charter under which the Rand School of Social Science has been operating revoked. The Rand School was raided a week ago by agents of the legislative committee investigating seditious activities and propaganda.

The announcement was made after there had been produced before the committee at its hearing in the City Hall yesterday documentary evidence out of the great mass seized in the raid, sufficient to show that this institution had been teaching armed preparedness "to meet the militia" in the event that the social revolution, which it has been frankly advocating, should be accompanied by violence.

The Rand School has no charter of its own. It has been carrying on its propaganda under a charter, obtained on Sept. 23, 1901, in the Supreme Court for the American Socialist Society. The charter was issued by Justice James A. O'Gorman, who later left the bench to become a United States Senator. The incorporators were: Leonard D. Abbott, William Mailly, Professor George D. Herron, Carrie Rand Herron, Henry Slobodin, Algernon Lee, Job Harriman, Morris Hillquit, and Benjamin Hanford. The school was founded by and took its name from Mrs. Carrie Rand Herron, wife of Professor Herron.

Some testimony was introduced connecting the Rand School with the dissemination of printed matter which when read into the record was referred by Senator Clayton R. Lusk to the District Attorney for action. Attorney General Newton then asked that a subpoena duces tecum be issued calling on the United States District Attorney's office to produce the record showing the conviction of the American Socialist Society in the Federal courts for the circulation of Professor Scott Nearing's pamphlet, "The Great Madness." The record of this conviction was later produced and made part of the record. It showed that the American Socialist Society had been fined $3,000 and that the case has been appealed.

Deputy Attorney General Samuel A. Berger later in the day obtained from United States District Attorney Caffey the minutes of the trial with a view to determining the form of procedure to be used in having the charter of the society revoked. It is understood that

DR. WILKINS GUILTY OF FIRST DEGREE MURDER, MUST DIE

Jury Recommends Mercy, but Court Announces That Only Governor Can Intervene.

VERDICT STUNS PRISONER

"Only Love in Our Home," He Declares in Statement Protesting His Innocence.

JURY OUT FOR 22 HOURS

First Ballot Six to Five for Conviction—One Man Held His Ground Alone for Seven Hours.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., June 27.—Dr. Walter Keene Wilkins was found guilty of murder in the first degree at 3:24 o'clock this afternoon after the jury had deliberated for twenty-two hours and sixteen minutes on the evidence which finally satisfied them that he had beaten his aged wife to death at their home in Long Beach on Feb. 27 of this year.

The defendant appeared cool and collected while the jurors filed in and took their seats, although the expressions on the faces of the twelve men convinced all in the courtroom that they had decided upon conviction. Dr. Wilkins kept his composure when the foreman, Oscar W. Paries, said that they found the defendant guilty as charged. Paries hesitated for a moment, while the courtroom was in profound silence, and then added that the jury had decided also to ask for clemency.

"It pains me that I cannot comply with your request for clemency," said Justice Manning. "A verdict of first degree murder carries no other penalty than death. The only clemency that can come must be granted by the Governor."

Dr. Wilkins answered calmly the questions of the clerk, who took his pedigree. He said he was 67 years old and an Episcopalian. After other questions had been answered, he sat down heavily, but a few minutes later left the courtroom with a steady step.

Discussion of all phases of the case, which continued all through night, this morning, and well into the afternoon, brought the verdict of guilty from a jury which in the beginning was very nearly evenly divided. Jurors said afterwards that on the first ballot six jurors voted for conviction and five for acquittal, while one ballot was blank. This first ballot was taken approximately twenty hours before the verdict was brought in, and those twenty hours were spent, except for one interruption, in debating the case in the jury room. This interruption occurred when, to settle arguments that had arisen, the twelve men went back to Justice Manning shortly before midnight and had read to them the testimony of Dr. Wilkins before the Coroner, and the instructions of Justice Manning on circumstantial evidence.

One Juror Holds Out.

The reference to the record of the case fortified the position of the jurors who were for conviction, and by 5 o'clock this morning they had won four more jurors to their side. The jury then stood ten to two for conviction. Another juror was won over a little later on the four-

Non-Partisan League Vote Shows Loss, but Radical Laws Are Probably Approved

Special to The New York Times.

FARGO, N. D., June 27.—The Non-Partison League, as a result of yesterday's referendum, is not so firmly intrenched in North Dakota as it has been. Its indicated majority on the laws that were voted on yesterday is far less than that obtained by the League last November when its candidate for Governor had a margin of 17,000. Returns from 1,306 precincts out 2,856 show 32,262 affirmative votes and 35,628 negative.

The most significant development of the election was the vote in Morton, Emmons, Logan, McIntosh, and Burleigh Counties, in which the group of insurgent State officials centred their activity. All of these counties, except Burleigh, went against the league, and in Burleigh the League suffered a loss of 200.

Throughout the Red River Valley, where the farmers are prosperous, the league has lost heavily, but it retained its strength in the northwestern section of the State, where the farmers have had four successive crop failures.

In connection with the turnover of the vote in Emmons, Logan, McIntosh, Morton, and Stutsman County, another that has swung into the opposition column, it is significant that German voters predominate. Last June, in the State primary, and last November, in the general election, they were nearly a unit in favor of the Non-Partisan League program and candidates.

Yesterday's elections will decide for or against the State system of terminal elevators and flour mills, and upon the operation of a State bank. Seventeen million dollars in State bonds for that purpose is proposed, and the whole administrative machinery is ready to be placed in operation immediately. Five million dollars of the seventeen million authorised would be available for financing the terminal elevator and flour mill system; two million for capitalising the State bank, and ten million for financing farm credits.

The five other laws voted on yesterday change the system of administering the educational systems; create a new system of taxation administration; create a new system of judicial districts; make an appropriation for immigration purposes, and govern publication of legal notices in newspapers.

The vote is not complete enough yet to indicate just what the final vote will be on each of the seven referred laws. The industrial laws, however, have been accorded a heavier vote than the five measures relating to State administrative matters, which also were referred. There is a possibility that the so-called newspaper and educational laws have been defeated.

Revolution in Italy Plotted with the Aid of Teuton Reds

COPENHAGEN, June 27, (Associated Press.)—Italian, German, and Austrian communists held a conference in Southern Tyrol a few days ago for the purpose of preparing for a revolution in Italy, says a dispatch from Vienna.

The revolution was fixed for the middle of July.

COPENHAGEN, June 27.—The situation in Hamburg seems less serious to this extent that the Government troops are proceeding to occupy the Central Station and other public buildings seized by the Spartacides.

The Government troops arrived rather sooner than had been expected, and those detachments which have already entered the city did so without encountering any serious opposition. A proclamation is to be issued warning the people to keep off the streets, as it is expected that further fighting will ensue when an attempt is made to disarm the rebels.

What the relative strength of the opposing "armies" is it is impossible to say, but the Hamburg correspondent of the Berlingske Tidende says that there is still extreme tension in the city.

Things look rather bad in Berlin, too. Railway traffic in the city is practically at a standstill, owing to the wage strike among the operatives, and there is the ever present danger of this local movement becoming general throughout the country.

Minister of Defense Noske has issued a proclamation to the effect that the country's resources will be used to the utmost to prevent any spread of the outbreaks, as the Government considers these movements purely political. Noske appears to be losing influence exactly in those quarters which such a proclamation is intended to impress, as it is now being held generally that he is falling more and more under the influence of the agents of militarism.

Fruitless negotiations between the Prussian Home Office and the railway men's representatives have led to the statement that the Prussian State railways already show a large deficit, and therefore any increase of wages must be out of the question.

A house inspection carried out against several workers' officials revealed the existence of some half a million pamphlets signed by Spartacide organizations calling for a general strike and the overthrow of the Government. Several officials were arrested, but later were set free, as it was found they were not responsible for the existence of the pamphlets. This morning, however, a large number of arrests is being effected in and around Berlin.

40,000 Troops Reach Hamburg.

BERLIN, June 26.—I learn from the Ministry of Defense here that the German Government intends to proceed with all the necessary force and severity against the Hamburg insurgents.

Upon the entry of the Government troops into the city all persons found carrying arms and not entitled to do so will be summarily dealt with by court-martial. Forty thousand Government troops are now on the outskirts of the city.

Last night the rowdy elements which were at large in Hamburg did much damage and created alarm everywhere. The police and People's Defense Corps are now trying to lay by the heels all those prisoners whom the enthusiastic insurgents had released from jail, for, no doubt, those rowdies were keeping up a carnival of disorder.

Though yesterday my correspondent wired me from Hamburg that the Commission of Twelve thought they were safely installed in the saddle, it is rather another story today. The city had a very disturbed night, and in order to prevent a repetition the commission, to which had been given the duty of arming the proletariat, was changed into a disarming committee. Then the Hamburg Senate appeared on the scene, and claimed that it still had at least the power of sharing in the discussions. The Commission of Twelve agreed, for had not the People's Defense Corps some time earlier proclaimed that they would not, under any circumstances, fight against the Government troops?

So it was thought well to begin re-

President Leaves Paris Tonight Sails from Brest Tomorrow

PARIS, June 27, (Associated Press.)—The stay of President Wilson in Paris will end tomorrow when he starts homeward following the signing of the Peace Treaty. Arrangements for his departure have been completed, and his special train will leave at 9:30 P. M.. It will arrive at Brest Sunday morning, when the President will board the steamship George Washington, which sails about noon.

PARIS, June 27.—President Wilson is returning to America full of hope for the future of the world—hope born of the treaty of peace with Germany which, according to all expectations will be signed by the allied and enemy plenipotentiaries tomorrow afternoon.

The President feels that it is to be a good peace—a peace based on justice and right. If it seems severe on Germany to some they should keep in mind that Germany, like the individual criminal, had no right to expect to escape the consequence of her crimes, which in the case of an individual offender is punished by law to the extreme of forfeiture of his life.

These are the ideas that are in the President's mind in the closing hours of the most important international gathering in history. He is returning home with the intention of making a report of his stewardship to the American people and to that end will start as soon as possible on a nation-wide tour so as to be able to see and talk to as many of his fellow-countrymen as the time at his disposal will permit.

He believes that the German treaty was negotiated among the allied peacemakers in a liberal spirit and seems filled with confidence that the American people will approve its terms in the assurance that whatever its imperfections may appear to be, it was the best that could be devised under all the circumstances of international and national complications and embarrassments.

President Wilson intends that his swing around the circle, which he expects to take him to the Pacific Coast, shall be free from any semblance of political purpose—political in a partisan sense. He regards the tour as educational—designed, according to the view he is understood to hold, to tell the people what he did in Paris and what was accomplished there by those entrusted with the gigantic task of rearranging the affairs of the world.

Of course his great interest is in the League of Nations, and it is within the limits of propriety to say that he regards the league covenant as so bound up in the treaty itself that any change in the covenant would not merely endanger the success of this constitution of the world peace but also the treaty itself.

Strongly Opposed to Changes.

There seems to be no doubt that the President is convinced that if any change whatever was made in the treaty or the covenant by the United States Senate, even in the form of reservations such as those proposed by ex-Senator Root, the United States would remain out of the league for an indefinite period and for this period be constructively, at least, at war with Germany.

Adoption of Senator Fall's resolution, the President, it is understood, would regard as a national disgrace. He feels too deeply on this whole subject of the efforts of the Senate to amend th treaty or the covenant or to separate one from the other or to

Chinese Will Not Sign Peace Treaty Today; Private Assurances on Shantung Inadequate

PARIS, June 27, (Associated Press.)—The Chinese delegation announced tonight that China would not sign the Peace Treaty with Germany because China would not be allowed to make reservations concerning the Province of Shantung, and the privilege had been refused her of making a declaration at the time of the signing of the treaty.

The Chinese delegates have been making efforts in the last few days to secure the consent of the council to insert in the treaty their reservations concerning the settlement of the Kiao-Chau and Shantung questions.

M. Pichon, the French Foreign Minister, informed them yesterday in behalf of the council that this would not be allowed. The delegation then requested that an opportunity be given them to make a declaration on the signing of the treaty. Refusal of this request was announced to them this afternoon, whereupon the delegation declared that if the Chinese delegates refused to sign the treaty the responsibility would rest upon the council.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Until very recently it was thought possible here that China might sign the treaty in view of private assurances, said to have been given to her representatives, that Japan's tenure of Shantung would not be long. China, it also had been believed, would probably assent to the treaty and leave the Shantung question to be worked out by the League.

The Chinese decision is believed here to be based on these points:

First—That the delegation was unable to obtain definite assurances that Japan would give up the Shantung Province within a short time, and that the Japanese tenure would not be permitted to run for the remainder of the ninety-nine-year period under which Germany held the territory.

Second—That assurances were lacking that Japan would relinquish control of the railroad from Tsing Tao to Tsin Auru, the Tsing Tao-Shanghai-Chefoo cables, and facilities at the port of Kiao-Chau.

Failure of China to sign the treaty, officials say, will probably exclude her from the League of Nations, including certain rights of redress under that covenant, as well as work to her detriment in the resumption of trade.

HITCHCOCK SURE TREATY WILL WIN

Predicts That Senate Opponents Will Not Muster More Than 16 Votes.

REPUBLICANS ARE AT ODDS

Borah-Johnson Group Angered by Hays—Root's Adherents Hint at Coup in Their Favor.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock of Nebraska, Administration spokesman in the Senate on the League of Nations, today confidently asserted that every effort to attach amendments or reservations to the treaty would fail, and that not more than fifteen Republican Senators would vote against the ratification of the treaty with the League covenant included in it.

While Senator Hitchcock in making this prediction was calling attention to the discord in the ranks of League opponents, and comparing Senator Lodge, the Republican leader, to "a hen with a brood of chickens," force was given his words by the statement of Senators of the Borah-Johnson group that they had notified Senator Lodge "in the plainest language possible to use" that they resented the presence of Will H. Hays, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, at the Capital in an effort to harmonise Republicans.

Mr. Hitchcock opened his discussion of the Senate situation by repelling with great emphasis a suggestion, heard today in Senate corridors, that a compromise might be accepted by the supporters of the League to prevent its absolute rejection.

"No compromise whatever is possible on the League of Nations," said the Senator. "The Democrats will not consent to any proposal of that kind. It has become perfectly apparent that the Republicans will accomplish nothing by their opposition. They will go up and down the fence trying to pull off the pickets, but will be unable to remove any of them. They cannot obtain a majority for the Knox resolution, the Fall resolution, the Sherman resolution or the reservations of Mr. Root. These will be voted down by Democrats, with substantial assistance from Republicans. It is certain there will be more than two Republicans who will aid us in accomplishing this result.

"When all efforts at amendment or reservation have failed, the question will then be 'yes' or 'no' on ratification, and the treaty will be ratified. In my opinion not more than fifteen Republicans and one Democrat will vote against ratification.

"The Democrats are solid. I never saw them so enthusiastic about anything. There is no division of counsel on our side.

"The opposition is evidently disturbed by the division of counsel. Senator Lodge has announced that he favored the Knox resolution, but that he was going to lay it aside for the present.

BRUSSELS, June 26.—The latest report from Berlin received in official circles here regarding the ex-Kaiser is that he will remain quietly at Amerongen until the time is ripe for him to return to Germany and be restored as King of Prussia.

Dispatches from the chief German cities received here, and also letters from business firms, say that there has been a revival in Germany in favor of William. His admirers say that although he made mistakes during the war it was the Hohenzollerns who built up the trade and prosperity of Germany, and Germany must have its old ruler back to direct the efforts to restore the country to its former state.

TREATY SIGNING AT 3 P. M.

Momentous Event Fixed on Word of the Germans' Departure.

LEAVE BERLIN SECRETLY

ALL ARRANGEMENTS MADE

Foch to Witness Ceremony as a Member of the French Delegation.

PARIS, June 27, (Associated Press.)—Dr. Hermann Müller and Dr. Bell, the German plenipotentiaries to sign the Peace Treaty, arrived at Versailles this evening.

Paul Dutasta, Secretary of the Peace Conference, went to Versailles at 8:30 o'clock this evening to submit to the German delegates a letter from Premier Clemenceau, President of the Peace Congress, certifying that the treaty to be submitted to the Germans for signature tomorrow conformed in all points to the text of the document submitted June 16.

Plans were completed by the Council of Four today for the signing of the treaty at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. No official statement, however, was issued by the Council.

Those holding tickets of admission to the ceremony in the Hall of Mirrors have been notified that they must be provided with identification papers. Each ticket must carry the photograph of the person to be admitted. Ticket holders are requested to be at the Palace by 2 o'clock

Italy will be represented in the signing of the treaty by Baron Sonnino, Marquis Imperiali di Francavilla, and Dr. Silvio Crespi. The new Italian Peace Conference delegation, headed by Foreign Minister Tittoni, will not arrive in Paris until Sunday morning.

President Poincaré, who had failed to get a ticket of admission to the Hall of Mirrors to witness the signing, has received several cards for tomorrow's ceremony. It is reported that the cards will be distributed to some former Premiers who were in office during the war and were overlooked by the Government.

The Temps says that MM. Briand, Ribot, Viviani, and Painlevé, former Premiers, will be present at the ceremony, but not as guests of the Government.

Marshal Foch, not being a delegate to the conference, will not sign the treaty, but he will attend the ceremonies Saturday, being seated with the French delegation.

The original of the treaty which will be signed by all the plenipotentiaries will be on Japan parchment, according to L'Intransigeant. It cost 15,000 francs to prepare the document.

COBLENZ, June 27.—According to advices received by the American authorities here Foreign Secretary Müller and Colonial Secretary Bell left Berlin for Versailles in the greatest secrecy on a special train, fearing an attempt on their lives.

A Berlin dispatch to the Coblenz newspapers says that the German delegates know that they are to sign the treaty Saturday afternoon.

GENERALS TRY TO HOLD GERMAN ARMY STEADY

Hindenburg and Groener Standing by the Cabinet in Peace Treaty Crisis.

By GEORGE RENWICK.

BERLIN, June 25.—I learn that the German Government, on receiving the Entente's reply early Sunday morning notifying it of the rejection of the German proposal to agree to sign the Peace Treaty with two reservations, made a final appeal to the army authorities to see if it was in their power to "save the situation."

General Gröner, Chief of the General Staff, was telephoned to by President Ebert, who told him that the Majority Socialist and Centrist Parties were likely to be in favor of the unconditional signing of the treaty. The President asked Gröner what would be the attitude of the troops in that event, and said that after statements by General Lüttwitz, commanding the National Defense Corps, and other high officers he feared untoward happenings.

In reply, General Gröner said that he spoke not as a responsible officer, but as a German, and declared that he regarded a fight in the east to be doomed to failure. He insisted that Noske should issue a statement to the army pointing out that unconditional signature was necessary to save the Fatherland, and that it was the duty of all officers and men to remain at their posts and perform their patriotic duty. Only that, he said, could save the situation and prevent war in the east.

As already known, Noske did so. Appeals were issued to the military and naval forces, and though the trouble in the army may not be quite at an end, I believe that there is little chance of the reactionary element achieving anything.

—Hindenburg, following his resignation and retirement in what may be termed a blaze of Bengal fire, has undoubtedly done something to strength the reactionaries. In his farewell to the troops under his command, he reiterates his belief that it would be better to have honorable disaster than agree to a dishonoring peace. He refers to the "great victories" and tireless "work for peace" of the German Army during the war, and gives thanks for its loyalty during the "sad days of disaster." He declares that each soldier may think as he likes about the Peace Treaty, but adds that it is the duty of all to stand by the Fatherland in this time of tragedy.

Both Hindenburg and Gröner informed the President that a great number of officers and men of the army must refuse service if the "insulting paragraphs" of the Peace Treaty were agreed to. Gröner said he would like to resign, but declared his willingness to remain at his post until matters in the east were definitely settled.

DIFFER ON DANISH COMPLAINT.

Paris Uncertain as to German Right to Sell Schleswig Property.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 26.—What is described as another act of trickery by the Germans at the eleventh hour before signing is indicated in a complaint received by the Council of Four this afternoon from Denmark. The grievance is that Germany is already disposing by sale of State property within territory the future ownership of which is to be determined by a plebiscite.

There is a difference of opinion in Paris as to whether Germany has the right to do this. There is nothing in the stipulations concerning that region which, as in the case of Alsace, definitely declares that all State-owned property shall pass to the new sovereignty without compensation to the old.

SERAJEVO ANNIVERSARY TODAY

Treaty Signing Just 5 Years After Event That Caused War.

Signing of the Peace Treaty at Versailles today will, by a remarkable coincidence, mark the fifth anniversary of the murder of the Austro-Hungarian heir presumptive, Archduke Francis Ferdinand at Serajevo. Seven days after that date, June 28, 1914, the German Kaiser at Potsdam is said to have prepared for the war, which was brought about later through the instrumentality of the Austro-Hungarian ultimatum to Serbia.

On Monday, June 29, 1914, THE NEW YORK TIMES published eighteen columns of news, special articles, biographies, and interviews concerning the Serajevo tragedy and seven portraits. One article, commenting on the political crisis produced by the assassination, ended with the words: "The situation caused by the revolver in the hand of the Serbian student is one of infinite possibilities."

Among the news stories were a description of the tragedy, written by a reporter of the Vienna Neue Freie Presse and sent by special cable to THE TIMES, and a few words from the German Kaiser as he landed from his yacht at Kiel. He had been following the regatta, but departed at once for Berlin.

GERMAN WRITER FREED.

French Not to Proceed at Present Against Correspondent.

PARIS, June 26.—William Scheuermann, correspondent of the Deutsche Tageszeitung, who was arrested at Versailles Wednesday evening, has been released from custody.

A report made today to Premier Clemenceau by M. Ignace, Under-Secretary of Justice, says that a warrant was issued in the regular way by the War Council of the Second Region for the arrest of Scheuermann on a charge of larceny of property of a French officer at Charleville. The arrest was duly carried out, says the report, since the correspondent, as a journalist with the German delegation in nowise enjoyed diplomatic immunity.

The Minister of Foreign Affairs, however, points out that it is inexpedient to proceed with the charge, although admitting that there was a case against Scheuermann. To avoid difficulties, therefore, Scheuermann was discharged, and the department has reserved the right to take judicial action later.

FOCH KEEPS STRICT WATCH.

Urges Vigilance at Coblenz—German Recruiting Agent Punished.

COBLENZ, June 26, (Associated Press.)—Marshal Foch arrived here yesterday for what may be his last visit to the Coblenz bridgehead, during its occupation by American troops. He was accompanied by his aids and several members of his staff, and called upon Lieut. Gen. Hunter Liggett at headquarters.

Marshal Foch expressed to Gen. Liggett his admiration for the Americans. In reference to peace, he said:

"Peace terms have not yet been signed, and until they are actually signed we must not relax our watch on the Rhine in the least."

The Marshal spent a half-hour with General Liggett, and then proceeded on his journey by automobile. He is planning to return soon to his advance headquarters at Kreuznach.

Frederick Ketterman, an under officer in the German Army, was convicted today by an American military commission of recruiting civilians within the American occupied area. This was held to be a violation of the armistice terms and an infraction of regulations published by American military authorities in German newspapers in February.

Ketterman was sentenced to six months' imprisonment and fined 5,000 marks.

Letters from Berlin authorizing Ketterman to enlist men for the German Army were found in his possession. Other papers among his effects showed a general knowledge of the American troop movements and the location of their forces. He also had a report on the recent burning of ammunition dumps near Coblenz. The original copies of these papers evidently had been forwarded to Berlin.

Ketterman admitted having recruited more than fifty men.

REVOLT IN BUDAPEST; BELA KUN SHOT AT

Outbreak Following Split in Soviet Cabinet Put Down by Red Guards.

DANUBE MONITOR SEIZED

But Lack of Shells Rendered It Useless—Peasants to Resist Confiscation of Crops.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, June 26.—An attempt to overthrow the Budapest Soviet is described by Bela Kun's Press Bureau as a "monarchist coup," but it was in reality, according to reliable information received here, a spontaneous rising of citizens of all classes driven to desperation by the famine caused in the Hungarian capital by Bolshevist misrule.

A grave crisis within the Soviet itself preceded the outbreak. Two Commissaries of the People, Food Minister Erdelyi and the Minister of Justice, resigned, declaring they could no longer countenance the criminal and suicidal methods of Bela Kun, which must result in absolute ruin.

Their resignation was the signal for the revolt. While some officers seized one of the Danube monitors and trained guns on the Soviet headquarters, soldiers and citizens stormed the artillery barracks, hauled down the red flag, and publicly burned it. Shooting soon became general in the streets between Bela Kun's bodyguard, known as "Lenin Boys," and the desperate citizens. Three shots were fired by the monitor, but the rebels were handicapped by lack of ammunition.

As Bela Kun was passing through the streets to seek refuge in the barracks of the Red Guards a man of the working classes shot at him twice with a revolver but missed both times. His assailant was immediately cut down.

When the insurgents had exhausted their ammunition the Lenin Boys organized a murderous hunt after the "bourgeois" throughout the city, killing and bayonetting many citizens supposed to have fired from windows or made signals to the monitor. Over 500 arrests were made.

The same night Bela Kun reorganized his Soviet. Food Commissary Erdelyi was replaced by four "Economic Councillors," and a proclamation was issued stating: "The proletariat had risen as one man and crushed the counter-revolution." The truth is that many workmen took part in the rising, while the remainder observed an attitude of pathetic indifference.

The situation remains critical and Hungarian communism appears doomed, for Budapest is starving and the peasants are determined to resist the confiscation of their crops ordered by Bela Kun.

BUDAPEST, June 23, (Associated Press.)—"The allied policy toward Hungary should be one of noninterference in our internal affairs and the Allies also should raise the blockade," Bela Kun, Foreign Minister of the present Hungarian Government, told The Associated Press correspondent today in discussing assertions that Hungary had been interfering with the affairs of the Austrian Republic, which he characterized as untrue.

"Austria is seeking with this allegation to deceive the public so that it may be enabled to continue the domination of Hapsburg capitalism," he said. "It is also untrue that we bought guns and rifles from the Italians. Our policy is peace. Sooner or later our frontiers, now impossible, will be altered, when the Allies understand the situation better, and when they realize that the best policy is peace dictated by reason. So far, the policy of President Wilson has not been adopted because of French opposition. For the present, we are not going to stand on a question of political frontiers, but of economic ones, which alone make life possible for us.

"Premier Lenin of Russia is not dictating our internal policy. We are merely following his idea that principles should be altered to meet changing circumstances."

"Yes, communism will succeed here," he said in answer to a question. "We are now in a period of transition, going back toward socialism." Asked if Hungarians wanted communism, he said: "The majority is passive, but the minority is active. Anyway, it is impossible for us to work under capitalism, even with the latter passive.

"I know the Germans will sign the peace terms, and I am glad of it, for it means a revolution in Germany. After such a peace capitalism will be incapable of organizing production there. Nor would it pay, politically, to try to do so. Peace is the last resort of capitalism, but it will bring class war and revolutions in other countries, as foreseen by Lenin, who is the greatest man in the world."

Dutch Socialists to Oust Leader if Charge Is Sustained.

THE HAGUE, June 26.—Ever since the commencement of the war there has been a constant espionage of governmental telegrams at The Hague and Amsterdam telegraph offices which has resulted in various arrests and trials.

The Social Democrat Troelstra, closely allied with the German Social Democrats, appears to be involved in the latest telegraphic espionage case. The Dutch Social Democrat leaders have decided to put questions to the Government and oust Troelstra as leader if the charges are true.

Troelstra is a firm friend of Scheidemann, who has doubtless found Entente Government telegrams from The Hague useful data.

GERMANS USE BIG GUNS AGAINST THE POLES

Paderewski Appeals to Allies for Ammunition — Gets Free Hand in Galicia.

PARIS, June 27, (Associated Press.)—Movements of the Germans against the western Polish boundary at three points are giving great uneasiness in conference circles, and Ignace Jan Paderewski, the Polish Premier, is making earnest efforts to obtain ammunition from the Allies before the Germans get the principal railways, which is now feared.

Heavy artillery attacks upon Czenstochowa from the south and west threaten to cut the railway connecting Warsaw with Cracow and the Teschen coal fields. Czenstochowa is a city of 40,000 persons and an important railway junction.

The Germans are also advancing at Krotoschin, fifty-four miles southeast of Posen and directly west of Lodz, and there is fighting on the River Netze, west of Bromberg. Polish staff officers stationed in Paris regard the Czenstochowa action as most critical, as the Germans are within twenty miles of the city at some points.

A decision of the Council of Four to permit the Polish Army under General Haller to establish order in Galicia, east of Lemberg, carries with it temporary recognition of the River Brucz as the eastern boundary of Poland, pending the decision of the League of Nations. This decision was especially gratifying to M. Paderewski and his associates, as the interallied commissions which visited the region supported Polish reports that the district was being terrorized by bandits connected with no recognized army or organized government.

GERMANS PLOTTED TO ATTACK ALLIES

Scheidemann Had Scheme Not to Sign and Turn on Foch's Forces After Advance.

BERLIN, June 27, (Associated Press.)—The German Government, headed by Philipp Scheidemann, had planned to refuse to sign the Peace Treaty and to permit the allied troops to march into Germany as far as the Elbe, where it would be attacked by strong German forces, says the Danzig correspondent of the Tageblatt in a dispatch describing the details of a secret plan to create a separate State in Northeastern Germany.

The plan failed because of jealousies and differences of opinion between the Government and the army leaders, the correspondent says. (A report from Geneva Thursday night said that Herr Scheidemann had arrived in Switzerland after crossing the frontier on foot.)

The last proposal made by the conspirators planning to oppose the Allies, it is said, was to ask Poland to combine with Eastern Germany in the formation of an independent republic. The offer, it is stated, was rebuffed by the Poles, who asked why it had not been offered ten years ago.

The correspondent says it was the intention to co-operate with the Grand Duke of Mecklenburg in the establishment of a republic or a monarchy to include East Prussia, West Prussia and Posen. The plan, he says, was supported by Adolph von Batocki, President of East Prussia; Herr Schnackenburg, President of West Prussia, and Herr von Bülow, President of Posen.

Mathias Erzberger, head of the German Armistice Commission, and Herr Hörsing, Commissioner for Upper Silesia, also were involved. Gustav Noske, Minister of Defense, the correspondent asserts, had a difficult task in persuading Erzberger to give up the plan.

Herr Wig, the National Commissioner for Posen and the two Prussian provinces, the correspondent asserts, was to head the movement and be in charge of the military forces, which were to make an attack as soon as the Peace Treaty was signed.

The plan was disclosed, it is added, when various Generals interested had a conference with the Government leaders at Weimar. Gen. Groener, now the chief commander, it is said, was the first to decide to abandon the plan.

The Government, it is further stated, feared that Hörsing, instead of operating against the Poles with the troops under his command, would turn about face and march on Berlin, in an attempt to re-establish the former Emperor on the throne.

A message of warning from M. Clemenceau to the German Government in regard to plotting against Poland was made public in Paris Thursday. In it reference was made to an intercepted German dispatch wherein it was definitely stated that while the Berlin Government would sign, nevertheless unofficial support would be given to any movement looking to preventing Polish authorities from occupying the German districts allotted to the new nation under the treaty.

FRENCH ELECTORAL REFORM

Senate Passes Measure Already Adopted by Chamber of Deputies.

PARIS, June 26.—The Senate passed the Electoral Reform bill by a vote of 129 to 4 today.

The French Electoral Reform bill, providing for the election of members of the House of Deputies by departments instead of by arrondissements, passed the Chamber of Deputies on April 10. Besides the provision for the election of the members of the Chamber of Deputies, the bill also carries a number of other reform measures applicable to French elections.

WILSON RESTRAINED BRITISH PREMIER

Opposed Concessions He Had Himself Urged That Would Have Reopened Terms.

PHILIP KERR A COMING MAN

Ambassador Davis Talked Of by Americans in Paris as Democratic Nominee for President.

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 25.—There is now no harm in gossiping about an interesting English situation which a few weeks ago almost caused a reopening of the peace terms. As it was, only President Wilson's determined stand prevented Lloyd George from getting so deeply committed that he could not have backed tracked, as he did after a few days.

The funny part of it was that the things which Lloyd George proposed were precisely the things that President Wilson had originally advocated and in regard to which he had to yield to Lloyd George and Clémenceau. But it is against Mr. Wilson's habit to undo things that have been done. Moreover, he was too sagacious to make eleventh-hour concessions to Germany which would have a demoralizing effect.

It is said that the immediate reason for Lloyd George's action was pressure put on him from England by a faction for which he has a peculiar respect. One of the leaders of this group is Philip Kerr, one of the Premier's Parliamentary Secretaries. Kerr has been at Lloyd George's elbow throughout the whole conference. His hand has been in nearly all writing and he wrote practically the whole of the covering letter that accompanied the treaty. He was probably responsible for a certain tone of liberalism in the last document that has been much criticised.

Those of Kerr's group of associates who have stayed behind in England and not been obliged to shoulder responsibility as he has, have been much more extreme in their liberal ideas than Kerr. The latter is a sensible man and knows that reformers must be fairly practical in order to be successful. He has been willing to sup with the devil occasionally, but always carries his long spoon. For the last three or four months his group and many of their followers in London have been hammering Kerr for his share in the compromising tactics at Paris—for "losing his soul," as some of them call it.

Undoubtedly Kerr afforded these English influences a channel through which they could reach Lloyd George, who was momentarily impressed in a way peculiar to him. This led to Lloyd George's efforts to persuade Clemenceau to moderate some of the treaty terms. The effort collapsed through Lloyd George himself again changing his mind, probably in response to pressure from other political quarters in London, and a standpat policy was adopted and adhered to by the Council of Four.

Kerr made a fine record in the conference and will be heard from in English politics. His groups are composed of able young men of Conservative background and Liberal tendencies. It includes Major Waldorf Astor, also Parliamentary Secretary to Lloyd George, Lord Eustace Percy, Alfred Zimmern and Lionel Curtis. These five run the Round Table, the well-known quarterly, and furnish a sort of leaven to British politics.

Kerr himself is a very interesting figure. While democratic in his political convictions, his antecedents are aristocratic. He is a direct descendant of the Plantaganet kings. His mother was a sister of the Duke of Norfolk and while thus a member of the oldest Catholic family in England, he is himself a Christian Scientist. He is heir to the Marquisate of Lothian. Insofar as he can be classified politically, he is a Wilson Democrat and was probably more influenced in his hours in the Peace Conference by President Wilson than by his own chief. It is doubtful if any other man has so great an intellectual influence with Lloyd George, and Kerr is very useful to the Premier in the latter's effort to run with the hare and ride with the hounds in British politics. There will probably be whirlwind-like developments within the few months on the other side of the Channel, and Kerr may be among the leaders, while his co-worker in Conservative Liberalism, Eustace Percy, will probably head the Foreign Office.

Discussing the prospects of British changes, an American said to me:

"The British system under which the services of such men as Kerr and Percy can be made readily available is better than ours. For example, America is looking about for a successor to Wilson in 1920. Many people who have been in the position to ascertain consider that Ambassador John Davis is excellent Presidential timber, but because his name is not known in every country school house, and there will probably be no means of making it known in the next twelve months, the party leaders will probably consider him unavailable."

On all sides here Davis is mentioned as the Democratic nominee. His recent work in drawing the Constitution under which the Allied Commission is to administer the left bank of the Rhine during the fifteen years of military occupation has drawn renewed attention to Davis. He is a remarkable combination of lawyer and publicist, to which may be added the rare gifts of oratory and personality.

Even among the warm admirers of President Wilson there is little third-term sentiment. Those who believe Wilson's work in Paris was absolutely essential to bringing the powers together in peace, and that the agreement as reached is a great historic achievement—as Americans in Paris generally hold—say the President can best preserve and increase his influence in world affairs by retiring at the end of his term. He would undoubtedly wield great influence at home and abroad as an independent constructive critic and leader.

MAKE DAVIS SENIOR WARDEN

British Grand Lodge Masons Honor American Ambassador.

LONDON, June 27.—John W. Davis, United States Ambassador to Great Britain, was appointed today Senior Warden of the Grand Lodge of England, Freemasons, at a session held in Albert Hall. This honor, unique for a foreigner, was conferred upon Ambassador Davis by the Duke of Connaught, Grand Master of the lodge. Ten thousand persons attended the ceremony.

Twenty American Grand Lodges were represented at the meeting. Among the Americans in attendance were Frederick W. Hamilton of Boston and Leon M. Abbott, representing Massachusetts; W. S. Farmer of Syracuse, R. J. Kenworthy, and Judge Townsend Scudder, New York City, representing the State of New York, and Robert C. Travis and Raymond Daniel, representing Georgia.

TO PICK COMMISSIONS TO CONTINUE WORK

Fifteen or More Will Be Named by Special Board, Selected by the Council.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 27.—The Council of Four appointed this afternoon a general commission to take over the work of creating fifteen or more other commissions which are to handle the conference matters still pending.

PARIS, June 27, (Associated Press.)—The Council of Four this afternoon appointed Lord Milner of Great Britain, Colonel Edward M. House of the United States, M. Simon of France, Signor Crespi of Italy, and Viscount Chinda of Japan members of a Committee of Mandatories for the colonies and territories detached from the enemy powers.

It is now expected that it will be possible to hand over to the Austrians on Monday the terms reserved in the original draft treaty on reparations and the military and naval clauses.

The work of the conference will not be interrupted by the signing of the treaty with Germany, although President Wilson will leave Paris tomorrow and Premier Lloyd George will return to London on Sunday. Foreign Secretary Balfour and Secretary Lansing will take the places of the British Premier and President Wilson in the work yet to be done.

AUSTRIANS STILL PROTEST.

Object to Allowing Czechs Any of Klagenfurt.

PARIS, June 27, (Associated Press.)—The Austrians have protested to the Council of Four against the division of the Klagenfurt district between Austria and Jugoslavia, as recommended by the Special Commission which investigated the matter.

According to the Havas Agency, a dispatch from Vienna that reached that city from St. Germain, states that Dr. Karl Renner, head of the Austrian peace delegation, delivered to the Peace Conference a note, requesting the suppression of Article 49 of the Peace Treaty, which authorizes the States that were formerly part of the Austro-Hungarian Empire to pay their share of the war indemnities from private Austrian properties in those States.

The note demands the formation of a special commission under the supervision of the Entente Powers to settle the question without a decision based on might.

make reservations regarding league provisions, to permit him to discuss it without a show of anger. It is obvious from what is known of the President's attitude (and I think I am justified in saying I know it) that he wants the treaty and covenant passed without reservation. He will not only feel a deep sense of humiliation, but also be depressed by the idea that the Senate's action is a distinct setback in the effort to preserve the world from repetition of the terrible catastrophe which came upon it nearly five years ago through the imperialistic arrogance of those who then ruled Germany.

Any change by the senate in the treaty text (and this includes the League covenant) will be regarded by the President as placing the United States beyond the pale in its dealings with the nations which, as all did, looked to America to lead in the endeavor that dominated the exchanges of the allied peacemakers to make it impossible or as near an impossibility as circumstances would permit, that there should be another world conflict.

The words "beyond the pale" are my own, but I am sure that nothing less emphatic would express the feeling in the President's mind. However, in spite of the indignation the President is understood to show whenever he discusses the efforts in the Senate and elsewhere to prove that the treaty or the League covenant are not in the interest of the United States, he is leaving Europe for America in a happy frame of mind, due to his confidence that the American people, once they fully realize what the treaty and the covenant mean for the good of the world, will give their verdict in favor of ratification of these momentous documents without change.

Called a "Colossal Business."

PARIS, June 27, (Associated Press.)—President Wilson goes back to the United States more than satisfied with the net results of the conference, and, all things considered, it is his opinion that the conference has been a wonderful success. Outside of the results in regard to Germany, the conference is viewed as liberating peoples who never before had a chance of liberty, such as Poland, Jugoslavia, and Czechoslovakia. The conference is also credited with banding together the people of the world to make the peace régime enduring. Other large results, according to the Presidential view, are the giving of a charter to labor, removing restrictions on international intercourse and many other international results, which can be summed up as "a colossal business, such as the world never dreamed of before."

The treaty should be ratified without amendment, according to the Presidential view, for definite reasons, namely, that if any one power seeks to make amendments then the war will not be over until every one of the twenty-one associated nations learns the results of the amendments. This can only be done through processes of negotiation and it is held that it would be a hopeless process of delay in restoring peace.

The question has arisen whether reservations amounted to amendment, and Presidential circles are understood to hold that reservations, such as the proposed Root reservation to Article X. of the covenant, are equivalent to amendment.

Feeling is said to be particularly strong in Presidential quarters against the resolution of Senator Fall of New Mexico to declare a state of peace with Germany, which is characterized in responsible quarters as having the effect of allying the United States with Germany and placing the country in a position of contempt that no nation ever suffered.

The length of the Peace Conference is regarded in Presidential quarters as beneficial on the whole, as the long discussion brought about a fuller understanding among the nations. There is special pride in the fact that the views of the American experts usually prevailed, probably because the United States had no selfish interests involved in the difficult questions settled.

Factors Favoring Turkish Mandate.

Concerning the mandate of the United States in Turkey, the President is known to hold that he had no right to make any promises and that the most he could do was to present the subject to the people at home with the idea that they think favorably of Armenia, owing to the great interest always shown toward that country, and probably also concerning Constantinople.

One of the main reasons, according to Presidential circles, for the American mandate in Constantinople would be that it would keep Constantinople out of European politics and be a worthy international effort, similar to constructing the Panama Canal, by which the Black Sea would be kept open for the world's commerce.

Relative to the President's Fourteen Points, the view is taken that the treaty adheres to the points more closely than had been expected, owing to the difficulties and complications which arose during the course of the negotiations.

Besides signing the treaty and the protocol tomorrow, the President has made it known that he is ready to sign the treaty carrying out the arrangements whereby the United States and Great Britain will come to the assistance of France in case she is menaced by Germany, if this treaty can be prepared for signature before his departure. Otherwise he will authorize Secretary Lansing to sign the treaty after his departure. The triple undertaking has already been communicated in the form of a letter which will be sent to the American Senate, but the treaty is the formal carrying out of the engagement.

The American newspaper correspondents were received by President Wilson at the Hotel de Crillon this afternoon, and the President bade each of them farewell.

The President also went to American Headquarters to meet the other members of the American delegation and General Pershing, the American Commander in Chief, for a final conference and to say farewell.

GENEVA DEGREE TO WILSON.

Prof. Rappard Presents Diploma of the University.

PARIS, June 27, (Associated Press.)—President Wilson has received another University degree—that of Doctor of Laws, Honoris Causa, conferred by the University of Geneva.

Dr. William Rappard, Professor of Political Economy at the University and Secretary General of the League of Red Cross Societies, who arrived from Geneva this morning, presented the diploma.

President Wilson said that he was deeply touched by the homage paid him, and asked that Professor Rappard convey his warmest thanks to the Faculty of the university.

MUST BE VIGILANT, DECLARES POINCARE

Allies' Duty Is to Stand Together and Prevent Peace Being a Fugitive Hope.

NEED TO WATCH THE FOE

Their Violation in Advance of the Treaty Pointed Out—Tribute to America's Work.

PARIS, June 26.—Discussion of the Allies' duty to be vigilant in enforcing the peace terms with Germany and tribute to American participation in the war were features of a speech by President Poincaré at the dinner which he and Madame Poincaré gave to President and Mrs. Wilson and delegates to the Peace Conference at the Presidential Palace tonight. President Poincaré's speech preceded that of President Wilson, who bade a formal farewell to France and the French people and gave as his thought the belief that the work of the Peace Conference had created a friendship that would make for an increasingly more intimate sympathy between the peoples and greater co-operation, economically.

President Poincaré in giving a toast to President Wilson asked that he be allowed, at the moment when his guest was preparing to leave Europe, to render homage once more to the high spirit of justice in which President Wilson had prepared, with other representatives of the allied and associated powers, "this great laborious peace in which the justice saved by our victory is going to definitely inscribe its will in favor of reparation."

After paying tribute to American participation in the war, reviewing the work of the Peace Conference and outlining what still remained to be done, President Poincaré said:

"The treaties, once signed, must be wholly applied, and persistence on our account will be no less indispensable to their execution. The delegates of the victorious countries have not met during these long months and have not convoked to Versailles the delegates of conquered Germany in order to retain in their hands nothing but a simple piece of paper.

"We want, all of us, as you do, Mr. President, that this peace be not vain words; that it be not a fugitive hope, and that it be not a passing flash of joy appearing for one evening in blood-stained Europe. We want, as you do, that the Society of Nations shall become a beneficent reality. We want, as you do, that all the clauses to which our enemies are going to subscribe be loyally observed.

"The disposition shown by violations in advance of a treaty that one is going to undertake to respect, makes it our duty to watch carefully to see that criminal bands do not rekindle sooner or later the conflagration which we have smothered.

"German ships sunk by their crews, French flags burned, and demonstrations before the new Polish frontier are not signs of repentance.

"We must remain together, firmly united, to gather the fruits of the victory that we obtained together."

President Poincaré concluded by raising his glass and proposing, in honor of President and Mrs. Wilson, a toast to the immortality of Franco-American friendships and the indestructible union of the allied and associated powers.

NEW YORKERS AT COURT.

Presented to British Sovereigns by Ambassador Davis at Buckingham.

LONDON, June 27.—King George and Queen Mary gave a garden party this afternoon at Buckingham Palace which took the place of the presentation court function, held before the war. The party was attended by John W. Davis, American Ambassador to Great Britain; Mrs. Davis, members of the Embassy staff and their wives.

Mrs. Davis presented Mrs. Frances M. Wolcott of Buffalo, Mrs. Felix D. Doubleday of New York, Miss Mabel Gerry of New York, Miss Catherine Wendell and Miss Dorothy Hibbard.

Later Senator Knox comes out and says that the Republicans favor the Knox resolution, and that he will take it up as soon as possible. Then Senator Fall introduces his resolution and announces that he has secured a majority of the Foreign Relations Committee in favor of it. Then Mr. Root comes to town with his amendments, and Senator Lodge gives his indorsement to the Root program. Thus there are three divisions among the opponents of the League, not counting those who follow Senator Borah in opposing any league. We could not have better encouragement than this.

"Not only are the League opponents divided in their councils, but there has grown up among them much personal feeling as a result of their differences. Senator Lodge in trying to keep them together favors them all. He is like a hen with a brood of chickens. He cannot keep them together and make them follow him, and he cannot follow each of them."

Mr. Hitchcock and other leading Democratic Senators conferred today with Hamilton Holt, editor of The Independent, who recently returned from Paris. Mr. Holt furnished Senator Hitchcock considerable information concerning the extent to which the suggested amendments of ex-President Taft and Mr. Root had been embodied in the treaty, and also as to the probable effect upon the treaty of Mr. Root's latest proposals. Mr. Holt said that in his opinion the original suggestions of the two had been pretty thoroughly covered. He also gave Mr. Hitchcock data on the time consumed in making other treaties, and declared he regarded the period of negotiations at Versailles remarkably short. This material Senator Hitchcock plans to lay before the Senate.

In the meantime Republican Senators favoring the Root program declared that as a result of new efforts, presumably the result of suggestions by Mr. Hays, they would within seventy-two hours "be ready for an explosion that will blow the League out of the water, or for the more leisurely processes of pulverising and grinding it to powder."

Specifications concerning the "explosion" were withheld. It was learned, however, that efforts are being made to line up Senators on the Root program. Some Republican Senators expressed the greatest confidence that a surprisingly large number of pledges for such a program would be obtained.

The dissatisfaction in the camp of those who demand the extreme penalty of absolute rejection was outspoken and emphatic. Senators of this group said they would continue to attack Mr. Hays because he had declared the league question an American issue.

"It has become an issue between Americans and the great international bankers," said one Senator, "and we strongly suspect that these bankers have been able to impress their views on Mr. Hays."

Senator Borah plans to deliver within a short time a speech regarding the interest of New York financial interests in the league, following it with other addresses on kindred lines.

An interesting feature of the situation today was that both sides asserted with the greatest assurance that Senator Gore, Democrat, of Oklahoma, would be found with them on the final vote.

Senator Hitchcock predicted that Mr. Gore would vote for the treaty unamended. The Oklahoma Senator has been generally regarded as likely to stand with Senator Reed against the treaty.

Opponents of the league at the same time said they had most emphatic assurances from Senator Gore of his entire dissatisfaction with the league and his determination to oppose it.

Senator Gore himself declined to make his position known for publication.

bodies, but we expect the magnanimity of the Dutch to spare us this final and most humiliating disgrace.'"

The advertisement is signed "The German Officers' Alliance." No papers appearing in the American-occupied area have been permitted to print the advertisement, which is addressed "to all Germans."

A telegram suggesting to the ex-Kaiser that he surrender to the Allies was sent to him today by a Coblenz civilian. The message, which was read while passing through the censorship, was:

"Kaiser Wilhelm, Amerongen:

"I venture to submit to your Majesty that the proposed disgrace of the German people might best be met by the voluntary surrender of yourself and the military and political leaders and advisers, thereby showing the point of view that you have done your duty to the Fatherland without any blame being attached to you, and that God alone is witness and judge of your actions."

Ex-Crown Prince Still in Holland

THE HAGUE, June 27.—Frederick William Hohenzollern, the former German Crown Prince, whose escape from Holland to Germany had been reported, was still at his residence on the Island of Wieringen in the Zuider Zee this morning, it was officially announced here this afternoon.

The fact that the former Crown Prince was still at Wieringen was disclosed by an official investigation made by the Dutch Minister of the Interior.

PARIS, June 27.—The report of the escape of the former German Crown Prince from Holland was explained today as follows:

The announcement was made to the American Peace Delegation by the British Intelligence Department. It was then sent to the Council of Four, which at the moment was in session, and was announced to the newspaper correspondents by an American press official.

No statement has been made as to the source from which the British Intelligence Department received the original report.

The Council of Four, the newspapers state, has decided to ask the Dutch Government that the watch over the ex-Kaiser be increased in vigilance.

LONDON, June 27.—"After peace is signed I will return to Germany to live on my estates in Silesia and perform my duties as a landowner," said the former German Crown Prince in an interview last week at Wieringen, according to a Brussels dispatch to the Daily Mirror.

The Prince is also quoted as saying:

"East Prussia and Silesia will never consent to be governed by Poland. There will be another war in ten years."

PRINCE UNPOPULAR AT HOME.

Allies Attached Little Importance to His Reported Escape.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 26.—Interest more than concern or anger expressed the feeling produced in Peace Conference circles by the report of the escape of the former German Crown Prince from Wieringen Island to Germany.

While it was conceded that his presence among his own people might furnish a foundation for plotting embarrassing to the Allies, the first view of the possibilities growing out of his reported escape was that he was not in a position to command much influence or obtain any considerable following.

The report of the Prince's escape came to the council of the powers from British official sources. With it was coupled the assurance that the information was believed by the British Government to be absolutely reliable.

Advices that have come to the Allies since the signing of the armistice have indicated that the Prince was held in contempt by the German people generally. Stories of his excesses, his reputed lack of ability, and the belief that he was a wastrel and a dilettante all seem to have had their effect upon the minds of Germans.

There has been a disposition in Germany to hold him accountable in part, at least, for mistakes which gave the Kaiser's armies fatal setbacks. His obsession that he must eat that dinner in Paris as soon as possible is believed to have led to errors for which he was responsible, through the effort to reach the French capital when strategic considerations dictated another program of operations.

One of Them to be Removed from Public Schools of Nuremberg.

BERLIN, June 26, (Associated Press.)—After a discussion at Nuremberg about the removal of the pictures of the former Emperor and former Crown Prince from the schools, it has been decided that the pictures can remain, with the exception of one of the Prince, which is "too immoral" for children to see, according to the Neue Berliner Zeitung.

gotiations with the commander of the Government troops at Wandsaek. At the same time Noske was wired to and told that if the Government troops entered the city there would be heavy fighting, and that the only way to maintain peace was to leave matters in Hamburg alone, but Noske has other ideas, and it now appears that the city, which aped Budapest, will share the fate of Munich, and that fate will come upon it very rapidly.

Soviet Leaders Arrested, but Freed.

BERLIN, June 27, (Associated Press.)—The Independent Socialist and Communist members of the Executive Council of the Greater Berlin Soviet were arrested Thursday night by order of Minister of Defense Noske. They are charged with having been in collusion with the leaders of the uprising in Hamburg.

The arrests followed the interception of a telephone message late Wednesday night between Hamburg and Berlin in which the insurrectionists at Hamburg informed the Berlin radicals that the time for another revolution was at hand and urged them to take active steps immediately. The local leaders are said to have advised the Hamburg leaders to arm their partisans for the purpose of opposing the Government troops being mobilized against Hamburg.

The Independent Socialists and Communists in the Soviet are facing charges based on treason. Among those said to be implicated are Richard Müller, the Chairman of the committee, and Herr Daumig. Müller is known by the sobriquet of "Over My Dead Body."

The casualties in the Hamburg rioting are estimated to have been 20 killed and from 150 to 200 wounded.

The greatest anxiety is felt here for the food ships. The Communists, it is reported, announced that they would seize and destroy the ships if the food situation in Hamburg did not improve at once.

The authorities said they expected that the Spartacide element would attempt an uprising here today.

Soviet Prisoners Released.

LONDON, June 27.—Reuter's Berlin correspondent says that the Independent Socialist and Communist leaders of the Greater Berlin Soviet Executive Council who were arrested Thursday night by order of Gustav Noske have been released.

It was impossible to prove that they were concerned in the telephone conversation between Hamburg and Berlin on Wednesday night with regard to the beginning of a new revolution.

Plundering commenced Thursday evening in the western suburbs of Berlin, beginning at Schöneberg and extending quickly, the correspondent adds. There was also looting at Friedenau, which continued until early this morning. Troops have been sent to aid the resident guard to restore order.

Riots Laid to Impure Food.

HAMBURG, June 26.—The Commission of Twelve which has been on control of the city issued a statement regarding disorders here, which reads:

"Again blood has flowed in Hamburg. Out of spontaneous disgust at shameful adulteration of foodstuffs there has grown a stormy movement of protests which the Hamburg Government thought to choke in blood. It was volunteers from Ahrenfeld, a suburb of Hamburg, who, in conjunction with Hamburg police, brought about the bath of blood.

"Throughout Germany in the last few days there have been spontaneous tumults that have not been political in character, but have been born of desperation on the part of starving people forced to pay money for the spoiled, uneatable, horrible foodstuffs sold in order to poison those who retained their health to a certain extent during the fearful world's murder.

"The occurrences at Hamburg, Lübeck, and other cities were only possible because private capitalistic profiteers have been able to exercise control over the working people. Meantime there has been setting in a reaction that will operate spontaneously for the benefit of workingmen. We urge you to remain cool and to undertake nothing that might cause difficulty among Hamburg industries, and thus immediately establish some basis for action.

"Out of Hamburg with the troops! Down with Senators who shoot workingmen!"

Americans Continue Relief Work.

PARIS, June 26, (Associated Press.)—The American Relief Association here has received a dispatch from Colonel Ryan, sent from Hamburg on Wednesday. It says:

"There was considerable street fighting last night and this morning between Government troops and civilians. Machine guns were used on both sides and a number of persons were killed and wounded.

"Rumors indicate that the Government troops are temporarily losing ground. Additional troops are reported coming from outside the city.

"The American destroyers Bernadou and Upshur are here, and the foodship Elliot is also in Hamburg harbor. The Roma, another foodship, is coming up the river."

The dispatch says that the American relief workers are not disturbed and will continue work.

REDS FEEL "HOUR HAS COME."

German Situation Becoming More Critical, Swiss Hear.

BERNE, June 26.—The general situation in Germany is becoming steadily more serious, according to the latest dispatches.

The railroad strike, it is reported, is about to extend throughout the country. Spartacides do not conceal their belief that their hour has come, in view of the transportation strike and the poor food supply. Some reports state that famine appears imminent.

On the other hand, it is said, a counter-revolution seems to be brewing in the East, and the news from that region is increasingly alarming.

WILSON'S TRIBUTE TO KING

He Told Him His People Loved Him Because He Was "a Real Democrat."

By T. WALTER WILLIAMS.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company. Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BRUSSELS, June 24.—When the Belgian newspapers received "flashes" from Paris about 8 o'clock headed "Peace! Peace! Peace!" the editors only believed that the long-delayed treaty had been signed and issued bulletins to that effect. The burgomasters in big cities like Brussels, Antwerp, Ghent and Cambrai had posters printed announcing the final victory of the Allies, and these were pasted on walls in many public places. Hundreds of rounds were fired by anti-aircraft and other available guns, and the bells in the cathedrals and churches were rung continuously. By 10 P. M. Monday the news had reached the cabarets and cafés and the playing of pianos and dancing by allied soldiers and sailors continued throughout the night.

In Antwerp an American soldier attached to a transport on which were 70 officers and 2,000 men became so excited over the news that the war was really ended that he got his revolver and wounded a civilian and a woman and a soldier who tried to disarm him, and then killed himself.

On Tuesday the local newspapers printed the news from Paris that the Germans had promised to sign the treaty and the Belgian officials decided to go on with the festivities. The inhabitants were requested to hang out all the Belgian and allied flags they had in their possession, so there was a good display of the Stars and Stripes, especially in this city and Antwerp, where all automobiles carried small American flags in token of appreciation of what the United States had done in winning the war, and also of the news that the first loan had been made to Belgium, and that two more loans were being arranged.

Belgians Love for the King.

King Albert is most popular with his people and moves about freely among them without any armed guard or secret service men. The leaders of the Socialist Party openly declare that they are against all Kings, but that they are pro Albert and attend functions at the palace, which they never entered before the war. The Republican members of the Chamber of Representatives do likewise.

I saw the King and Queen land at La Panne on June 17, on the sandy beach in front of the Hotel Terwinck, when they came to meet President Wilson, who was expected to arrive the following morning. The affection of the Belgians for their King is shown by the fact that they do not like him to take the risk of flying to various parts of the kingdom instead of traveling by automobile. The war is over, the people say, and there is no longer any necessity for him to fly over the country.

When the King walked along the beach after dinner in the hotel he was followed by an escort of fishermen and their families. Every few minutes some sunburned boy with big wooden shoes would doff his cap in front of the King and shout "Vive le Roi!" which would be taken up lustily by the boys and girls around. Then King Albert would stop and talk with them for a few moments, and Queen Elizabeth would shake hands with the girls. The King wore a military uniform and towered like a giant above his consort, who was dressed in white.

During his drive with President Wilson he gave his guest the seat of honor, but all the people in the streets shouted, "Vive la Roi!" and then "Vive le President Wilson!"

The President noticed this, and in his speech at the palace Thursday night, when the King gave a banquet in his honor, he said:

"One of the things which gratified me very much during my tour through the streets today was that the crowds gave their first cheer to their King, and only afterward to the foreign guest, which shows that your power is solidly established in the consent of the governed. This is due to the fact"—turning toward King Albert—"that you are a real democrat;" and the King smiled at the compliment.

Max's Tribute to America.

I had an interview today with Adolphe Max, the able and fearless Burgomaster of Brussels, who suffered three years' imprisonment in Germany because he stood up against the invaders for the rights of the Belgian people. He is a middle-aged man, below the average in height, slimly built, with brown hair and a mustache and beard which show tinges of gray, due to the strain he has endured since August, 1914. He has an attractive personality, and speaks English fairly well, although he remarked that he spoke it far more fluently before the war.

The Burgomaster paid high tribute to America's work for Belgium, and remarked upon the great impression the President had made upon the people during his visit last week.

"President Wilson," he said, "has a wonderful personality, and made a profound impression upon the people of Belgium who saw him. America won the war for the Allies and saved the Belgian nation from starving. The names of Herbert Hoover and Brand Whitlock will never be forgotten, nor the gratitude that we have for America. When America declared war against Germany the Germans did not take it seriously, and did not believe that an army could come across the Atlantic. When the Germans discovered that America had sent 300,000 soldiers over in one month and landed them in France, they gave up all hope of winning the war, and their armies became demoralized. From the High Command down to the ordinary soldier, the Germans knew that the side that could endure the longest would win. With America's millions of trained soldiers, backed by unlimited wealth, on the side of the Entente, victory was certain."

Reconstruction Moves Slowly.

"How is this work of reconstruction going on?" I asked.

"It is moving slowly," he replied, "because factories have been demolished and dismantled. The machinery that was taken away by the Boche is being brought back very slowly because it is difficult to identify it. The marks were all obliterated by the Germans and the parts were painted a different color. The spirit of the Belgian workmen is good, and they are patriotic; but for four years and a half they have been practically idle. Before the war they were accustomed to work hard and were very efficient craftsmen. Now they are returning to work again, but it will take them some time to get back to their old thrifty, industrious habits.

"In my opinion, after careful consideration, it will take at least five years before Belgium regains her normal conditions in industry and commerce; but it will be many years after that before we reach the state of affluence and commercial prosperity the country was in before 1914. Other Entente countries will not want to give Belgium too much raw material to enable her to compete in their own markets, as they have also to regain their commerce.

"We do not want any one to reconstruct our ruined cities and towns, but we do need financial aid and friendship now. We have some great friends, and I am convinced that Belgium will retrieve herself as she has always done in the great crises of her history. She has been the battle ground of Europe for centuries, and this has served to make her people able to endure hardships with stoicism.

"The people of Brussels are not very emotional, but they showed their gratitude to America by the hearty reception given to President Wilson in the streets. When he went to the Grand' Place it was the leisure hour of the working classes, and it was from them that the President received his welcome.

"The war has brought the Belgian nation together in one common cause to fight for the country. Those who had food shared it with many who were hungry, and the rich gave their aid to the poor. There were some who made a profit out of the war, but they are not here now.

"The political situation in Europe is very delicate just now, with the determined efforts to spread Bolshevism, which would be very dangerous to the whole world if they succeeded. We have had some strikes in Belgium, but I do not think there is any chance of a revolution taking place. The Belgian workman will listen to reason and has more common sense, I think, than his confrères in France or England."

Must Trade with Germany.

"Do you think Belgium will have to resume trading with Germany?" I asked.

"I am afraid we shall be compelled to do so," replied M. Max, "because the people will require certain goods to carry on their business and have no factories ready to make them, so they will have to get goods from Germany. Then, again, there are seven billions of paper marks in the hands of the Government that are worth only about two-thirds of their face value, and unless some other provision is made it will have to be spent with Germany.

"This matter and the slowness of reparation by Germany for damage done in Belgium have caused some dissatisfaction against the delegates to the Peace Conference in Paris, but it has not stopped people from going on with their work of reconstruction."

When I asked the Burgomaster about his own sufferings in Germany during his long captivity he replied that they (the Germans) had treated him very harshly, and then he waved his hands and said: "That is all past now, and we must think of the future."

Other Belgian officials with whom I conversed on the subject of reconstruction were more optimistic than the Burgomaster. They said Belgium would regain her former position in the commercial world and in wealth in five years, and in ten years from now she would be richer than ever before.

Wants $300,000,000 Loan.

Emile Francqui, Director of the Société Générale Beige, which has one of the finest bank buildings in the world, in an interview which I had with him today, said:

"Belgium does not need foreign money for reconstruction purposes. We can do all that with Belgian capital. What we require immediately is exchange money to purchase raw materials—leather, rubber, wool, cotton, steel, &c.—from America cheaply. At the present rate of exchange every dollar costs us about 6 francs 70 centimes in Belgian money, which is a franc and a half above the pre-war rate. We want America to lend Belgium $300,000,000 for fifteen years. Then the work of the reconstruction of cities and factories will go ahead at full pressure, and in three years I predict that Belgium will have recovered her export trade to what it was before the war. Already we have exported 40,000,000 pounds of coal in the last month from Charleroi and Mons to Italy, Spain, and France, and 1,000,000 pounds of glassware. Belgium is a small country, but her people are full of energy and have the spirit of determination and patriotism which has carried them successfully through the war.

"The ordinary observer going through Belgium now cannot help being impressed with the activity of people everywhere, which is in such strong contrast with the 'delay, linger, and wait' attitude of workingmen in France and England. Men are busy brushing and painting stores and houses and sweeping up the debris left by the Germans. Houses are being rebuilt rapidly in Louvain, Antwerp, Malines, Dinant, Courtrai, Namur, and Liege.

President Wilson was impressed by this energy on the part of the Belgians, and it enabled him to recover from the sad feelings caused by the view of Nieuport, Ypres, and the other ruined cities which he saw when he arrived in Belgium. American business men who have spent some time in London, Paris, and Brussels, studying conditions and reconstruction work, are unanimous in their opinion that Belgium will be the first of the Entente nations in Europe to recover her pre-war trade and prosperity. When they get back to their normal conditions Belgian workmen are second to none in efficiency, industry, and thrift.

500,000 Belgians Now Idle.

Colonel Percy G. W. Mitchell, General Manager of the Red Star Line, who was in Belgium soon after the armistice was signed, said that when he came the people of Brussels and Antwerp were in a dazed condition, as if they were just emerging from a terrible nightmare. Life in the cities was dead, and many of the largest stores and restaurants were closed.

The Belgians did not revive, Colonel Mitchell said, until March of this year, when refugees began arriving in thousands from England, carrying large sums of money which they had earned in munition factories during the war. They began to put this money into circulation, and things began to brighten up at once and have gone on improving ever since.

At the beginning of May there were 800,000 workmen idle, and now there are barely half a million idle, and the number is being reduced daily by the opening up of all kinds of industries which need reconstruction. In addition, thousands of men are being employed by the Government in rebuilding bridges and railroad tracks destroyed by the Germans in their retreat from Belgium.

American officers in Brussels tell me they like this city much better than Paris because it is brighter and gayer; and so do the doughboys, since, in addition to the advantages named, everything here is much cheaper. The cost of living is at least 50 per cent. lower than in Paris, and 25 per cent. lower than in London.

Restaurants and cafés are all in full swing. There are half a dozen good cabarets going now, and music in most of the cafés like the Metropole, where citizens and their families can sit outside in warm weather and drink their cool glasses of bock beer, which costs about 10 cents a large glass. The opera, theatres, vaudeville, and motion picture houses all are doing good business. People throng the boulevards and tree-shaded avenues in the evenings, and in the famous Bois de la Cambre automobiles whiz by and bicycles come from every direction, now that tires are once more obtainable.

Looking at them in the streets, it is difficult for the foreigner to realize that these are the same Belgians who were under the heel of the conqueror for four and a half years. That many of them suffered from lack of proper food is shown by the fact that doctors in Brussels and other cities daily have to treat cases of apoplexy brought on by over-indulgence in good food after the system had suffered from malnutrition for so long a period.

FASHIONABLE WEDDING HELD UP IN LONDON

Archbishop Forgets to Notify Registrar—Happier Couple Fly Away in Airplane.

LONDON, June 27.—There was a dramatic disappointment today for one of the season's prettiest brides, Dorothy Walpole, daughter of the late Colonel Horace Walpole, who was to have been married to Major Austin Scott Murray.

St. James Church, Spanish Place, was filled with distinguished persons, including the Duchess of Norfolk, the Earl of Eltham, Lady Beaumont, and Lady Mowbray and Stourton. The bride arrived, wearing an exquisite gown of silver tissue, accompanied by her bridesmaids, wearing mauve chiffon. The bridegroom was there, and priests were ready to officiate, but there was no wedding. At the last moment it was discovered that owing to an oversight by the Roman Catholic Archbishop notification of the marriage had not been sent to the Registrar, so the wedding could not take place.

Mr. Hamilton and Miss Standen, after their marriage today at Chorleywood, started on their honeymoon in an airplane, traveling to Fowey, a distance of 200 miles. Their luggage was stowed in the back of the machine, and the bride carried a book to read on the journey. Friends tied slippers and a horseshoe to the undercarriage of the airplane.

BERLIN, June 27, (Associated Press.) General Hoffmann has been dismissed from his command in the eastern district, having declared that he would defend that district to the last man in defiance of the Government's orders and never recognize the Peace Treaty.

BERLIN, June 26, (via Copenhagen.)—General Wilhelm Hoffmann, who must not be confounded with General Otto von Hoffmann, commander of the voluntary division in Berlin, declared that he would not recognize the Versailles treaty but would defend every foot of German ground within the district which he commanded. Hoffmann, who was one of the leading aids of Hindenburg, is the General who became tired of von Kühlmann's diplomatic reserve during the Brest-Litovsk negotiations and told Trotzky that the Central Powers would find other means than diplomacy to obtain the treaty and, suiting the action to his words, struck the table fiercely with his fist.

Only one Berlin paper, the Deutsche Tageszeitung, has words of approval for Hoffmann's insubordination. It says:

"It is a great relief at last to find one General determined to express such views and ready to act upon them."

The Government, however, is determined to stand no nonsense. At Noske's office the officials were reserved. Noske had already made inquiries whether the statement was true. At the Chancellor's office it was believed Hoffmann spoke for himself only and a few other officers, and it was thought that he would soon find himself deserted by the rank and file.

Noske took a more serious view, fearing that Hoffmann's example might affect not only his men and officers, but influence other military leaders also.

General Wilhelm Hoffmann, it is said, believes himself that he is on the blacklist and is to be extradited, hence his objection to the so-called dishonoring clauses of the treaty.

THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent hears that several persons who believed that they were blacklisted by the Entente have already disappeared, among them Ludendorff and Tirpitz. At Bethmann Hollweg's Summer seat they are packing up.

DE LOMBOS WINS CASE.

British Citizenship of Painter, Interned in War, Upheld.

LONDON, June 27.—The British naturalization of Philip Alexius Laszlo de Lombos, a Hungarian portrait painter, was sustained today after a long inquiry by the Committee on Revocation of Naturalization Certificates. Justice Salter, who delivered the decision, said that although the painter had been guilty of breaches of law he had not been actuated by unworthy motives and neither had he attempted to persuade Winthrop Owen of New York to forward letters to Hungary for him. The Justice added that the painter had not shown himself by any act or by speech to be disaffected or disloyal.

De Lombos for many years prior to the outbreak of the war was a familiar figure in London society. It was by order of the Home Secretary of Great Britain that he was interned. Sir George Cave, Home Secretary, said there were grave reasons to suspect De Lombos of being engaged in activities which might prove dangerous to the public interest.

De Lombos married a Miss Guinness of Dublin in 1900. He has painted portraits of Theodore Roosevelt, the ex-Kaiser, King Edward VII., and Pope Leo. For the Pope's portrait he received the gold medal at the Paris Salon in 1900.

OPPOSE MORGENTHAU ON POLISH COMMISSION

Zionists, It Is Said, Object to His Serving—Col Green and Homer Johnson Also on the Board.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company. Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 27.—Objection has been made by some American members of the Jewish Committee at the Peace Conference to the selection by President Wilson of Henry Morgenthau as one of the three members of the American Commission to Poland to investigate conditions. The other two members are Colonel Warwick Greene, who has been on the Lithuanian Relief Commission, and Homer Johnson, a lawyer of Cleveland, Ohio, over here as a member of the Liquidation Board.

Colonel Greene may not act.

It was reported that the objection to Morgenthau came from the Zionists, and was based on the fact that Morgenthau was not a Zionist. That is, not so according to the objectors themselves. Louis Marshall and Cyraus Adler, who are not actively in the Zionist movement, think it is a mistake to have any Jew on the Polish Commission, for fear his report on the pogroms would be considered as prejudiced, and therefore less effective. There would be objection for a similar reason, they say, to having a Pole on the Commission.

PRESIDENT CALLS GIBSON TO CONFER ON POGROMS

Advises Senate He May Send Another Commission to Poland to Investigate.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—President Wilson advised the Senate today through the State Department that he was considering sending another commission to Poland to investigate reports of Jewish massacres. He said a decision would be reached after he had conferred at Paris with Hugh Gibson, American Minister to Poland.

The President's plans were outlined in a letter from Acting Secretary Polk in response to a Senate resolution of May 26 requesting information regarding reports of pogroms. It was the first announcement here that Mr. Gibson had been summoned to Paris to discuss the matter with the President.

In recent reports to the State Department which were transmitted to a House committee by Assistant Secretary Phillips of the State Department Mr. Gibson said reports of mistreatment of Jews in Poland were grossly exaggerated.

Mr. Polk's letter disclosed that the President also had directed the American Minister to Rumania to investigate reports of atrocities in Rumania.

Poland Invites American Experts to Report on Requirements.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company. Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 26.—Despite frontier troubles with her neighbors, Poland is already giving attention to better things and future development, even providing modern provisions for public health. Edward H. Bouton, city builder and planner of Baltimore, and Major Ezra B. Whittan, engineer, of the same city, left Paris tonight for Poland, where, at the request of Premier Paderewski, the Central Government and various municipalities they are going to see what the cities need to make them healthful places.

For example, they are to inspect Lodz, which has half a million inhabitants but no sewer system whatever and practically no water supply. Lublin, another city of a hundred thousand people, which has asked for inspection by Messrs. Bouton and Whittan, needs water, a sewer, electricity, and a street car line.

There two towns, with their needs, are samples of the whole country, which wants to modernize itself and become sanitary at the outset of its renaissance as a sovereign State. Millions of capital and much labor are needed.

Poland herself will furnish all the labor, and sees in the work on public improvements a solution of the unemployment problem. For financing prospects there is a tentative suggestion that bonds be issued by the nation and cities acting jointly, backed by the power, water, and sewer plants to be constructed.

BRITISH POWERLESS ON SCUTTLED SHIPS

Say They Lacked Authority, as Fleet Was Interned and Not Surrendered.

ADHERED TO ARMISTICE

Contend That Crews, Knowing Machinery, Could Have Sunk Ships Despite All Precautions.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—No effective measures could have been taken by the British Admiralty to prevent the scuttling of the German fleet at Scapa Flow without violating the terms of the armistice, said a statement issued tonight by the British Embassy. The fact that the ships were merely interned and not surrendered said the statement, prevented the placing of armed guards on board. Even had this been done, it was said, it would not have been a guarantee against the sinking of the ships because the German crews, with their expert knowledge of the complex valve machinery, would have found it a comparatively easy matter to open the valves without detection.

It was originally recommended to the Allied Naval Council by the naval adviser of the British Admiralty, the statement said, that the armistice terms provided for surrender instead of internment of the German ships, but the recommendation, it was said, was overruled by the council.

"It should be clearly understood," the Embassy statement said, "that the decision for the German ships to be interned and not surrendered was made by the heads of the allied Governments.

"It was originally intended that the ships should be interned in neutral harbors, in which case it is clear that it would not have been possible for the Allies to have placed armed guards on board. In view of the difficulties concerning internment in neutral ports, the Allied Naval Council agreed that they should be interned at Scapa Flow, and that the Commander in Chief of the Grand Fleet should carry out the necessary measures.

"These necessary measures were therefore intended to be of the nature as far as possible similar to those that would have been put in force in a neutral port, and for this reason the placing of an armed guard on board was not considered admissible.

Could Have Eluded Guards.

"Even if an armed guard had been put on board the ship, the presence of the German care and maintenance parties would alone have rendered it impossible to guarantee that the ships would not be sunk. Their size and the complexity of their machinery would make it a comparatively easy matter for a few men with the detailed knowledge which they possess to open the necessary valves or to take other adequate steps without the knowledge of their guards.

"In accordance with their status of internment, inter-communication between the German ships was authorized to the extent that the German Admiral was permitted to visit the ships, and correspondence with the sick, doctors and chaplains were distributed by the British boats. Coal, oil and water were supplied by British sources, but provisions and other supplies came from Germany. Mails, both outgoing and ingoing, were censored.

"The conditions of internment placed the internment of the ships under the surveillance of the Allies so that if hostilities were renewed, the latter would be in a position to seize the ships. They still, however, remained German property with German personnel in charge of their upkeep, and accordingly facilities of inter-communication could not be denied to the German Admiral who was in charge of the discipline.

"If a British guard had been put on these ships it would have been an unquestionable breach of the terms of the armistice.

"The care and maintenance parties on board had been reduced, from 1,700 to 1,800 men being sent back to Germany owing to sickness or breaches of discipline. No men were sent from Germany to take their places.

"Admiral von Reuter stated verbally that on his own responsibility he had given orders for the ships to be sunk, being under the impression that the armistice had ceased on Saturday.

"Great Britain acted in this matter as she has acted on every other matter in this war. She has adhered to the terms of the armistice, and has obeyed the laws of war and the laws of humanity."

RADICALS ACTIVE IN JAPAN.

Authorities Move to Prevent Spread of "Dangerous Thought."

TOKIO, May 23, (Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—Japanese authorities are somewhat disturbed over what looks like an organized effort to start a Socialist movement of an extreme nature in this country. Several secret meetings have been held at which speakers have proclaimed radical doctrines, clothing their remarks in menacing though veiled language. A number of agitators are reported to have circulated in the crowds at the industrial city of Osaka during a recent celebration of the attainment of majority of the Crown Prince.

The police and gendarmerie are actively engaged in the search for "dangerous thought" propagandists. Recently postcards propagating radical socialistic principles have been sent out from Tokio to petty officers and men of all army divisions throughout the empire.

Urgent instructions were sent to all gendarmerie stations and sub-stations to start searches for the offenders and take strict measures for the prevention of the spread of "dangerous thought" among the army. Domiciliary searches were carried out in all directions, but very few copies of the propaganda postcards were seized, despite the strenuous efforts of the authorities.

The postcards were printed in old style types and all bear the postmarks of Yotsuya and Koyama post offices in Tokio. No trace of the authors has so far been found.

Mr. Homma, Chief Secretary of the Metropolitan Police Board, in a statement declared that so far there is no indication of Bolshevism or Nihilism having been introduced in Japan or as having affected the thought of the Japanese people.

LONDON, June 27.—At Christie's sale of the collection of pictures of the late Sir George A. Drummond of Montreal Corot's "L'Ile Heureuse" brought 6,800 guineas, Corot's "Evening," 4,800 guineas; Corot's "Ville d'Avray—the Boatman," 1,500 guineas; Daubigny's "Le Retour du Troupeau," 7,800 guineas; Daubigny's "On the Oise," 3,600 guineas; Degas's "Artist in His Studio," 1,100 guineas; J. Israels's "Age and Infancy," 4,800 guineas; Matthew Maris's "Girl with Goat and Kid," 3,600 guineas; Mauve's "Ploughing," 2,500 guineas. The total of the day's sale was $340,000.

"Le Retour du Troupeau" and "L'Ile Heureuse" were bought on behalf of Lady Drummond and Sir George Drummond by their son, Hartley Drummond, respectively, both for presentation to the Montreal Art Gallery.

MOONEY CASE IN THE HOUSE

Inquiry Ordered Into Alleged Labor Department Work for the Convict.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Secretary Wilson is asked in a resolution adopted today by the House to report the activities of officials and employes of the Department of Labor in connection with the case of Thomas J. Mooney, convicted in California of complicity in the Preparedness Day bomb explosions.

Committee amendments to the resolution under which the Secretary might exercise discretion in answering the questions were voted down by the House, and the measure, as passed, virtually directs his compliance. Mr. Wilson is said by his friends not to be opposed to sending the information to the House.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court decided yesterday that Mr. and Mrs. John Feinbloom must return James Bobby Ash, foundling, whom they sought to adopt, to the New York Nursery and Child's Hospital, pending the determination of the appeal by the Feinblooms from an order of Supreme Court Justice Tierney, directing that the foundling be returned to the custody of the institution because the authorities decided after an investigation not to consent to the adoption of the child by the Feinblooms.

the application for such action will be made to the courts within a few days.

Practically all the evidence produced yesterday before the Legislative Committee had to do with the Rand School. A document seized at the school was produced in which was outlined a complete plan of propaganda among the colored people, especially in the South. This was regarded as perhaps the most important piece of documentary evidence so far displayed.

Letters were also introduced to show that closest relation existed between the Rand School and the Soviet Russia Bureau, which already has been shown by evidence as an agency intent upon fostering and focusing radical and revolutionary sentiment.

Another feature was testimony showing that the Rand School of Social Science through its publishing department was disseminating the reddest kind of red propaganda, advocating the overthrown of the Government by force and violence if necessary.

A form of letter in response to questions regarding the school's widely advertised correspondence courses urged those seeking instruction to prepare for the revolution, and asked them if they were ready to "meet the militia."

Stubs in the check book taken from the safe of the school showed that some of its lecturers, far from working for the love of the "cause," had been in receipt of very ample remuneration. Professor Scott Nearing, for instance, had received for his services during a period of thirty days beginning in April and ending last month, $610 from the school funds. The school took a "commission" for its work in arranging lectures.

The plan for radical propaganda among the negroes, according to Archibald E. Stevenson, associate counsel of the committee, was taken from the desk of David P. Berenberg, director of the correspondence courses. Before this document was put in evidence, Mr. Stevenson had offered a letter from one Francis J. Peregrine, who described himself as a negro "with some education" and in quest of more, also to Director Berenberg, and the latter's answer in which he said that some of the negro workers had informed leaders at the Rand School that missionary work among their race was urgent lest the negroes "be formed by the capitalists into a mercenary army" for the suppression of the social revolution.

The startling plan for the organization of the negroes into radical units bore the signature of W. A. Domingo, a negro lecturer and writer, whose connection with the Rand School had been established by testimony already in the record. Domingo discussed the subject at great length. His discourse went into great detail.

It was read to the committee by Deputy Attorney General Samuel A. Berger. There was no testimony to show whether the leaders in charge of the Rand School propaganda work had taken definite action to carry the plan into effect, but before the Domingo plan was introduced there had been testimony to show that they were considering plans for more intensive and extensive work among the colored workers, and that in the Twenty-first Assembly District in Manhattan, for instance, which takes in a large colored section, the Socialist organization was controlled and maintained almost exclusively by colored Socialists.

"The negro has race consciousness, but no class consciousness," wrote Domingo. "We must transmute that race consciousness into class consciousness."

The detailed program for the work as outlined in the plan follows:

1. Condemn all acts of injustice to the negro.
2. Socialists must stress lynchings in the South and condemn them.
3. Give negroes more prominence in the discussion; they like that.
4. Do everything to attract negroes to our meetings. Report and denounce all cases of racial discrimination that come to our knowledge, especially by the labor unions.
5. Launch a special propaganda among negroes to show to them the benefit they will derive from the economic changes we propose.
6. Subsidize radical negro newspapers.
7. Send radical white speakers to spread radical propaganda among the negroes, especially in the South, where the black hosts are most likely to be organized into a "mercenary army." Show them the "sham of our democracy" by emphasizing the discrimination practiced in elections. Show them that Christ, William Lloyd Garrison, the Abolitionist, and Abraham Lincoln were denounced as radicals in their day, while today they are regarded as great benefactors of the race.
8. Induce intelligent negroes to attend radical meetings of whites and impress upon them that the Socialists are their friends.
9. Avoid stressing problems of race and emphasize the advantages to all of the co-operative commonwealth.

Mr. Domingo urged that it might be well "to subsidize a few negro orators." He said that the church was the agency in the South that exerted the greatest influence on the negro and stressed the difficulty of whites—especially Socialists—in reaching the negroes through that forum and recommended that no effort be spared to win over some negro preachers. He characterized the negro preacher as owned body and soul by the capitalist class and as the "most parasitical of celestial navigators."

Members of the committee who listened to the reading expressed amazement. Senator Lusk said that he regarded this evidence of a detailed plan for the spreading of Bolshevist propaganda among negros in the South as the greatest menace the evidence before the committee so far has disclosed.

Just as the hearing was drawing to a close Mr. Stevenson put in evidence a stub from the check book taken from the safe of the Rand School.

"I simply wish to call the attention of the committee to check stub No. 92," said Mr. Stevenson. "It is dated Aug. 13, 1917, payable to the order of A. A. Heller, transfer of deposit, $5,000. I do not know exactly what it means, but it is rather interesting, because Mr. Heller is chief of the Commercial Bureau of the Soviet Russia Mission to the United States."

Clarence L. Converse, one of the special agents of the committee who conducted the raid on the Rand School, occupied the witness chair practically all day. Mr. Converse described the premises and the activities, including the courses, of the Rand School to the committee. He said that the teaching staff included Alderman Algernon Lee, director; Scott Nearing, A. L. Trachtenberg, Harry Dana, David P. Berenberg, Herman Epstein, Benjamin Glassberg, Ludwig Lore, editor of the Volkszeitung; Louis P. Lochner of the "Ford Peace Mission," and the Rev. Norman Thomas.

The first exhibit from the Rand School offered in evidence by Mr. Stevenson was a copy of The Communist, the official organ of the Left Wing Socialists, of which John Reed is the editor. Mr. Converse identified it as having been seized in the raid, and read in evidence an article beginning with the question: "Do we hold that the revolution must come by violence?" and continuing:

"To answer the question by yes or no would be asinine. It may, again it may not. The Left Wing, all the protest of the Right Wing to the contrary notwithstanding, repudiate socialism by assassination. The Left Wing hopes that the proletariat will conquer its enemy, the capitalist class, with as little bloodshed as possible."

"Who is the publisher of that?" asked Chairman Lusk of the committee.

"John Reed is the editor, Eadmonn McAlpin, associate editor, and Benjamin Gitlow, business manager," said Mr. Stevenson. "On the editorial board appear N. I. Hourwich, B. D. Wolfe, M. Zucker, and J. Wilenkin. It might be proper to call attention to the fact that Mr. Zucker has been convicted under the Espionage act and sentenced to fifteen years in prison for utterances made in this city."

"This article," Chairman Lusk said, "indicates that they are not going to use any more violence or commit any more bloodshed than is necessary to bring about this forcible violent revolution."

"That appears to be correct," said Mr. Stevenson.

"I would suggest," said Senator Lusk, "that a copy of this paper be turned over to the District Attorney's office, together with the facts in reference to its circulation and publication. This paper, in my opinion, is a clear violation of the penal law of this State."

Commenting on a letter that was read, Chairman Lusk said: "It is clear that for over two years the Rand School has been advocating armed preparedness to take over the Government. And then they complain of an investigation of their activities."

A letter to M. E. Rabb, Rural Route 7, Xenia, Ohio, from the Rand School which was read into the record called attention to an attachment against the Molders' Union by the employers in Connecticut as a result of damages caused by a strike.

"What are you going to do when the State robs you and your union and so makes you helpless to strike?" the letter stated. "There is only one thing to do: Take over the State. Are the members of your local prepared to take over and conduct wisely and well the affairs of your town and county? Are you ready to meet the militia when the powers of the State and courts are against you?"

The last question was asked in pretty nearly every answer from the Rand School to requests for literature or inquiries regarding its correspondence courses. Almost a score of such communications were put into the record.

"Have you any way of identifying the writer of this?" asked Senator Lusk of the associate counsel.

"I think we might call Mr. Berenberg and ask him if he wrote it," said Mr. Stevenson. "These replies are carbon copies on which the signature does not appear."

The requests for literature or the quest for instruction in some of the courses taught by correspondence came from all parts of the country. The Rand School charged a small fee to each student. Testimony introduced later at the hearing showed that agents who were sent to drum up trade in California were paid 25 per cent., and in one instance 50 per cent., commission on the money they brought into the school.

In striking contrast to the letters to revolutionary "comrades" was the reply to a letter received by the Rand School from Joseph Shaplan, a Socialist lecturer. The letter was taken from the files of Mr. Berenberg, according to Agent Converse. Mr. Shaplan had offered his services as a lecturer on conditions in Russia under the Bolshevist régime.

"I have not heard a word in reply," wrote Mr. Shaplan to Comrade Berenberg. "I appreciate that the Socialist movement in America, unlike the Socialist parties of Europe, has allied itself irrevocably with the Bolshevist régime, but it seems to me that an institution like the Rand School might not object to having the anti-Bolshevist view, the view of Kautsky, Eisner, and others presented in a scientific manner. Or has the handling of the subject from this point of view been included in the official Index Expurgatorium?"

In the reply sent to Shaplan, which was dug out from the files by the agents of the committee, he was told bluntly but "fraternally" that "as a course on Russia has already been planned and advertised, the school cannot back your course of lectures."

An interesting exhibit identified by the witness as having been taken from the Rand School files showed that Joseph M. Coldwell, formerly State organizer of the Socialist Party of Rhode Island, had been accepted as a lecturer by the school. The memorandum read by the witness showed that Coldwell had been convicted of violation of the espionage law and sentenced to three years in Atlanta, and that he was out under $25,000 bonds pending appeal.

Mr. Stevenson a little later offered in evidence the check book of the Rand School taken out of the big safe which the raiders were compelled to force open even after they had presented a search warrant calling for the seizure of its contents.

"In looking through the various pamphlets and leaflets which were on sale at the Rand School book store I found one by Upton Sinclair with the title 'The Profits of Religion.' And that made me think that the committee might be interested in looking into the profits of agitation."

Reading from stubs, Mr. Converse, prompted by the counsel, told off amounts paid to Scott Nearing during the thirty days from April 28 to May 29 this year:

"April 28, $100; May 3, $100; May 3, $95; May 10, $95; May 17, $95; May 24, $35; May 29, $35. In addition to these items, totaling $555, there were other items shown which brought the total for the thirty days up to $610.

"I want to call the attention of the committee to the fact that if Mr. Nearing had had continued as an associate professor in the University of Pennsylvania, he would probably today be earning not more than $200 a month," remarked Mr. Stevenson. "I think it is a rather interesting commentary upon the self-sacrifice of those who are agitating for the 'despoiled' and 'oppressed' of this State."

The committee at the close of its hearing yesterday adjourned to meet again on Tuesday, July 9.

The Communist, Recently Raided, Not Published This Week.

The Communist, the official weekly newspaper published at 48 West Twenty-ninth Street, by the "Left Wing" section of the Socialist Party, was not published this week. At the Rand School of Science bookstore, in East Fifteenth Street, near Fifth Avenue, it was said that the paper had ceased publication. At the Twenty-ninth Street address it was said that the paper will be combined with another radical paper known as The Revolutionary Age, and that the new combination weekly will appear the latter part of next week.

The offices of The Communist, the editor of which was John Reed, were raided a week ago today by State agents acting on a search warrant secured at the instance of the Legislative Committee which is investigating Bolshevism and kindred radical movements in this State.

The Wardens of St. Mark's Protestant Episcopal Church, in Stuyvesant Square, are investigating a report that one of the most radical of the Bolshevist papers published in this country is occupying offices in a building owned by that church. The paper in question is printed in Russian, and its former editor is now a member of the staff of Ludwig A. C. K. Martens, the unrecognized Bolshevist "envoy" to this country. The lease is in the name of a son of another member of the Martens "embassy" staff.

GREET MEN OF NC'S REACHING HOMEPORT

Seaplanes and Blimps Welcome Aviators Coming Up the Bay.

NAVY GIVES ITS PRAISE

Read, First to Cross Ocean in Aircraft, Happy Over "Glorious Homecoming."

Greeted down the bay by five seaplanes, two blimps, and a score of naval and private water craft, bearing their families, official committees, and hundreds of well-wishers, Lieut. Commander Albert Cushing Read, U. S. N., and the crew of the victorious NC-4, first air machine to cross the Atlantic, returned to New York yesterday afternoon on the transport Zeppelin. On board the Zeppelin were also Commander John H. Towers of the NC-3 and Lieut. Commander P. N. L. Bellinger of the NC-1 and members of their respective crews. Leaden skies and a steady downpour interfered with the success of the aerial demonstration planned in their honor, but the enthusiasm of those who braved the elements to welcome the aviators was not lessened. Outside the piers at the Port of Debarkation, Hoboken, a crowd waited for the appearance of the aviators and gave them a sendoff as they rode away in automobiles.

When word was received that the Zeppelin had reached Quarantine, the official boats started down the bay. The submarine chaser Herreshoff, carrying the wives and relatives of the returning aviators, the Manhattan with a delegation from the Aero Club of America, and the Patrol, with officials of the Mayor's Committee of Welcome, all got under way at about the same time.

When the Manhattan got as close to the Zeppelin as safety would allow, the wives of the airmen scanned the decks of the transport, which was crowded with several thousand soldiers. The calmest of the wives was Mrs. Towers, whose husband was adrift at sea for sixty hours after he was compelled to descend. An Ensign, familiar with the wigwag code, volunteered to send messages and personal greetings were exchanged between the two boats.

The several welcoming committees gave the airmen a noisy greeting, while a seaplane descended low enough to drop an invitation from the American Flying Club asking Commander Read and his men to be their guests at a dinner at the Hotel Commodore on next Wednesday night. The Zeppelin did not stop in the lower bay, as is usually the custom, but continued up the river with its escort of welcomers. The seaplanes did not continue all the way to the piers.

As the Zeppelin slipped into Pier 4 at the port of debarkation a military band broke forth into the tune of "Hail, hail, the gang's all here," while the group on the pier cheered the men who were lined along the railing of the top deck. With Commander Towers leading, the flyers walked off the steamship and lined up in single file, the NC-4 men having the place of honor at the extreme right. Salutes were exchanged between the commanders and Rear Admiral James H. Glennon, representing Secretary Daniels, following which the latter said:

"In the name of the Secretary of the Navy I welcome you home and congratulate you upon your splendid achievement which has reflected so much lustre on yourselves and the United States naval service."

Admiral Glennon then shook hands with each of the airmen, telling them that they were free to do as they pleased until Monday when they have to report to Washington for further orders. The officers and crew of the three NC boats then walked to the end of the pier, where their wives and friends were waiting in a room set aside for them. E. H. Howard, former chief machinists mate of the NC-4, whose hand was cut off by a propeller on the eve of the flight from Rockaway Point, was one of those who greeted the aviators. He told them that he was glad the accident had not happened before it did, for then he would not have had the opportunity of working on the seaplane which made history for this country. Howard, who is regarded as one of the best mechanics in the naval air service, is still under treatment in the hospital.

The first remark that Commander Read made when questioners surrounded him was:

"Well, we went over in a seaplane and came back in a Zeppelin!"

Wearing the ribbon of the Royal Air Force Cross, which was first awarded to Hawker, and the emblem of the Order of the Tower and Sword, which was bestowed on him by the Portuguese Government, Commander Read talked briefly of the flight to Europe.

"I regret that the operation was not entirely successful," he said. "By that I mean that all of the three seaplanes did not get over. We have had a wonderful reception everywhere, but I am beginning to realise that the receptions are only just starting. If today's greeting is to be any criterion it will be a glorious homecoming."

After gathering in the office of Brig. Gen. G. H. McManus where they were congratulated by Colonel Archie Miller, commander of the army aviation field at Mineola, L. I., Colonel Frank Andrews, Inspector General of the Air Service; Captain King Snell, and other representatives of the army's air service, the entire party was taken in automobiles to Manhattan.

The navy's Committee of Welcome, in addition to Rear Admiral Glennon, included Captain P. Dymington, Lieut. Commander W. F. Frost, Commander R. W. Cabaniss, in charge of the naval station at Rockaway Point, from which the NC planes started on their flight, and Lieut. Commander Robert Donohue.

The piers at Hoboken were guarded by four hundred men of Companies C and D of the 13th Infantry, under command of Major Barrett. While the reception to the returning fliers was in progress the soldiers stood at attention along both sides of the pier.

The personnel of the NC-4, which returned on the Zeppelin, was as follows: Commanding officer, Lieut. Comm. A. C. Read; pilots, Lieutenant E. F. Stone and Lieutenant W. Hinton; radio operator, Ensign H. C. Rodd; engineer, Chief Special Mechanic E. Rhoades, and reserve pilot Lieutenant J. L. B. Reese.

The members of the crew of the NC-3 who returned were: Commander J. H. Towers, commanding officer of the squadron; Commander H. C. Richardson, pilot; Lieutenant D. H. McCullogh, pilot; Lieut. Comm. R. A. Lavender, radio operator, and Lieutenant B. Rhoades, reserve pilot.

The officers and crew of the NC-1 were: Lieut. Comm. P. N. L. Bellinger, Lieut. Comm. M. A. Mitscher, pilot; Lieutenant L. T. Barin, pilot; Chief Machinists Mate C. L. Kesler, engineer, and Machinist R. Christensen, reserve pilot.

On the evening of June 21 Commander Read spoke in the dining hall of the Zeppelin to the army and navy officers on board. In his address portions of which appear in The Dirigible, the ship's paper, he said among other things:

"Crossing the Atlantic by seaplane will not be profitable commercially soon. The dirigible will accomplish more along this line within the next few years."

In telling of his flight to the Azores, Commander Read said that the NC-4 had been flying through a thick fog when suddenly he and his men looked through a hole in the fog, and to their keen surprise saw the surf breaking against the shore. Then they realized, he said, that their journey had been completed, and that they were at the Azores.

Among the invitations extended yesterday to the fliers was one from Glenn H. Curtiss, who asked them to be his guests at a dinner at the Commodore on the evening of July 10. At this dinner Mr. Curtiss will present to the commander of each of the NC boats a model of the plane. Secretary Daniels has promised to attend, and invitations have been sent to the Governor General of Newfoundland, Brig. Gen. L. E. O. Charlton of the British Air Service, and scientists.

The historic flight overseas was begun from the Naval Air Station at Rockaway Point, L. I., on the morning of May 8, when the three NC planes left on the first leg of their journey to Trepassey Bay, Newfoundland. On this trip the NC-4 met with a mishap, and her arrival at the destination was delayed until May 14. The "hop-off" to the Azores was made on May 16. Ill-luck befell both the NC-1 and NC-3, both of which were compelled to alight at sea. The NC-1 came down eighty miles from the Azores, and her crew was taken aboard a navy boat in the vicinity. An attempt was made to salvage the plane, but she was a total loss in the heavy seas.

After having wandered eighty miles off her course, due to a heavy fog, Commander Towers's plane, the NC-3, alighted in the water. Buffeted about for fifty-two hours, Commander Towers and his crew succeeded in "taxiing" the plane into the harbor of Ponta Delgada.

The NC-4 finished this stage of the trip successfully. After many delays due to bad weather the NC-4 on May 20 continued alone on the flight to Lisbon. On the following day Commander Read and his crew reached Plymouth, England.

HOPES TO START FLIGHT OVER OCEAN TODAY

Vice Admiral Kerr Believes the Weather Will Be Favorable for Handley-Page Dash.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., June 27.—Vice Admiral Mark Kerr announced tonight that he hoped to start his transatlantic flight in the Handley-Page biplane tomorrow.

HARBOR GRACE, Newfoundland, June 27.—Transatlantic flight weather is improving somewhat, Major Geoffrey I. Taylor, meteorological officer of the Handley-Page expedition, reported today, adding that what now is needed principally is an improvement in local conditions.

Today's bright sunshine makes the fog, mist, and rain of the past week or more seem almost unbelievable, and unless the light westerly wind now prevailing shifts, Major Taylor's wish seems about to be fulfilled. Major Gran, charged with the responsibility of navigating the four-engined biplane on its Newfoundland-England flight, who was so pessimistic yesterday that he predicted a possible two weeks' delay in starting, changed today into a lively optimist. He was almost ready to wager that the Handley-Page will sail away tomorrow.

Whether or not that prediction is fulfilled, Gran, in the absence of Rear Admiral Mark Kerr, and Major H. G. Brackley, who have gone to St. John's, took charge of the Handley-Page, and did the last possible bit of making ready. He had her wheeled into the sunshine, hopeful that the heat and the breeze together would dry her out before morning, for he figured that she had absorbed between two and three hundred pounds of water during the past week's exposure, and that she would have just that much useless dead weight to carry should she be flown in her present condition. Gran also set the two-bladed tractor propellors, and the four-bladed pusher propellors on the front and rear engines twirling so that should the attempt be made to start tomorrow a stiff and balky power plant may not delay the going.

Orders have been given to turn over to Gran every bit of weather information which reaches here over the wires, and he is in intimate touch with Kerr and Brackley, who are prepared to race back here the moment conditions are propitious. Not only are all the members of the expedition daily more eager to depart, but they feel that Sunday, being a holiday, would be an ideal day to reach home, whereas on Monday, according to the reports received here, the world's attention may be so fixed upon the coming of peace with the signing of the treaty by the Germans that their flight would not get the attention it deserves.

The extreme need for brisk and favorable winds all the way across if the Handley-Page is to reach London and better the Vickers-Vimy distance record, however, is just as acute today as it was ten days ago, and only a spanking breeze with them can justify a departure tomorrow.

So upon tomorrow morning's report from Major Taylor really rests the decision whether to go or to face another day's disappointment and delay.

ARMY HAS 3,414 PLANES AVAILABLE FOR SERVICE

Gen. March Reports Enough Machines in the Country to Form 136 Squadrons.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—There are at present in the United States 1,840 planes belonging to the United States Army in serviceable condition, or enough to make approximately fifty squadrons. Beside these there are 862 other battle planes in storage, with motors taken out, or enough to form thirty-four squadrons.

This is part of the information which the army air service today laid before General March, Chief of Staff of the Army, in response to a request from him for a complete, detailed statement of the service plane resources of the aviation section. General March wanted to know how many planes were at this time available for use by the army.

Beside the battle planes, sufficient in number today to form eighty-four squadrons, General March was informed today that the advanced training planes, of the type now being used by the army for forest patrol, could, if necessary, be used for observation planes. Of these, he was informed, there are 653 in commission at the fields and 156 in storage, enough to form fifty-two squadrons, or enough of both kinds to form 136 squadrons.

This is quite a different showing from that of the army on March 1, 1916, when the total resources in planes was thirteen airplanes, four hydroplanes, and one flying boat. On March 13, 1916, the first army aero squadron went into Mexico with eight Curtiss JN-3 planes, a type now considered inferior to the primary training planes. After these planes had been in Mexico two months four more planes were shipped to them.

The resources of the air service in planes are given in the report submitted to General March today as follows:

DH-4 Type.—Designed for observation and day bombing; 1,191 in commission; 842 in storage with motors taken out; total, 2,033, or enough to make 81 1-3 squadrons.

Spad Type.—Designed for pursuit; 27 in commission; none in storage; enough to make one squadron.

La Pere Type.—Service planes; 18 in commission; none in storage; enough to form two-thirds of a squadron.

Handley-Page Type.—Bombers; 4 in commission; 20 in storage with motors out; total, 24; enough to form one squadron.

SE-5 Type.—Advanced training planes; 46 in commission; 57 in storage with motors out; total, 103; enough to form four squadrons.

JN-6H Type.—Advanced training planes; 653 in commission; 156 in storage with motors taken out; total, 809; enough to form 32 squadrons.

S-4C Type.—Advanced training planes; 400 in commission; none in storage; enough to form 16 squadrons.

Total.—2,339 in commission; 1,075 in storage with motors taken out; total planes, 3,414, or enough to make 136 squadrons.

There are in the United States General March was informed, 1,304 flying officers. This number includes flying officers on staff duty.

WETS STILL HOPE WILSON WILL ACT

Liquor Dealers in a Quandary In Face of Conflicting Laws and Legal Opinions.

APPEAL SENT TO PRESIDENT

Bill Before Congress Stirs Interest of Club Members and Householders.

Hoping for an eleventh-hour reprieve in the shape of a proclamation by President Wilson, suspending the operation of the War Prohibition act, which becomes effective next Tuesday, proprietors or restaurants and saloons continued yesterday to plan for the sale of liquor after July 1.

A long cable message to President Wilson was sent from this city yesterday urging that the attitude of Congress and the decision of the Court of Appeals upholding the constitutionality of the War Prohibition act, made the President the last resource of those opposing prohibition.

Representatives of liquor interests, who had during the week expected such action by President Wilson, began to despair of a proclamation by him before July 1, declaring demobilization at an end, and to pin all their hopes on such legal battles as will be undertaken to test the validity of the War Prohibition act. Although the Court of Appeals in the "2.75 per cent. beer" case held the act to be constitutional, this will not prevent further suits to test the power of Congress to pass and enforce the act. William H. Hirst, counsel for the Society of Restaurateurs, said yesterday that further suits would probably be brought to test the constitutionality of the act, which he said had not been passed upon decisively by the Court of Appeals.

While neither the retailers of liquor in restaurants, saloons or retail liquor shops, nor their counsel, were fully decided yesterday upon the course to be pursued after Monday, it is probable that most such places will continue to do business. The more cautious will sell only "2.75 beer," while others will sell beer and light wines, standing ready to be arrested for the sake of testing the issue, if need be.

The mass of laws, threatened further legislation, the possibility of action by the President, the questions of constitutionality, and doubt as to the policy of the Government in enforcing the war prohibition act prior to the passage by Congress of the enforcing bill, have left men in the liquor business somewhat dazed and uncertain what to do next. While hoping they will have a respite before July 1, most of them are playing safe, under the advice of counsel, by selling out their stocks as fast as they can.

Emory R. Buckner, who is associated with Elihu Root and William D. Guthrie in the 2.75 per cent. beer case," said that the proposed enforcing bill, the full text of which was printed in THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday, would be proved unconstitutional, so far as it attempted to define an intoxicant, as a liquor which contained "one-half of one per cent. or more" of alcohol.

"You cannot make a hard drink of a soft one by legislation," Mr. Buckner said. "As far as '2.75 per cent. beer' is concerned, the issue will still be whether it is, as a matter of fact, intoxicating or not."

William H. Hirst, counsel for the Society of Restaurateurs, who read the text of the proposed bill in THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday said:

"I have not had a chance to study this bill, and don't want to be understood as speaking as counsel for these interests, but as a student of this question for years, I will say that Congress cannot without rhyme or reason declare a substance which is non-intoxicating to be intoxicating, any more than it can arbitrarily call a mushroom, which is innocuous, a toadstool, which is harmful. A legislative body may define an article or a subject within reasonable limits, but when it transcends what is natural and possible it is exceeding that authority."

Mr. Hirst said that the hotel and restaurant men would meet on Monday again to determine finally what steps to take. He said that the only sure thing was that there would be no action in concert and that each proprietor would drop alcohol entirely, restrict himself to "2.75 beer," sell beer and light wine, or sell liquors of all descriptions, according to his individual opinion on the situation.

Mr. Hirst said, however, he was sure that the would advise no one to go further than selling light wines and beer, by way of conforming to the policy suggested by President Wilson in his message to Congress.

If passed as it stands and shown to be constitutional, the enforcement bill will make shipwreck of the plans of the majority of the clubs in this city and a few of the hotels to store liquor on the premises for the individual owners. Most of the clubs have either apportioned their liquor stocks pro rata, and allowed each member to buy his share, or subdivided off the contents of their cellars, allowing members the privilege of keeping the liquor on the club premises and drinking it there, if lawful. The proposed law, however, would make such a proceeding unlawful and would apparently make any club, which tempted to follow such a policy, liable to be raided and "abated" as a common nuisance.

Another feature of the law, which stirred great interest yesterday, is the passage which would make all possessors of personal liquor supplies confess their holdings in a statement to the Internal Revenue Collector, which is to be placed on file and opened to public inspection during office hours. Under this provision any man would incur severe penalties if he attempted to make a secret of the amount of liquor he had thought right to set aside for his personal consumption.

Fixing for a wild windup of the "wet age" in Madison Square Garden, received a check yesterday when the New York Life Insurance Company, which controls the Garden, sought to cancel the lease which had been obtained by the promoters of the so-called Eighteenth Club," which planned the affair. J. R. Martin, Chairman of a committee representing the club, called at the office of the company yesterday to make a payment of $1,200, in addition to a deposit of $600 already made for the hire of the property from 6 o'clock in the morning of the last "wet" day to 12 o'clock at noon on the first "dry" day. Officials of the company, however, declined to accept the $1,200, and sought to return the $600, arguing that they had leased the hall for a military show and entertainment, but that the lessees had been advertising a "bacchanalian revel" and "the greatest wake in history." The conference ended with both parties running from the office, calling on witnesses to observe that each had refused to touch the money. Ben H. Atwell, one of the promoters, asserted that legal steps would be taken today to protect the lease, and that the largest bar ever built would be in operation at the Garden on Monday and Monday night. Officials of the insurance company admitted yesterday that they had been deluged with protests by the Anti-Saloon League and by others against the proposed revel and wake.

PROHIBITION ACT PROBABLY HELD UP

such liquid is withdrawn from the factory, or otherwise disposed of, the alcoholic content thereof shall, under such rules and regulations as the Commissioner may prescribe, be reduced below such one-half of 1 per centum of alcohol. The alcohol removed from such liquid, if evaporated and not condensed and saved, shall pay no tax; if saved, shall be subject to the same law as other alcoholic liquors. Nothing herein shall prevent the storage in United States bonded warehouses, in the custody of a United States Collector of Internal Revenue, of all liquor manufactured prior to the taking effect of this act, or to prevent the transportation of such liquor for purposes not prohibited when the tax is paid."

A new paragraph was added at the end of the bill providing specifically that the war time prohibition and industrial alcohol provisions of the bill, as found in Titles I. and III., shall take effect from and after the passage of the act, and that Title II., which deals with national prohibition alone, shall take effect and be in force on and after January 16, 1920.

Section 40 of Title II. of the bill, dealing with national prohibition, as agreed on yesterday, provided for an appropriation of $3,500,000 for covering the expenses of enforcement. The committee today adopted a new Section 40, which provides for an indefinite appropriation as follows:

"Section 40. That the Commissioner of Internal Revenue and the Attorney General of the United States are hereby respectfully authorized to appoint and employ such assistants, experts, clerks, and other employes as they may deem necessary for the enforcement of the provisions of this act, and there is hereby authorized to be appropriated out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated such sum as may be required for the enforcement of the act."

President's Power Challenged.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—The question of whether the President would have the power to repeal war-time prohibition by declaring demobilization complete was discussed in the House today by Representative Hoch, Republican, of Kansas.

"There seems to be a general belief," Mr. Hoch said, "that the President not only has the power to repeal the act, but intends to do so. The liquor interests in many sections of the country are openly defying the law and are taking out licenses for the next fiscal year, and newspapers are devoting much space to the publication of stories forecasting a repeal.

"Nevertheless, it is certain that the President has no moral or legal right to repeal the act. He lacks the moral right because both branches of Congress and the country at large expressed in no uncertain terms opposition to his request that the act should be repealed, insofar as it affects the sale of light wines and beer.

"Neither has he the legal right to repeal the act. That cannot be done until demobilization is terminated, and certainly he cannot state in good faith that demobilization is complete when hundreds of thousands of soldiers are still in the service."

Representative Barkley, Democrat, of Kentucky, interrupted to remark that there was no foundation whatsoever for stories which said the President would repeal the act.

"They are simply rumors," he added. "I will venture to say that not a single person in the country knows what the President's intention in the matter is."

To Test Law in St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, June 27.—John P. Panse, President of the St. Louis Retail Liquor Dealers, announced today that he had advised the 600 members of the association to continue the sale of all liquor after July 1 in an effort to test the enforcement of wartime prohibition. The decision of the United States Court of Appeals in New York, modifying the injunction against enforcement by district attorneys, he said, would have no effect on the stand of local saloon keepers, as they expected only a few arrests would be made as a basis for test cases.

Approximately 600 saloon keepers have applied for new licenses to cover the last six months of the year, according to announcement of the Excise Commissioner. These applications, however, it was said, are regarded as conditional on the lifting of wartime prohibition.

Constitutional Test Promised.

HARTFORD, June 27.—United States District Attorney John F. Crosby today stated in a letter to counsel representing Connecticut liquor dealers that violations of the wartime prohibition law would bring prosecutions. He added that if the dealers should determine to file a bill in equity he would not agree to suspend prosecution pending the decision on the bill nor be governed by the bill unless an injunction was secured. The final statement of his position was that an injunction in one jurisdiction would not prevent the Department of Justice from making prosecutions in other jurisdictions.

Mr. Crosby expresses a willingness to assist in making a test of the law with all possible speed. He promises upon the first violation called to his attention to summon a Grand Jury and obtain an indictment so drawn as to make possible a demurrer to test the constitutionality of the law.

If the dealers enter a demurrer, Mr. Crosby agreed to urge a prompt hearing and decision by the United States District Court. If the District Judge upholds the dealers, "his ruling on the demurrer can be taken at once to the Supreme Court." He further stated that if this plan of action were followed he would "in all probability refrain from commencing other prosecutions until the initial case is determined."

It had been previously understood that the dealers intended to apply for an injunction on Monday to restrain Mr. Crosby from interfering with the business.

LOUISVILLE, June 27.—With the expectation that Congress will strike out of the Wartime Prohibition Enforcement bill the clause which prevents exportation of whisky, liquor dealers in Kentucky have under consideration a plan to ship their surplus stocks to Europe after June 30. For this purpose, it is learned here a corporation would be formed to handle the exportation.

By this means, according to W. N. Cox, President of the Louisville Warehouse Company, all of the estimated 40,000,000 gallons of liquor expected to be left on hand in Kentucky after wartime prohibition becomes effective will have been disposed of before constitutional prohibition is established.

CHOATE DEFENDS DYE PROTECTION

Explains Chemical Foundation's Work, and Calls Congressman's Statements Inaccurate.

NOT FORMED FOR PROFIT

Has the Organization Power to Manufacture Dyestuffs, He Declares.

Joseph H. Choate, general counsel for the Chemical Foundation, gave out yesterday a copy of a letter which he had sent to Congressman J. Hampton Moore of Philadelphia calling the Congressman's attention to what, he asserted, were inaccurate statements made by the former on the floor of the house on June 9, when Mr. Moore discussed the Chemical Foundation, which was formed to handle German dye patents for the benefit of the American industry. Mr. Choate also explained to Mr. Moore the connection of Alien Property Custodian Francis P. Garvan with the Foundation of which he is the President.

Mr. Choate first considered the statement of Mr. Moore that the Chemical Foundation was formed for the purpose of engaging in the manufacture of dyestuffs in the United States. "This is precisely the opposite of the truth," said Mr. Choate. "The Foundation has no power under its charter to do anything of the kind. It can only license others to manufacture under its patents. It must license by nonexclusive license up to the capacity of the market any competent and truly American manufacturer who may apply. Its main purpose is to prevent the monopolization of the inventions covered by the patents and to make them available to all, whether members of the Foundation or not."

Mr. Choate then took up the statement of the Representative that as a result of carrying out the plan of organizing a trustee corporation to purchase the patents "somebody" would make money. He said that if Mr. Moore intended to intimate that the trustees, officers or stockholders of the Foundation are going to make money, then he, the Representative, had not read the history of the Foundation which he had held in his hand while speaking. Mr. Choate pointed out that no trustee can own a share of the stock, and that no officer or director owned stock except the necessary qualifying shares. Mr. Choate continued: "The stock is being distributed widely and in such small allotments that ultimately the corporation will be owned in equal shares by 500 different concerns, none of which will own more than $1,000 worth of stock. The stockholders can never receive more than 6 per cent. on the cash at par paid for their stock."

"All surplus above this figure, 6 per cent. on $500,000, or $30,000 a year, divided among the whole industry, has to be used for research and the advancement of science. Does this look like a money-making institution? Some return equivalent to a fair rate of interest obviously had to be provided for, if the money for the purchase and defense of the patents was to be raised. The smaller concerns in the industry were in no position to give money outright in aid of the project, nor was any philanthropist discernible who was so inclined."

"Either the people who put up the money had to be given a chance to avoid its loss or the small manufacturers had to be left out, leaving the enterprise tied up to the large concerns. The charter requires that if the Foundation succeeds, the preferred stock must be promptly retired by the return to the stockholders of their investment. That will leave the company with 1,000 shares of common stock, not more than two shares held by any one concern and limited to 6 per cent. dividends, if declared. Here, surely is an alarming display of avarice."

Mr. Choate then took up the criticism that the Trustees are not dye makers. It was necessary, he said, to so intrust the voting stock if the danger of having the Foundation fall into the control of any group of dye makers was to be obviated.

As to the criticism that Mr. Garvin's connection with the Foundation must detract from his work as Alien Property Custodian, and hereafter as Assistant Attorney General, when he assumed that office, Mr. Choate said that Mr. Garvin became President of the Foundation upon its organization, long before he became Custodian of Alien Property, and that he assumed the office unwillingly. Mr. Choate took occasion to say that there was no intention of fixing prices. After calling attention to the fact that Mr. Moore evidently failed to take into account the situation that called for the formation of the Chemical Foundation he continued:

"The patents could not be sold piecemeal, or they would not be worth defending. They had to be sold to strong concerns, because no weak firm could stand the expense of defending. Yet, if sold to any existing concern, the inventions would be lost to all others, and a monopoly would be created. The only way in which the patents could be made available to all, and at the same time used to fight the German trust, was the creation of a trustee corporation. That method was adopted, and I can confidently submit to the judgment of the country that the resulting institution, the chemical foundation, will prove one of the most beneficial forces in our industrial world."

DR. WILKINS GUILTY IN FIRST DEGREE

twelfth ballot. The last man to hold out for the defendant's innocence, according to jurors, was J. F. C. Prince, a telephone tester. It was after 3 o'clock in the afternoon before the eleven men were able to argue away the last doubts which troubled the mind of Juror Prince. The last juror held the fort alone for seven hours. The plea for clemency is believed to have been a concession to Juror Prince before the agreement was finally obtained. After the adjournment Foreman Paireis said:

"It was a tough job. If every jury tried as hard as we did to reach an honest decision, there would be few cases of injustice in the land."

The following statement signed by Dr. Wilkins was issued from his cell after the verdict:

"I am absolutely an innocent man. I never injured a hair in her head. I could never have injured a woman who was universally so generous to me. We never had a steak that she did not insist that I have the tenderloin.

"There was never anything but love in our house. There has been an awful mistake made. The jury could not have understood the law when they rendered a verdict of murder in the first degree and then recommended mercy. I am stunned."

Charles N. Wilson, counsel for the defendant, said he would appeal the case at once, and if unsuccessful would carry the jury's appeal for clemency to Governor Smith.

"I am still convinced of the doctor's innocence," he said. "I don't believe that the jury understood, when they brought in the verdict with the recommendation for clemency, that the court was unable to grant clemency."

Dr. Wilkins was not at first suspected of the murder of his wife, after she was beaten to death on the night of Feb. 27. His story of an attack by burglars was at first accepted, and a hunt for the burglars started, but when nothing could be found to support this theory the physician's account of the crime was sifted a little more closely. Under further questioning, his story took on many variations, according to the police.

Dr. Wilkins was not arrested, the authorities confiding in a promise said to have been obtained from him by District Attorney Weeks not to run away. Dr. Wilkins, however, disappeared. A country-wide search for him started. By shaving his whiskers and using an assumed name, he escaped detection in Baltimore, where he went from New York, but about a week after his departure he returned voluntarily to this city and was arrested at the Pennsylvania Station.

HAMBY IN THE DEATH HOUSE

Murderer's Arrival Leaves Only One Vacant Cell.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, June 27.—Gordon Kaweett Hamby, the bank murderer convicted in Brooklyn, was lodged in the deathhouse in Sing Sing today. With him there are twenty-two condemned men, the largest number ever confined in the deathhouse, which has one more vacant cell.

Hamby is the most distinguished arrival since Dr. Arthur Warren Waite was received four years ago. Many prisoners and employes tried to get a look at him. He appeared shortly after William Warmick, another murderer just received from Buffalo, for killing John Thomas.

Hamby stuck to his policy of keeping secret his family connections. "I don't care to have anybody notified," he replied when Chief Clerk James W. Evers asked, as the rules required, who he desired to have notified in case of illness or death. So Evers left the space f... the answer blank.

Hamby surrendered what money and trinkets he had on his person and took prison number 70,292. When asked if he would permit the prison authorities to open his mail, he replied: "Yes, that's all right." He was told, of course, that unless he permitted the censor to open any mail he received, none would be permitted to reach him.

Dr. Amos O. Squire, prison physician, gave Hamby a physical examination and told how to give certain information about himself to the Rev. William E. Cashin, prison chaplain, who keeps the condemned men's records and censors the death house correspondence. Then, Hamby entered his cell. For supper he did not have a very sumptuous feast. His first meal consisted of a cheese sandwich, bread and butter, and tea. Hamby will have his measurements and photograph taken tomorrow by Bertillion Officer Powers for the Rogue's Gallery.

TELL OF DANNEMORA.

Witnesses Testify Regarding Alleged Ill-Treatment of Inmates.

The inquiry into conditions in the Dannemora State Hospital that is being conducted by George W. Alger, counsel for the Prison Survey Committee, was resumed yesterday at Mr. Alger's office at 71 Broadway. The inquiry grew out of a complaint made by Louis Greenspan, a lawyer of Jamaica, L. I., alleging that inmates of the hospital were insufficiently fed and brutally treated.

Mrs. Eltoka W. Schindler of 271 West Palisade Avenue, West Hoboken, testified that her brother, Ernest G. Sofieo, who was an inmate of the hospital, after being convicted of shooting his wife and attempting suicide, had become very emaciated, and that his hair had turned white. During two recent visits there, Mrs. Schindler said her brother asked her to bring him sandwiches and coffee because he was not getting enough to eat, and that the only prison fare that was fit to eat was the bread.

She said she asked Dr. Ross, the Superintendent of the hospital, to transfer her brother to a State prison, but was told that he was suffering from hallucinations. The witness said she then discussed with Dr. Ross the matter of obtaining a pardon for her brother, and that he had told her there was no good reason for keeping her brother in a hospital intended for insane convicts. The doctor, she stated, promised to help her get a pardon for Sofieo, providing he would consent to leave the country when he was freed. In reply to a question, Mrs. Schindler explained that her brother had been sent to the hospital after he had attempted to commit suicide in Sing Sing Prison.

Rabbi Edward R. M. Browne, who has taken a great deal of interest in convicts, told of his efforts in liberating a man named Philip Jacobs from the Dannemora Hospital. Rabbi Browne said that Jacobs is now free and supporting his family.

Mr. Greenspan, the complainant, testified that his brother, Larphy, had been badly treated while he was confined in the hospital, and that he had interested several influential citizens in his brother's behalf. The hearing will be resumed next Wednesday at 10 o'clock.

PRODUCE STRIKERS RETURN

Retailers Again Obtain Shipments of Fruits and Vegetables.

With the settlement on Thursday night of the differences between the fruit and vegetable commission merchants and the teamsters, chauffeurs, and porters, the strikers returned to work yesterday morning and before the day was over all of the accumulation of fruits and vegetables had been moved from the railroad and steamship terminals and the streets. Scarcity of foodstuffs for the last few days on account of the strike caused a strong demand with good prices prevailing, although in most of the stores and markets the retail prices remained virtually the same as before the strike. Shipments after Monday having been diverted to other markets, it is expected that the scarcity will be felt until early next week, when conditions will become normal.

Announcement was made yesterday at the office of L. J. Lippmann of J. and S. Lippmann, Chairman of the committee representing the produce men, that the commission houses would open this morning at 6 o'clock, the same as the last few days of the strike, but that beginning on Monday morning they would open at 1 A. M. as formerly. It was also said that a formal agreement between the dealers and the union would be signed today.

CARRIES GEMS IN UMBRELLA

Opens Umbrella, Drops Box, and Refuses It When Returned.

Mrs. M. W. Doolan of the Graham Court Apartments, Seventh Avenue and 116th Street, stepped from a dry goods store in Fifth Avenue into Thirty-sixth Street yesterday morning, opened her umbrella hurriedly, and started westward in the driving rain.

Before she had gone far a man accosted her, and holding out a small box inquired whether she had dropped it. Mrs. Doolan said "No," and the man turned to another woman, asking the same question.

After she had gone on a little way, Mrs. Doolan remembered that she had put a box containing her engagement ring and a diamond bar pin inside the umbrella and had forgotten them. A reward was been advertised in the hope that the man who picked up the box may again return it.

DE VALERA LEAVES FOR BOSTON TODAY

Gala Expedition Planned in Answer to Invitation from Massachusetts House.

O'LEARY TO FORE AGAIN

Offers to Take Sinn Fein Chieftain's Place in Debate with the Rev. Mr. Irvine.

In response to invitations to address the House of Representatives of the Massachusetts Legislature and a public meeting in Fenway Park, Eamonn de Valera, the Sinn Fein leader, will leave for Boston at 1 o'clock this afternoon. He may address meetings in Providence and one or two other places along the way.

In addition to the invitation of the Massachusetts House, de Valera received a telegram from Governor John H. Bartlett of New Hampshire, inviting him to that State, and the invitation was supplemented by a telegram from Mayor Moise Verrette of Manchester. The resolution of the Massachusetts House "ordered that the House hereby extend to Eamonn de Valera, the zealous and enthusiastic representative of the Irish people, a cordial welcome to the Commonwealth of Massachusetts upon his return, after many years, to the country of his birth, and the Speaker is hereby requested to invite Mr. de Valera to address the House, and to appoint a committee of seven members to escort him."

It was noted at the headquarters of the "Republic" at the Waldorf that the resolutions of the Massachusetts House apparently did not refer to de Valera as "President of the Irish Republic," but as the "representative of the Irish people," and the remark of those who spoke for Mr. de Valera was that he did represent a vast majority of the Irish people. Another telegram from the Mayor and City Council of Cambridge was directed to "President Eamonn de Valera, Republic of Ireland," and invited him to visit the city. The message reminded him that the town was the seat of Harvard University and was "abundant with historic Revolutionary spots, including the old Washington elm, under which General Washington first took command of the American Army."

In commenting upon an alleged assertion of Ian MacPherson, the Secretary for Ireland, that the Sinn Fein movement was losing ground, Mr. de Valera declared that the British were trying to give that impression by censoring the news.

Mr. de Valera received from the Board of Aldermen here an engrossed copy of the resolution extending him the freedom of the city. Harry J. Boland, a member of the party of the Sinn Fein leader, said that no answer had been received from the letter to Mayor Hylan asking for an audience at City Hall. This is the text of the resolution of the Board of Aldermen:

We, the members of our city's municipal body, the Board of Aldermen, appreciating the spirit of the American Government which has ever extended its protection and sympathy to all lovers of democracy who have been compelled to seek either assistance or an abode of safety, and recognizing in the person of Eamonn de Valera the right to seek our appreciation as the legally and sovereignly elected President of the Republic of Ireland, and desiring to reciprocate the solicitude and comfort bestowed upon a foreign Ambassador from these shores in the person of Benjamin Franklin by the people of Ireland, hereby cordially and with deep concern for his honor's welfare, tender unto him the freedom and welcome of our city and its citizens, and urge our fellow-citizens to join us in those our heartfelt felicitations.

Jeremiah A. O'Leary, who was charged, during the war, with violation of the Espionage act, gave to the newspapers yesterday copies of a telegram sent by him to the Rev. D. D. Irvine, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Richmond Hill, taking up the minister's challenge to de Valera for debate upon recognition of the "Irish Republic."

The Rev. Mr. Irvine had challenged de Valera to debate, and O'Leary sent his telegram after he had visited the headquarters of the Irish party at the Waldorf. O'Leary proposed that the debate take place in the Academy of Music in Brooklyn before July 10, and added:

"It must be quite clear to you that it would be impossible for President de Valera to answer your challenge. It shall be a pleasure for me to afford you an opportunity to present all that can be said in the negative on the above question, if there is anything to be said on the negative side."

SINN FEIN ASSAILS SIMS.

Admiral and Daniels Now Targets with Wilson and Taft.

The local Sinn Fein weeklies, issued yesterday, while devoting most of their space to the arrival in America of Edward de Valera, attack President Wilson, Admiral William Snowden Sims, ex-President William H. Taft, and Secretary of the Navy Daniels. The outburst against the Secretary of the Navy and Admiral Sims is based on the allegation that they are friends of Great Britain.

The attack on Mr. Taft and Admiral Sims is in The Irish World. It is captioned "Two of a Kind" and declares that Admiral Sims "should have been instantly dismissed from the navy" by President Taft for the famous London speech of nine years ago in which he predicted that the United States would go to England's aid were she seriously menaced in a European war. As to Mr. Taft, The Irish World says: "Unquestionably Taft is as pro-British in 1919 as he was in 1910, which explains why he is going up and down the country delivering speeches in favor of the English-made League of Nations."

The Irish World suggests in an editorial headed "The President's Main Reliance," that President Wilson "bases his hopes for the success of the English-made League of Nations on the alleged fact that 'big business' favors it."

John Devoy's Gaelic American, criticising Secretary Daniels and Admiral Sims, speaks "of the Canadian-born Admiral Sims, an out-and-out bootlicker of England and all things English."

A series of cablegrams printed by The Gaelic American as transmitted by ex-Governor Edward F. Dunne of Illinois and Frank P. Walsh, now in Paris, to Justice Daniel F. Cohalan here, contains this:

Paris, 28.

Daniel F. Cohalan, 51 Chambers Street, New York:

Send L. S. Frigg, War Labor Board, Washington, to Paris to assist Secretary, quick. Work too heavy for Lee alone.

WALSH.

In reply to the message Judge Cohalan cabled: "Congratulations upon splendid work. Keep at it. * * * Monster meetings being held. Country greatly aroused." He also cabled the text of the Senate Irish resolution.

BRITISH VIEW OF DE VALERA.

Irish Leader, It Is Believed, Will Only Strengthen Britain's Case.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 27.—New York reports of de Valera's activities and of the American newspapermen's searching inquiries have given great satisfaction in London, particularly in those Liberal circles where Ireland's legitimate and practicable aspirations have strongest support.

When the news of de Valera's visit to America first became known several Englishmen who had come in personal contact with the Sinn Fein leader expressed the confident prediction that his trip could only be productive of good results from the point of view of Anglo-American relations. It was sarcastically suggested that the British Government could not have selected a better emissary for the purpose of putting its case in regard to Ireland before the American public.

Punch today has a cartoon conceived in no unkindly spirit, entitled "The Philanderer." The Sinn Fein, depicted as a female revolutionary with a red cap and a gun slung over her shoulder, is seen appealing with outstretched arms to Wilson: "Be Mine." The President in a coy attitude of smiling deprecation is replying: "I do hope I haven't given you too much encouragement, but I can never be more than a brother to you."

IRISH ENVOYS RETURNING.

Peace Conference Turns Irish Question Over to Clemenceau.

PARIS, June 27.—The delegation here representing Irish societies in the United States has been notified that the Irish question, so far as the Peace Conference is concerned, has been left in the hands of Premier Clemenceau, the President of the conference.

Frank P. Walsh and Edward F. Dunne, the delegates remaining here, will sail for the United States on Saturday on board the liner Savoie.

Notification as to the disposition of the Irish question was given to Messrs. Dunne and Walsh by the General Secretary of the American peace delegation.

John A. Murphy of Buffalo, N. Y., has been added to the European section of the American Commission on Irish Independence.

IRISH DOMINION PLAN.

Island Under Plunkett Scheme Would Be Virtually a Republic.

LONDON, June 27.—Establishment of self-government in Ireland within the British Empire is proposed in a manifesto issued today by the "Irish Dominion League" and signed by Sir Horace Plunkett and other Irishmen.

The proposal, it is claimed, is a great advance over any previous proposed solution for the Irish question, except that the British connection is maintained. Under this plan Ireland would have virtually the same amount of home rule as if she were an independent republic.

The manifesto points out the disadvantages to which Irish products would be exposed if Ireland were a republic severed from the British Empire. Mention is made of possible hostile tariffs, and it is said that such a position might lose for Ireland her share in any imperial preference which might be established.

Irishmen are urged in the manifesto to unite and to let the British Parliament and people know what they desire. The manifesto then outlines what the political status of Ireland would be under the new scheme.

Ireland, it is declared, would not be represented at Westminster, but would be a member of the League of Nations and of the Imperial Conference, Council or Parliament which may be established. Ireland would have complete control of her internal government. The naval and military defense would remain as at present, but no authority but the Irish Parliament would have the power to impose compulsory service on Irishmen, although Ireland would agree to make contributions to the naval, military, and diplomatic service.

In referring to Ulster, the manifesto says that with Ireland under the status of a dominion, the right of minorities would be constitutionally recognized in many ways. The Ulsterites are asked to state what special safeguards they demand, the manifesto adding:

"But if our appeal meet with no response the Irish Dominion League will be prepared to show that the Ulster difficulty can be met in the Irish Constitution as analogous difficulties have been met elsewhere in the empire."

In addition to Sir Horace Plunkett, the signers of the manifesto include Unionist candidates, members of the old Irish party, leading members of the Irish Convention of 1917, forty-five Irish peers and baronets, privy councillors, bank and railway directors, and lawyers.

BREWER DENIES INTEREST.

Feigenspan Says He Has No Part in Newark Newspaper Deal.

No formal announcement was made yesterday regarding the proposed purchase by Arthur Brisbane of an interest in the Newark Morning and Evening Ledger. Lucius T. Russell, the publisher of the papers, said that Mr. Brisbane had not returned from the country, and until he did and some definite agreement was reached no statement would be given out.

Christian Feigenspan, the brewer, President of the United States Brewers' Association, denied that he was backing Mr. Brisbane in the proposed venture. Mr. Feigenspan lent Mr. Russell money to finance The Ledger.

"I have absolutely no interest in the deals between Mr. Russell and Mr. Brisbane," Mr. Feigenspan said. "I am a creditor of Mr. Russell, but outside of that I have no interest in The Ledger.

HANDS OFF RUSSIA TO BE LABOR SLOGAN

British, French, and Italians to Demonstrate Against Intervention in July.

BRITISH CONFERENCE ACTS

Calls on Trade Unions to Stop Russian Operations and Conscription by Industrial Action.

SOUTHPORT, England, June 27.—British, French and Italian labor representatives have decided to make a general demonstration on July 20 or 21 to protest against allied intervention in Russia. This announcement was made by Arthur Henderson, British labor leader, at the labor conference here today.

Mr. Henderson explained that the demonstration would be an attempt to prevent the Governments of Europe from adopting a reactionary policy throughout that continent.

It would be left to each country, he added, to decide whether the demonstration would take the form of political or industrial action. Resolutions, he said, would be passed protesting against any intervention in Russia, and demanding the abandonment of conscription.

The conference later passed a resolution calling upon the Trade Union Congress to take industrial action to compel the British Government to stop operations in Russia. There was a heated discussion over the resolution, which was passed on a card vote by 1,893,000 to 935,000.

Without a dissenting vote the conference adopted a resolution condemning conscription and recommending that the Trade Union Congress and the Tripie Alliance take immediate industrial action to abolish it.

Another resolution adopted indorsed the six-hour day in all industries.

PARIS, June 26.—Deputy Jean Longuet, leader of the Majority Socialists, gave to the newspapers today a statement concerning the recent action of the British authorities in stopping him and M. Frossard, General Secretary of the French Socialist Party, at Folkestone. The two men were on their way to attend the British Labor Conference at Southport.

M. Longuet stated that Premier Lloyd George had told him that he knew nothing of the measures taken by the British authorities when Longuet and Frossard landed at Folkestone. He said those measures had never been considered by the Cabinet, and that he and Andrew Bonar Law, Chancellor of the Exchequer, had not received until Tuesday the telegrams of protest sent by the French Socialist leaders on Monday. He added that Premier Lloyd George stated he had telegraphed to London, authorizing M. Longuet and M. Frossard to proceed to Southport, but that the two men by that time had already started to return to France.

INTEREST ON RUSSIAN BONDS.

Not Paid with Money Loaned by American Government, Polk Says.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—None of the money loaned by the United States to Russia has been used to pay interest on the $75,000,000 of Russian bonds issued for the former Czar's Government and held by private interests in the United States, the House Committee on State Department Expenditures was told today by Acting Secretary Polk of the State Department. The interest was paid, Mr. Polk said, by Boris Bakhmeteff, Russian Ambassador, from a fund of $20,000,000 obtained through liquidation of war contracts in this country.

Bonds to the amount of $150,000,000 issued by the former Kerensky Government also are held by private interests in this country, but Mr. Polk did not know how interest payments were being met. These bonds were to secure contracts for industrial supplies let in this country, and the witness said he understood certain New York banks had accepted the interest coupons.

Mr. Polk appeared before the committee during consideration of a resolution by Representative Mason, Republican, of Illinois, asking an investigation of press reports that American bondholders sought to keep American soldiers in Russia and Siberia in order to force recognition of the validity of the bonds. He denied that any American bondholder had asked that the troops be kept abroad and referred to the report as "a dead question," saying he believed any Government that might be established in Russia would have to recognize its international obligations.

REDS DRIVEN FROM ODESSA AND KHERSON

Omsk Reports Retirement of Siberian Forces on Ufa Front as Virtually Stopped.

PARIS, June 27. (Havas.)—The Ukrainian forces have reoccupied Odessa and Kherson, according to an unofficial dispatch from Berlin.

OMSK, Siberia, June 26. (Associated Press.)—On the Ufa front the retirement of the Siberian forces has been virtually stopped. Occasional offensives are reported with good success. The enemy, however, made a strong drive in the direction of Krasno-Ufimsk in an effort to isolate the northern section. This resulted in a slight retirement along that front.

Whatever support the Allies may intend giving the Kolchak Government must come quickly if decisive results are to be achieved before Winter in the campaign against the Bolshevist forces. The armies of the All-Russian Government now have plenty of manpower but are confronted by forces greatly superior in equipment, according to Government circles. Recruiting is progressing satisfactorily. By the end of the Summer there will be no lack of troops and the only requisite for an offensive then will be much-needed materials.

The Foreign Office, in answer to questions, has stated that it still is awaiting further information as to what plans the Allies may have for rendering aid to the Kolchak forces. Meantime, however, the War Department has prepared a preliminary list of urgent necessities to be ready for any inquiry as to what help is most needed. It is stated that whatever material aid is to be given must arrive by August to be of use this year.

The list of supplies wanted includes many things, ranging from tanks and airplanes to compasses and cartridge belts.

"We have seen what America can do in an emergency," said M. Soukine, Acting Minister of Foreign Affairs. "We should feel little uneasiness if America seriously proposed to come to our assistance with war materials. We are convinced the needed supplies exist in abundance in America and only from America can we hope to receive them quickly."

FEED 50,000 LITHUANIANS.

American Relief Workers Follow in Wake of Victorious Army.

PARIS, June 23.—American relief workers are following the victorious Lithuanian army commanded by General Zukauskas, which has resumed the offensive against the Bolsheviki near Dvinsk, according to a dispatch received by Herbert Hoover, commander of the Interallied Food Commission, from Captain Howell Forman of the American Baltic Relief headquarters at Kovno.

In this region there are 50,000 Lithuanians still remaining, and most of them are starving because the country is stripped of all foodstuffs. The Americans are paying special attention to the condition of children in the district. Dr. Aldonisa Slipupas, an American woman of Lithuanian parentage, and a graduate of Philadelphia Woman's College, who is assisting in child welfare work, says that within a week after American food has arrived children who when found were unable to stand have been strong enough to run about.

Typhus is reported prevalent in Dvinsk district.

$10,000,000 DIVIDED BY HOLBROOK'S WILL

Head of Silversmiths Co. and Gorham Co. Gives $25,000 in Public Bequests.

BULK GOES TO THE WIDOW

State Will Collect $500,000 Inheritance Tax and the Federal Government a Larger Sum.

An estate estimated at $10,000,000 is disposed of under the will of Edward Holbrook, President of the Silversmiths Company, and the Gorham Manufacturing Company, who died May 19 last at his country place, Stamford, Conn. The State inheritance tax alone is estimated at $500,000, while the Federal inheritance tax will be more than that sum. The only public requests are $10,000 each to the Stamford Hospital and the Rhode Island Hospital of Providence, and $5,000 to the New York Polyclinic Hospital.

The will makes specific bequests of more than $3,000,000 to relatives and friends. Mrs. Frances S. Holbrook, the widow, of 65 East Fifty-second Street, gets the town house and the country place at Stamford, $1,000,000 in any securities she may select, and the residuary estate. Her bequest, exclusive of the residue, is valued at more than $1,250,000. John S. Holbrook, son, gets a trust fund of $150,000 which is to go to his children when he dies, and Mme. Lillian de Valincourt, the daughter, of Neuilly, France, receives a trust fund of the same amount. The son receives $750,000 outright and the daughter gets the same amount less $25,000 advanced to her for the purchase of jewelry. Her husband, Guillaume de Valincourt, gets $25,000, and Grace S. Holbrook, daughter-in-law, receives $2,000.

Mr. Holbrook left total bequests of $125,000 to other relatives and friends. Mrs. Ellen E. Holbrook, widow of the decedent's brother, Alfred, receives $5,000 and $3,500 with which to buy a house, and Mrs. Catherine Holbrook, widow of Gilbert Holbrook, a brother, gets $2,500. John A., a brother, receives $10,000 and his wife gets a house in Ashland, Mass., and $2,000. The will gives $25,000 to Mrs. Holbrook to be distributed among domestic servants. Bequests of from $1,000 to $2,000 were left to friends and business associates in the Gorham Company.

INVENTOR BRINGS SUIT.

His Discovery, He Says, Will Save Railroads $25,000,000 a Year.

Supreme Court Justice Hendrick reserved decision yesterday on an application by Charles F. Guggenbuehler of Newark, inventor of a babbit lining for bearing boxes on locomotives, which he alleges will save the railroads $25,000,000 a year, for an injunction restraining the disposition of stock in a corporation formed to exploit the patent.

The plaintiff alleged that after this invention had been tried out by Government inspectors in the yards in Jersey City, and they had expressed their satisfaction, C. V. Lutz of 27 Cedar Street induced him to assign his patent to Lutz to enable the latter to present it to the Government because it would not be accepted from Guggenbuehler as an enemy alien. The plaintiff says he has learned that Lutz has formed a corporation to exploit the patent and has given him only 25 per cent. of the stock.

The Gimbel Idea in Clothes for Men is based on immense variety. Our contention is that few men know just what they want till they reach the store, and then they want, not only clever salesmen to tell them what's what, but a variety to back up the salesmen so big that any taste, however individual, may be supplied. At Gimbels the variety is so broad that it takes in nearly all the leaders of America.

THE ANSWER TO THE TURKS.

The answer of the Peace Conference to the appeal of the Grand Vizier of Turkey for what would have amounted to full pardon does not go into detail as to the disposition of the Turkish Empire, but it makes clear to all that the Empire is at an end. Turkey, says the reply, "has thrown upon the "victors the heavy duty of determin-"ing the destiny of the various popu-"lations in her heterogeneous empire. "This duty the council of the princi-"pal Allied and Associated Powers "desire to carry out, as far as may "be in accordance with the wishes "and the permanent interests of the "peoples themselves."

This courageous and sensible decision puts an end to a great fear which has persisted, that the Conference might be moved by the numerous and powerful interests which advocated leaving the Turk pretty much as he is. The Turks had asked that their Empire be left intact, and they had much support from somewhat surprisingly varied quarters. But the answer of the Conference exposes the hollowness of every Turkish argument.

The Turks made a grievous mistake when they brought in the religious consideration and tried to scare the Conference with the prospect of the resentment of 300,000,000 Moslems. They were unwise enough to try to have it both ways—to rouse religious susceptibility at one point and to lull it at another. For of course the great stumbling block is the Armenian massacres, together with the lesser outrages on Greeks and other Christians. The Turks are more realistic than the Germans, more thoroughgoing in their efforts to buy their way out; they have already tried and hanged some highly placed offenders against the Armenians, and they evidently hoped that knowledge of this, coupled with the throwing of the blame on their old Government, would help them out. But there remained the responsibility of the Turkish population in the Armenian districts, which, with some honorable exceptions, assisted in the atrocities with great enthusiasm. The Turks realized that some answer of a convincing sort had to be made to this indictment of a whole people, so they said that the outrages were political and not religious; that Christians were not the only sufferers; that the Young Turks had also condemned to death some 3,000,000 Moslems.

The Conference promptly found this weak point in the argument and called the Turks' own statement in as evidence that there was no religious question possible in a war where Protestant Prussia, Catholic Austria and Hungary, Orthodox Bulgaria, and Moslem Turkey united. Moslems of the world are not likely to rise to the defense of a Power which put 3,000,000 Moslems to death. Other Turkish arguments are equally fallacious. The Grand Vizier's memorandum asserts that Syria, Arabia, and Mesopotamia "are indissolubly linked with Con-"stantinople by feelings which run "deeper than the principle of na-"tionality." The successful revolution led by the King of the Hedjaz, which has liberated the Arabs of the Yemen and the Syrian Desert after a war of years, is sufficient answer to this; and when the Grand Vizier, looking back on the happy days of SULEIMAN the Magnificent, talks of the identity of interest of the different races in the Empire, the Conference reminds him, in language as delicate as possible, of the notorious ineptitude of Turkish government.

The Turks, as the reply says, have some excellent qualities, but capacity to rule alien races is not one of them. The language of the answer indicates that there will still be a Turkish State of some sort, perhaps under a protectorate or mandate, where the Conference hopes the Turks will devote themselves to the arts of peace; but the empire won by MURAD and MOHAMMED II. is at an end. At last the civilized world has gathered the courage to put an end to a scandal and a curse that had lasted centuries too long.

FIVE YEARS AGO.

On June 28, 1914, when the world was interested in such matters as the prospect of revolt in Ireland, the attitude of clergymen to the new dances, the international polo matches and tennis tournament, and the approach of the trial of Mme. CAILLAUX for murder, an imperial highness and his morganatic wife made a visit to the capital of an outlying province in the empire to whose throne he would soon succeed. Concerning this gentleman there had been more speculation than about any other royalty in Europe. The rest were more or less known in their propensities and possibilities; FRANCIS FERDINAND was something of a mystery. And he would inherit an empire which could not long go on as it had gone on for a century or more in the past; when old FRANCIS JOSEPH died, said the wise men, something would happen. What that something would be must depend largely on the new Emperor; so for years a good part of the political forecasts of Europe revolved around FRANCIS FERDINAND. He would break away from Prussia, he would form a closer alliance with Prussia; he would be a man of war, he would be a man of peace; he would liberalize the administration, he would strengthen the powers of the Crown; he would ally himself closely with the Vatican, and so on.

The diary of Count CZERNIN, one of the bright young men of the Archduke's circle, shows us how constantly ambitious Austrians were trying to influence him to support their ideas of what must be done in a country where it was evident that something had to be done very quickly. But what he would have done nobody knows. His friendship for the Slavs, which gave strength to the widespread belief that he would convert the Dual Monarchy into a triple monarchy, with the Jugoslavs at least as an independent member of the triad, had long made him obnoxious to the Magyar aristocracy, which was unwilling to give up its hold on the Slavs; but on the other hand there was a chance that his morganatic wife, debarred from the Austrian throne, might still become Queen of Hungary; and it was far from impossible that a man so devoted to his family and determined to carry them up with him would trade in his ideas of Slavic liberation in return for the elevation of the Duchess of HOHENBERG to a seat beside his own.

We do not yet know and may never know—though already interesting tales have come out of Budapest, and the whole truth may eventually be divulged—whether the assassin who shot the Archduke and his wife five years ago today was merely a hot-headed Bosnian Serb who feared that autonomy within the empire would hinder the unification of the Jugoslav race, or a member of a group secretly inspired by Magyars fearful of FRANCIS FERDINAND's intentions. That it seemed an unparalleled piece of good fortune, an incredibly good pretext, to the Germans who were preparing an attack upon France and Russia, we do know. Austria-Hungary might have been reformed, after a fashion, by the man who was killed at Serajevo; but the whole structure of the Dual Monarchy was so thoroughly corroded that reform would not have been of much use. None of the speculations as to what would happen when FRANCIS FERDINAND came to the throne had gone to such fantastic lengths as to picture the situation today, when Austria-Hungary has been broken into pieces in a war begun on the pretense of revenging his death.

PRESIDENT OR COMMISSION?

Director General HINES gives convincing reasons why the President should have control of railway rates as well as costs, but they are superfluous. Everybody can see now that it is ruinous, and would be absurd if not ruinous, to put control of expenses and earnings in separate hands as Congress manages the national budget. But official comity prevented the Director General from making the stronger argument that the regulators have shown themselves impenitent as to the results of their theories. One Interstate Commerce Commissioner has argued recently that the rates are high enough, and that the railways are fortunate in being under the protective control that has brought them into a financial condition which would mean bankruptcy if the Treasury were not solvent. Another Interstate Commerce Commissioner has recently argued that rates should not be increased because it would inflate the general price level—as though the Interstate Commerce Commission were charged with the regulation of the price level, and not charged with the regulation of rates in a manner to keep the railways solvent. It is true that the Commissioners long had company in the idea that the solvency of the railways was not important, and that it was not particularly in the care of the Commission. But that idea is now dead and buried, outside of the Commission. That it should survive there is a good reason for intrusting the regulation of rates elsewhere.

If the Commission had not tried so hard it would have succeeded better. The trouble with the Commission was not that it was ignorant or malicious, but that it was too scientific and benevolent. It sought to extend its activities through society in general, and to make itself a national Providence, instead of a mere overseer of the railways in keeping their rates reasonable with regard to the cost and value of the service rendered, and the relation of the rates to each other. That appears from the solicitude of the Commissioner quoted regarding the price level. If that were the duty of the Commission it would better be performed by seeing that no more than was proper was added to the prices of goods, on the excuse of increasing rates sufficiently to relieve the Treasury of a deficit of hundreds of millions. The Commission could not well do that, but that is no reason why the rates should be kept too low.

There is no greater single interest of the nation than that the railways should be made self-supporting forthwith. The manner is of less consequence, and other matters are irrelevant. At the proper time the increase can be canceled, for rates should be reduced as well as raised, and raised as well as reduced. When the Commission has seen that its action should fit the occasion it will be restored to public favor, but not sooner.

MILLIONS FOR MUSIC.

The seeming vagueness in the terms of the Juilliard Musical Foundation is, in all likelihood, the result of a purpose which is as definite as it is wise. Worthy students are to be helped to an adequate education, here or abroad; concerts and recitals are to be given "appropriate for the education and entertainment of the general public"; the Metropolitan Opera Company is to be assisted "in the production of operas." That is all. No orchestra is founded, no musical school, no organic institution of any kind. A sum which will certainly amount to five millions, and which has been estimated as high as twenty millions, is to be set aside and the income applied to reinforce activities already in existence.

The temptation to found concrete and permanent institutions is very great—has too often proved irresistible. Sometimes the institution, though it holds forth the brightest of prospects, proves in actual practice to be fundamentally misconceived. The New Theatre set out to build up a repertory stock company on the model of the Comédie Française—and discovered that there is no adequate dramatic repertory in the English language; that there is not a sufficient number of actors among us capable of sustaining worthily the leading parts in the few great dramas which we do possess, and that even if the material for such a company were at hand, the scale of modern salaries would make it prohibitively expensive. After the event, it is easy enough to see that the New Theatre was predestined to failure. The money which was sunk in it, if put aside in the manner of the Juilliard Foundation, would have provided, through all time, for the adequate yearly production of two or three of the Shakespearean classics; and the reputation of these productions would no doubt have attracted the eager service of the best actors and producers of each generation.

Even when successfully launched an institution may be enfeebled or rendered obsolete by changes in the essential conditions of an art or by a shifting in the conditions of life in the community. The Metropolitan Opera itself might conceivably fall upon evil days, in which (as has happened with the drama at the Français) "star" performers have become so expensive and new works of interest so few that the economic basis of the institution would be rendered doubtful. If such a day ever comes to the Metropolitan, the Juilliard Foundation will be at hand, and pledged to render all justifiable assistance. Thus, though it gives us no permanent musical organization, it seems destined to become more deeply and truly conservative than any organization which has been or could be devised.

This is only one half of its promise. By the testator's will the Foundation is required to retain a detached attitude and an open mind. It is thus, or it should be, the most powerful of all factors favoring artistic freedom and progress. A young singer who cannot command an adequate education, a musician or composer who cannot command a hearing, should find it predisposed toward every novel and truly vigorous artistic personality. Operas too rare and too original for the repertory of an institution depending upon popular support should be rendered possible. Organic institutions tend, by their very nature, to become narrow and hidebound. The spirit of such a foundation should be, not that of the professor or master, but that of the friend—the enlightened lover of musical art.

Much will obviously depend upon the personnel of the "corporation" which is formed to administer the Foundation. The most enlightened lovers of art have their foibles, their blind spots in judgment and in temperament. But as between the faculty of an organic institution, the traditions of which are its life, and the chosen agents of a corporation, there can be no question as to which are the more open to new impressions, the more flexible in responding to the needs of the moment. That the Juilliard Foundation will have its ups and downs in enlightenment and efficiency is inevitable; but on the whole it can be trusted, better than most foundations, to change with the times and to gain strength with the successive generations. No benefaction for music of such scope and magnitude has ever before been known. Whatever New York may be today, it seems destined to become a true metropolis in the world of music.

AMERICA IN THE WAR.

Statistical summaries are not usually absorbing, but the American people will find the War Department's book dealing with America's part in the great European conflict intensely interesting. Such wonderful figures of achievement were never compiled before, for no other nation ever accomplished as much in so short a time. The United States was in the war about twenty-one months. It had made the slightest preparations for the part it was to play, and they were legislative for the most part, a looking into the future. Perhaps the passive or waiting attitude was not defensible, but what giant strides were made as soon as the tocsin had rung for war, and what a magnificent finish was made!

The figures march as if to the strains of the hymns of patriotism. More than 2,000,000 soldiers were carried to France in spite of the perilous enemy submarine campaign, and no less than 1,390,000 went into battle to save our allies from defeat. Altogether 4,000,000 men were organized and trained to fight in France. The strength of the navy, Marine Corps, and other branches was raised to 800,000, so that America was giving nearly 5,000,000 men to the cause. In the Meuse-Argonne offensive PERSHING commanded 1,200,000 men, compared with which the largest armies engaged in the civil war seem puny. In the war 50,000 Americans were lost in battle, 236,000 were wounded, and 57,000 died of disease. The number of officers commissioned in the army was 200,000, an increase of 191,000 over the complement of the regular army at the beginning of the war.

It is to be noted that the United States had only begun to register its strength when the conflict closed, for the sum of the draft was 24,234,021. Without unendurable strain the country could have put 10,000,000 into the field, and transported them across the Atlantic if necessary. In a single month 306,000 men were shipped to France. In the nineteen months that the American forces were in action 7,500,000 tons of supplies were sent to that country. The cargo fleet, by the way, was almost all American. British ships carried about half of our soldiers.

When it comes to the figures of the Quartermaster's and Commissariat branches, when those dealing with the job of the engineers in France are arrayed, the effect is bewildering. The number of men is many times multiplied to present the total of blankets, uniforms, shoes, and other articles they required, for it was a violent and wasteful war. Cost could not be considered. The engineers built eighty-three new ship berths in France and laid 1,000 miles of standard and 538 miles of narrow gauge railroads. The Signal Corps strung 100,000 miles of telephone wires, and 40,000 meter trucks were used. No less than 226,557 machine guns were manufactured, and 3,500,000,000 rounds of rifle ammunition produced. And the cost of all was prodigious, $22,000,000,000, "or nearly enough "to pay the entire cost of running "the United States Government from "1791 up to the outbreak of the "European war."

THE REVIVAL OF SPORT.

The reaction from war has brought about what is evidently going to be the greatest sporting season in the history of the country. Even now it has in some respects surpassed all previous records, and in all has surpassed all the years of the war. One has but to turn to the sporting pages of THE TIMES to be impressed with the way in which this country, anxious and depressed for so many years, is going in on a great scale for fun.

Horse racing, for instance, is enjoying greater prosperity than it has ever had, even in what they call "the good old days" when there were "open rings." Thirty-five thousand people at Belmont saw the Suburban; 20,000 saw the running of the Brooklyn Handicap, which is a record for that event during recent years. The daily attendance at all the tracks is greater than at any time since the season of open betting. At Jamaica the average daily attendance used to be 2,500; now it is 10,000.

In baseball both Yankees and Giants have played to larger audiences than in any other Spring games on record. Over 30,000 people saw the Yankees open the season. The Giants had from seven to eight crowds which averaged about 25,000 people. These are the greatest records of attendance in the history of baseball for a single club. The Brooklyns can tell a similar story.

But perhaps even more significant than this is the springing up of minor leagues all over the country, and the fact that they are all prospering. It is well known that it is harder for a minor league to maintain itself than for those from the big cities. During the war from twenty-five to thirty minor leagues went out of existence, and last year there was only one that finished the season. Now they are arising in all directions, and even in the smaller towns are doing as well proportionately as the big leagues.

More tennis has been played this year than at any time during the war. A significant indication is the fact that the West Side Tennis Club is enlarging its stand for the national championship tournament in August. Golf is more of an individual game, but the interest in it may be seen from the fact that there were 5,000 people at the opening championship game.

The revival in college sports is just as evident. At the Yale-Harvard regatta the attendance was larger than in any past year, even in the years before the war. The same upward bound is noticeable in all the other college sports.

A curious reason is given for the great increase in interest in track and field sports. It is that many men are taking part in them who never did before. Discharged soldiers, for instance, learned to take an interest in them in camp, and are now enthusiastic over them.

So it goes all along the line. The nation, released from years of gloom and suppression, is expressing the reaction by plunging into sport. It is a thing that has often been seen at the close of a great war.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

His Grievance Explains His Conduct.

Peculiar as has been the behavior of the man, convicted under the name of HAMBY as the murderer of the two Brooklyn bank clerks, a fairly plausible guess at his determining mental characteristic can be made. Its basis is the brief protest he uttered when Justice FAWCETT, in pronouncing sentence of death, called him a "cold-blooded murderer." That appellation or description HAMBY declared was undeserved, and it is possible and even probable that he really thinks so.

"In reply to your charge of cold-blooded murder," he said, "I wish to state, from the standpoint of one who participated in the robberies, that they all had a chance." By that he meant that he had never killed except when instant and complete obedience to his commands as to the throwing up of hands or the handing over of money or other property had been refused. That he had no shadow of a right to give such orders was an element in these cases to which he is apparently incapable of giving any weight. He offered to his victims what seems to him "a chance," and as they did not take it, he does not think himself a cold-blooded murderer—perhaps does not feel that he is a murderer at all!

Now, illogical and outrageous as is this mental attitude, HAMBY is far from being alone in taking it. The Germans, from the Kaiser down, said and say, in effect, exactly the same thing in regard to the enormities committed by them in Belgium. The Belgians, too, had "a chance." Had they submitted quietly to invasion and to having their country used as the starting point for an attack on France, nothing serious would have happened to them. But they resisted, just as the bank clerks resisted HAMBY, and the world knows the consequences.

Responsibility Beyond Any Question.

A board of medical examiners has examined HAMBY and has reported that he is sane. So he is—in the same way and to the same extent as are the Germans who plead "military necessity" as justification for what they did in Belgium. In neither case is there any reasonable question as to legal responsibility for the acts committed.

As to moral responsibility, so called, the case is not quite so clear, though it is quite clear enough to warrant condemnation and punishment, if on no other ground than that society has a right to defend itself from its enemies. It could be contended that, from the standards of normally civilized humanity in the twentieth century, HAMBY and the ravagers of Belgium alike are examples of arrested development, or what are often called moral imbeciles, and that they could not help doing what they did. But, whatever of truth there may be in such a contention, it is quite irrelevant to a discussion of what should be done to and with criminals of their kind.

HAMBY's declaration that he doesn't mind dying in the chair, because he will come back to earth again in some sort of transmigratory cycle in which he believes, opens another line of inquiry as to his mental condition, but it is hardly worth following, as such a belief is no evidence of irresponsibility and hardly of abnormality.

Reminders of Former Illiterates.

That the Treaty of Peace must be sealed as well as signed by the representatives of all the nations agreeing to its provisions is one of many proofs that men, even the most intelligent of them, cling lovingly to customs the utility of which has long passed away and not infrequently treat them as essential and even sacred for no better reason than that they are old.

When next to everybody, high as well as low, was illiterate, the seal served a useful purpose in the authentication of documents of all sorts. Now that inability to write is more than exceptional—is unknown among such people as will gather around and near the peace table—seals are mere survivals of the past, vestigial organs, as it were, proving nothing except their own survival of utility.

About the best that can be said for them is that they are interesting and harmless. In the second, though not in the first, of these qualities they are unlike the vermiform appendix, which has persisted through a still longer period of uselessness.

Hot Weather Is Not Unconquerable.

About this time, as the almanacs say, it is in order to raise again the old question why as much trouble is not taken and as much money spent in Summer for cooling houses, places of amusement, churches, and other places of human congregation as is taken and spent in Winter in warming those same places. In the way of attaining indoors a very desirable degree of relief from uncomfortable heat, there are no difficulties at all, for refrigeration is a well-known art, practiced successfully in almost innumerable depositories for wares and goods that will not long endure the effects of Summer heat, and it is really strange, especially in the case of the well-to-do, that aestival discomforts easily avoidable should be endured year after year, as if they were inevitable.

And for many there is more than discomfort in tropic weather that has no relief even at night. It often means death to the sick, and a few hospitals already are providing cooled chambers for some of their patients, having come to consider them as well worth saving as are apples and dressed meat.

The general negligence of available relief is particularly mysterious in the theatres. There is no reason why they should not all be pleasantly cool on the hottest nights—none, that is, except that it would involve the burning of some coal—and, if they were, patronage certainly would be increased enough to make the innovation a profitable one.

INTELLECTUALS' APPEAL.

Hamlin Garland Didn't Sign It and Calls It "Wildly Lyrical."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Will you kindly give a little space to a statement concerning the harmless and rather hysterical call of the French "Intellectuals," to which my name is unwarrantably attached as one of the American writers who signed a reply? This paper came to me from a friend in Madison, Wis., and in my reply, which (if I recollect correctly) was merely a notation on the sheet, I registered the fact that I have no sympathy with any socialization schemes. I am an individualist and always have been. As one of the original "Henry George men" I have been at odds more or less with Socialists of the parlor and other varieties for thirty years, hence I am careful to define my position when called upon to sign any paper which aims at International Socialism.

As I did not sign this paper I can see no good reason why my name should be attached to it, although an amiable attempt at literary fraternization is not precisely a crime. I particularly hope to see a closer union between England and France and ourselves, but it will not come about by the signing of a wildly lyrical appeal of the sort which my friend Leonard sent to me. I rejoice in the noble national consciousness which we have developed in the last four years, and I would be the last writer in America to weaken it or permit it to be turned to foolish uses.

War Prophecies.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Three or four years ago different predictions were made as to the outcome of the world war. Some affirmed that Germany might be altogether destroyed. You published a letter, "Germany Will Survive," dated June 2, 1915, in which it was stated:

"The German nation, counting some 60,000,000, cannot be wiped out. She may lose her Kaiser altogether, or his power may be reduced to that of a sovereign of a truly constitutional country like England. In either case Germany would immensely gain, as did France, on having lost Napoleon III. France was not destroyed, either by having lost two provinces or by paying $1,000,000,000 war contribution. Certainly Germany, too, will survive, returning some provinces to whom they rightfully belong, be it Denmark, France, or Poland."

This is what has actually happened. Germany has lost her Kaiser altogether and some provinces rightfully belonging to France and Poland.

In January, 1916, Hudson Maxim stated:

"It is my prediction that the war will last from three to five years yet, and that it is more likely to be seven years than three."

In a letter, "Length of the War," dated Jan. 12, 1916, and published in THE NEW YORK TIMES, it was said:

"The armies of Germany are yet terribly strong, and her economical resources are yet wonderfully great. But the moral prestige of Germany is irreparably gone, and the world at large is now against her. How long can such a situation last? Three, five, or seven years more? No; no nation, however materially strong, can fight so long, under the whole world's opprobrium, and against the foes whose moral force is constantly increasing."

The war lasted since then not three or five or seven years, but two years and ten months.

Banish Poison Gas.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Now that the peace terms of the Allies have been accepted by the German Government, it seems proper to comment upon the one subject of great importance which has been passed by the peacemakers without action of any sort, namely, the use of poison gas in warfare.

Poison gas, the greatest horror in a war of horrors, should be condemned to the limbo of things unspeakable. The use of poison gas in the great war was the most terrible of Germany's deeds, and the shame of that act will forever be the foulest blot on the record of Germany and her rulers. Not the violation of Belgium, nor the use of the submarine against passenger vessels, nor the ruthless deportation and enslavement of captive peoples compares with the use of poisonous gas against human beings. When we see the physical wrecks who have come back from the battlefields of France and Flanders, men who are condemned to suffer through life as a result of gas poisoning, our minds are numbed by the thought that civilized men could have permitted the employment of such fiendish agencies of warfare. The allied nations through the League of Nations, now become a reality, should declare it to be their intention to banish poison gas warfare forever from the world.

MEN.

The snappy men, the happy men, who heard the bugle call—
Who reckoned not the reason—who gave their lives and all.

The swinging men, the singing men—the cadence of the road—
The joyful song of conquest, lending lightness to the load.

The landing men, the standing men—the hours in the rain—
The endless, anxious waiting for the transport or the train.

The striving men, the driving men, who put the business through—
Relentless in their purpose, which was but to die or do.

The leaping men, the creeping men, the stealthy, stern patrol—
The star-shell in the darkness striking fear into the soul.

The flying men, the dying men, upon the battlefield—
The craven and the hero in the light of day revealed.

The broken men, soft-spoken men, who felt the cannon's breath—
Who trod the Vale of Sacrifice and touched the hand of Death.

The graver men, the braver men, back in our arms once more,
Bring brighter revelations than we ever knew before.

EDISON FOR SQUARE DEAL.

Sees New Order Appearing Based on Golden Rule.

"A square deal" as the cure for radicalism was advocated by Thomas A. Edison in his message read yesterday at the close of the Edison Dealers' annual convention at the Hotel Commodore. In his message, Mr. Edison said:

"A new order of things is emerging from the events of the last five years. Whatever may intervene, the ultimate result is going to approach more closely a square deal—for labor, for capital, for the merchant, for the farmer, for every one. The employer who is not square with his employes, or the employe who is not square with his employer, is going to be out of step with the times.

"Demagogues may muster a following of illogical radicals who advocate injustice as a means of gaining justice, and stiff-necked reactionaries may selfishly oppose the progress which destiny has decreed as humanity's reward for the sacrifices that have been made, but in the end there will prevail a just and honest basis for the relations between capital and labor.

"This new relationship cannot be legislated into existence. It will spring from the conscience and patriotism of the people. The time is coming when the unjust employer and the disloyal employe will share equal odium in the esteem of society at large.

"The square deal is fatal to radicalism. There can be no social revolution in the United States or Canada for the very simple reason that our Government and the Canadian Government are founded on the idea of giving everybody a fair show. There will be few disturbances of consequence if a majority of us adopt the square deal as our business creed and our social creed. One lone man who believes in the square deal and has the courage of his convictions might very possibly convert a whole community. Accordingly, the good citizen today, in addition to conducting his individual business in harmony with the Golden Rule, has the duty of raising his voice and using his influence in behalf of justice for all—justice as much for the railroad corporation as for its employes, and for the common laborer as well as for the highly skilled artisan. I believe that Edison dealers will recognize this duty and that they will not be found wanting in its performance."

FOR AN ARMY OF 325,000.

Senate and House Conferees Compromise—Senate Appropriations Cut

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Senate and House conferees on the Army Appropriation bill late today reached an agreement to fix the average size of the 1920 army at 325,000 officers and men. This total is 75,000 less than that proposed by the Senate and 25,000 more than the strength authorized originally by the House.

The agreement, reached after the members of the Conference Committee had talked with General March, Chief of Staff, means that for the last nine months of the year ending June 30, 1920, the army will be composed of 225,000 officers and men, this reduction being made necessary by the surplus above 325,000 during the next three months.

In announcing that 325,000 was the figure agreed upon, Chairman Wadsworth of the Senate Military Committee said that it was the lowest number that could be named while keeping the army within the limits prescribed by the National Defense act, which required the maintenance of an army of 225,000.

Efforts of the House conferees to reduce increased Senate appropriations in part were successful, the Senate appropriation of $15,000,000 for barracks and quarters being cut in half, while that of $3,500,000 for the Signal Corps was reduced to $3,250,000. The Senate appropriation of $430,000 for the Military Intelligence branch was reduced to $400,000.

Senate amendments fixing the salary of C. W. Hare, Director of Sales, and in charge of disposing of surplus war materials, at $12,000 a year, and the Senate appropriation of $140,000 for the Washington-Alaskan military cable, were accepted by the House managers.

ASKS FOOD INVESTIGATION.

Dr. Day Says He Believes Profiteers Fix Prices Here.

"It is my conclusion that there is a definite agreement and a common understanding among men who are powerful in the food control in this city to boost prices beyond reason," said Market Commissioner Jonathan C. Day in a letter sent yesterday to Dr. Eugene H. Porter, State Commissioner of Foods and Markets, in Albany, asking for a complete investigation of the methods of market men in receiving and selling foodstuffs.

"I believe that wherever foods are sold at auction or where prices are named on Exchanges they are being fixed in an unreasonable way, and I believe there has got to be a complete investigation, thorough-going and unrelenting, on the part of those of us who are in public office in order to get a free and open channel uncontrolled by selfish profiteers and speculators."

Commissioner Day said he thought Dr. Porter had authority to make the investigation.

RELAXING PASSPORT RULES

But State Department Still Restricts Travel to France and England.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Passport restrictions to foreign countries other than England and France are being relaxed a little, according to information from the State Department. It is believed that pleasure travel to France will not be permitted this year. The British and French Governments have requested the department not to issue passports to their countries except for urgent reasons.

There is not the same relaxation, however, in regard to the admission of foreigners into the United States from Europe, chiefly on account of the lack of tonnage for passenger carrying. The War Department, in addition to repatriating the United States Army now in Europe, has asked for first-class passenger accommodation, before Nov. 1, for 18,000 war workers, and this demand can barely be met.

NEWPORT ZONE STAYS 'DRY.'

Daniels Refuses to Rescind the Navy's Wartime Order.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—In response to urgent requests from the Mayor of Newport, R. I., asking that the navy's "dry" zone order applying to all naval training stations be rescinded before July 1, Secretary Daniels today telegraphed that the order would not be rescinded, and that no exceptions would be made in the case of Newport. Mr. Daniels said today that he had received two telegrams from the Newport executive, the last one "very insistent," as the Secretary expressed it, asking that the wartime measure be cancelled at once.

Mr. Daniels intimated that the order would not be rescinded until the President officially declared that a state of war no longer existed, and by that time, Mr. Daniels said, he "hoped that the measure would no longer be necessary."

Bill to Repeal Postal Zone Plan.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Repeal of the postal zone plan for newspapers and periodicals is proposed in a bill by Representative Mondell of Wyoming, the Republican House leader. Under the measure second class mail would be mailable at the flat rate in force before the War Revenue bill of 1917 was passed.

DENIES REPUBLICANS SAVED $1,500,000,000

Claude Kitchin Says Reductions Are Due to Rapid Demobilization.

ASSAILS MONDELL AND FESS

House Leader, Replying, Asserts Administration Lobby Seeks to Increase the Items.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Representative Claude Kitchin, former Democratic floor leader, in a speech in the House today, denounced the statement by Republican leader Mondell that the Republicans in the House had saved $1,500,000,000 in thirty days as a "masterpiece of deception."

Mr. Kitchin asserted that the reductions so far made were not due to any wisdom on the part of Republican committees, but resulted from the fact that demobilization had progressed very rapidly, making large appropriations, such as were carried in the bills defeated by the Senate filibuster, unnecessary now.

In replying to one of Mr. Kitchin's allegations that the reductions made by the House were being eliminated by the Senate, Mr. Mondell declared that the Senate was listening to the "Administration lobby" and increasing the items over the amounts carried by the House. He expressed the hope that the House in conference would not sanction many of the increases made by the Senate to the appropriation bills.

"The majority leader," said Mr. Kitchin, "attempts to show, and in substance asserts, that the Republicans within the first thirty days during this session were able to pass six supply general bills, the deficiency bills, and the railroad deficiency bill which the Democrats at the last session of Congress, after three months' effort, failed to pass; in other words, that the Republicans in this House in thirty days have accomplished what the Democrats in the last session, after three months' effort, failed to accomplish.

"He attempts to show that the Republicans of the House, by their economy and retrenchment program, in the passage of these appropriation bills had saved to the people of the United States approximately a total of $1,500,000,000; that is, they saved, he claims, to the Government and the people, in the Army bill at this session $400,000,000, in the Naval bill $225,000,000, in the Sundry Civil Appropriation bill $365,000,000, and in the Railroad Deficiency bill $450,000,000, totaling in round numbers $1,500,000,000.

"Intentionally or unintentionally, it is a barefaced fraud upon public information. Intentionally or unintentionally, in all of its inferences and impressions it is a masterpiece of deception.

"Why did he not go further and tell the whole truth by informing the public that the Democratic House in the last session passed every single one of these appropriation bills, and that the Democratic majority in the Senate were ready and anxious and willing to put upon the statute books every single one of these supply bills, but was prevented from doing so by a plotted and deliberate filibuster of a few Republicans in the Senate in the last few days of the session?

Places Blame on Filibuster.

"No man knows that better than Mr. Mondell. No man knows that better than Dr. Fess, the Chairman of the Republican Congressional Committee, who made substantially a similar statement in a speech on the floor on June 14. Every intelligent man in this House—and that includes some Republicans—knows that every one of these bills would have been written into the statute had it not been for the indecent and unwarranted Republican filibuster in the last days of the last Congress."

Discussing the claim by Mr. Mondell that $400,000,000 had been saved in the Army bill, Mr. Kitchin said:

"I state here and now that this did not effect the saving of a single penny to the people of the United States."

Mr. Kitchin pointed out that when the Army bill was considered last session there was uncertainty as to what time would be required to demobilize the army and how much money would be required. The conclusion of all was there would be an average of 500,000 during the fiscal year 1920.

"So," he said, "they were in duty bound under these conditions to provide for an average army of 500,000. Every Republican on the committee and in the House voted for that."

Turning to the assertion that $225,000,000 was saved in the Naval bill, Mr. Kitchin said every Republican on the Naval Committee "knows that it is absolutely untrue." Chairman Butler's report, he continued, showed a reduction of but $119,000,000.

"But what matters a little difference of $106,000,000 when political advantage is sought to be reaped?" Mr. Kitchin asked. He added that the Administration had made it possible to reduce the size of the navy.

Denies Changes in Railroad Bill.

Mr. Kitchin said the estimated saving of $450,000,000 in the Railroad bill was a reduction of the estimates submitted last session.

"I have here our bill as it passed the House and failed in the Senate," he continued, "and I have the Republican bill as it passed the House. With the exception of the change in the number of the Congress and the name of the introducer of the bill, and the number of the bill, if these two bills are not exactly alike, in every word, in every letter, in every sentence, and in every figure, dollar for dollar, I will resign as member of the House."

With respect to the saving of $365,000,000 in the Sundry Civil bill, Mr. Kitchin said it was by cutting down the Shipping Board funds, and with that exception there was an actual increase of about $30,000,000 in the bill.

Mr. Kitchin said in the Sundry Civil bill the Republicans had reduced the amount carried in the bill last session, which every Republican voted for then, to the extent of $367,000,000.

"How did that come about? Because they made a large part of the appropriation available out of the Shipping Board or Fleet Corporation funds and reappropriated the unexpended balance in the hands of the board or corporation and not out of the Treasury, as we did. They provide for a construction program of $704,000,000. We in last session's bill provided for a construction program of only $649,000,000."

Replying, Republican leader Mondell said that he had accurately quoted the purport of the latter's statement summarizing the reductions made by the House in supply bills. He took exception to his conclusions and alleged that the departments affected by the reductions were busily "lobbying" on the Senate side to have the reductions restored.

Mr. Mondell denied that Representative Kahn had said that the reductions in the army bill were made possible by rapid demobilization. Most of these reductions were made, he declared, because of reduction in the army from 509,000, as recommended by the Secretary of War, to an army of 300,000.

"But, if it be true that the reduction in the army is made possible by action of this Administration, how does it happen that the Administration agents are knocking at the doors of the Senate, insisting that all these sums which have been lopped off should be restored?" added Representative Mondell.

Mr. Kahn interrupted to say:

"The Secretary of War is still demanding from the Senate an army of 509,000, and is making preparations to supply an army of that size."

"Not only the War Department," added Mr. Mondell, "but the Shipping Board, the navy, and every department of the Government is at this hour filling the corridors of the Senate with their agents, lobbying with the Senators to restore every dollar of the estimates, and even in some cases to increase the estimates above those presented to the House.

"If we had followed the dictates and demands of the Administration we would be carrying in these bills at least $2,000,000,000 more than they are now carrying."

WOMAN DEPUTY AIDS IN GUNSON TRIAL

Enright Names Mrs. O'Grady as One of Three to Hear Charges Against Patrolman.

WOMEN TELL THEIR STORIES

Markewich Says He Became Interested Because of Friendship for Kobin Family.

Mayor Hylan's request to Police Commissioner Enright to investigate the arrest by Patrolman John J. Gunson, as member of the vice squad of the Police Inspection District, of Lillian Kobin and Sallie Kobin, whose conviction by Magistrate Mancuso was reversed by Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions, resulted in Gunson being placed on trial at Police Headquarters yesterday on the charge of conduct unbecoming an officer. Since these two women were vindicated by the court several weeks ago the cases of a number of other women convicted on similar charges on the uncorroborated testimony of the arresting officer have been reexamined and the stigma of the crimes charged have been removed in each case by order of the court.

The Commissioner instructed three of his deputies to take the testimony concerning Gunson. In addition to the regular trial officer, First Deputy Commissioner John A. Leach, there were named Deputy Commissioner Augustus H. Porter and Fifth Deputy Commissioner Mrs. Ellen A. O'Grady, the first woman to officially take part in a police proceeding of this nature here. Gunson was defended by Assistant Corporation Counsel Isaac Mayer. The attorney for the complainants was Mrs. Clarice M. Enright.

The statement of the charge against Gunson read: "That said patrolman did, at about March 4, 1919, arrest Lillie Kobin, of 214 Henry Street, and Rosa Cohen, alias Kahn, of 159 South Second Street, Brooklyn, at Forty-second Street and Seventh Avenue, and charged them with soliciting men, said arrests having been declared illegal by Justice Otto A. Rosalsky in General Sessions Court."

Rosa Cohen, after describing the circumstances preceding the arrest and those of herself and companion, Sallie Kobin, said that she had lost her place in Headmann Smith because of her arrest. The delay in appealing to friends for relatives, she testified, was due to confusion she experienced over her arrest. Assistant Corporation Counsel Mayer asked Miss Cohen if she had ever been to the Moulin Rouge, and if she had ever been in a Turkish bath, which she replied that she had gone to the Moulin Rouge on one occasion as a professional friend, a physician, who had been many times in a Turkish bath on Division Street.

Arrested by Three Men.

In reply to questions from Mrs. O'Grady, Miss Cohen said they had been arrested by three men in the fifteen minutes they were walking from the Waldorf-Astor to Forty-second Street. "They didn't even get out of that district, then?" questioned Mrs. O'Grady. Miss Cohen said that was what they were trying to do when they were arrested.

"If you live in Brooklyn, why do you come to New York?" asked Mrs. O'Grady. Miss Cohen said it was more convenient to go to a theatre here than in Brooklyn because of the convenience of a trolley line near her home.

When the girls were arrested they gave their names as Kahn and Cobin, to protect their families and friends, which explains the word "alias" used in the police charge concerning Miss Kobin. Miss Kobin, who is 24 years old, is employed in the U. S. Quartermaster's Department at 45 Broadway. She declared that she was the main support of her widowed mother and brothers and sisters. Since her arrest Miss Kobin testified, her salary, which had been $27 a week, had been increased by $200 annually in recognition of her service.

Mayer asked her if she knew Assistant District Attorney Markewich.

"I have known him since I was a child," she testified. "I sent a letter to his mother when I was arrested and, I understand, she showed this letter to Mr. Markewich."

Did Mr. Markewich interest Judge Rosalsky in your case?"

"Yes."

Did you tell the Judge you had an influential friend in the District Attorney's office?"

"Yes."

Mayer asked her to identify Officer Hoyt, an employe in the intelligence service at the Quartermaster's Department. Mayer asked her if she had told Hoyt that she was married.

"I certainly did," replied Miss Kobin. "I told him I was married and had a daughter 6 years old. The reason I did this was because he was continuously pestering me to go out with him, as were other men in the office, and I thought this would be the best way to stop them. I never accepted the invitation of any employe in the office to go out."

Mentioned Case to Rosalsky.

Assistant District Attorney Markewich testified that he had interested himself in the case because of his friendship for the family of Miss Kobin, whom he had known from infancy. Markewich said he had discussed the case with Magistrate Mancuso, who told him he would ordinarily rectify any error that may have been made if he had the legal power to do it. Markewich said he had later mentioned the case to Judge Rosalsky in the presence of Magistrate Mancuso. Markewich said he believed both girls were of good character, and that they had as much right on Broadway as any man.

Magistrate Mancuso arose and said that Markewich had been quoted as saying that a grave miscarriage of justice had been committed, and he desired to know if the Assistant District Attorney would retract that statement.

"I will be glad to retract any reflection on Magistrate Mancuso," replied Markewich. "I might have said to the newspaper men that a grave miscarriage of justice had been done. However, I believe now that only an honest mistake was made."

Magistrate Norman J. Marsh said he had known Gunson for a long time, and that he had a very good reputation for truth and veracity. Inspector Dominick Henry of the Fourth District said Gunson had been under his command for eighteen months, and had proved to be an efficient officer, who had been assigned to look after moral conditions, especially in the upper part of Broadway in particular. After a complaint had been received from the Federal Government to the effect that soldiers were being affected by immoral conditions, Henry said he had then instructed the vice squad members to arrest women found preventing men.

Mrs. Enright announced that she would make an additional charge against Gunson on behalf of Mrs. Margaret Holden of 177 West Twenty-sixth Street, who had been arrested and discharged. Henry said he could not recall a complaint from Mrs. Holden, but that he would prefer charges against any officer who exceeded his authority. Commissioner Leach adjourned the trial to July 2.

BOSTON MEN TO JAIL FOR INCOME TAX FRAUD

Court Estimates Amount Wool Dealers Owe Government Approximates $2,500,000.

BOSTON, June 27.—William A. English and John H. O'Brien, members of the wool firm of English & O'Brien, were fined $10,000 each and sentenced to serve eighteen months in prison today for conspiring to defraud the Government in connection with income tax returns.

Immediately after the decision was announced in the Federal Court, Assistant United States Attorney Lewis Goldberg stated that the Government would institute a civil suit to recover the money of which it was defrauded. The defendants pleaded guilty to frauds involving $1,379,000.

English & O'Brien recently offered to give $1,500,000 to the Government as payment of their income taxes, and the Internal Revenue Department informed the court of its willingness to accept the payments. The defendants said the offer was conditional on their release, as they could not make it good if they were imprisoned.

The Department of Justice in its civil proceedings will seek to collect both the income and excess profits taxes due and a 100 per cent. fine provided by law. The court in his opinion said that "if the Government is approximately right in its computation the amount of money due it for taxes is nearly $2,500,000."

An account of war profits was contained in the opinion of Judge Anderson. It recited that:

"The defendants are wool dealers, each about 40 years old. They started in business as boys, and served in various capacities for many years as employes. In the Spring of 1914 they succeeded to a business built up by others, not then apparently very prosperous. I infer that they put little or no capital of their own into this business. Their books show profits as follows: Year ending March 31, 1915, $6,346; year ending March 31, 1916, $368,528; year ending March 31, 1917, $518,304; 11½ months, ending March 14, 1918, (when the business was incorporated,) $1,241,771. Total, $2,125,050.

"In fact, during the last period of eleven and one-half months their profits were about $550,000 in excess of the above sum, because withdrawal of the partners to that amount were falsely charged as expenses. These profits of over $2,600,000 in three years are not attributable to the business abilities and energies of the defendants. They were typical war profits—money which accrued to individuals in time of war out of the general misery of mankind."

LEGION OF HONOR FOR MAYO

French Government to Decorate 13 American Naval Officers Today.

The superdreadnought Pennsylvania, flagship of the Atlantic Fleet, which is now at anchor off Ninety-sixth Street in the North River, will be used this morning for an impressive ceremony, when representatives of the French Government will decorate with the ribbon of the Legion of Honor thirteen American naval officers who served with distinction in home and foreign waters during the European war. The ceremony will begin at 11 o'clock on the quarterdeck of the flagship and will be attended by all of the division and ship commanders of the Atlantic and Pacific Fleets whose vessels are in the great ironclad column that is now anchored in the North River. The officers who will receive the Legion of Honor are:

Admiral HENRY T. MAYO, the retiring Commander in Chief of the Atlantic Fleet.

Rear Admiral NATHANIEL R. USHER, U. S. N., who commanded the Third or New York Naval District during the war.

Captain W. V. PRATT of the staff of Admiral WILLIAM S. BENSON, the Chief of Naval Operations.

Captain THOMAS P. MAGRUDER, who was in command of the American naval forces based on Lorient, France.

Captain NATHAN C. TWINING, former Chief of Navigation, who during the war was Chief of Staff to Admiral Sims in London.

Captain ORTON P. JACKSON, Chief of Staff of the Atlantic Fleet.

Captain HUTCH I. CONE, who commanded the naval air forces in France.

Captain JOHN H. HALLIGAN, who was Chief of Staff of the naval forces based on Brest, France.

Captain GEORGE HOWE, who commanded the destroyers that operated in French waters.

Captain T. R. KURTZ, who was Chief of Operations at Brest.

Commander FRANK P. BALDWIN, former Port Officer at Brest, St. Nazaire, and Bordeaux.

Commander R. P. CRAFT, commanding the U. S. S. Aphrodite.

Commander J. C. JOHNSON of the Port Staff at Bordeaux.

The representatives of the French Government will arrive on board the Pennsylvania at 10:30 o'clock and will be received by Admiral Mayo and the fleet staff, as well as by Admiral Henry B. Wilson, who on Monday assumes command of the Atlantic Fleet. Admiral Rodman, the new Commander in Chief of the Pacific Fleet, and Admiral Sims, President of the Naval War College, are also expected to be present.

Service men will be the guests at two theatrical entertainments tonight under the auspices of the New York War Camp Community Service. On Madison Square Roof the men will be entertained at a program of motion pictures and music. A similar show with change of program will be given on the roof on Sunday night.

At W. C. C. S. Unit No. 5, the Community Service's hotel for enlisted men, 55 West 27th Street, a vaudeville show will be held tonight in the new theatre hall especially arranged for Summer shows.

ALBERT P. KELLER'S WEDDING A SURPRISE

Manager of the Ritz Married to Miss Clara D. Guttman by Judge Mead in Greenwich.

DOUBLE GREEK CEREMONY

Miss Flora Benas Weds J. D. Stephanidis, and Her Brother, J. D. Benas, the Bridegroom's Sister.

Friends of Albert P. Keller, General Manager of the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, will be surprised to learn today that he was married on Thursday evening, in Greenwich, Conn., to Miss Clara D. Guttman of this city. Mr. Keller kept the event so quiet that not even the departmental heads of the hotel knew until late yesterday that he had been married.

The couple motored to Greenwich, accompanied by several intimate friends, and were married at the Pickwick Inn, by Judge James F. Mead of the Borough Court. Acting as witnesses were Anthony Kupfal, August Sils, Rudolph Schaefer, Emil Newman, manager of the Inn, and Henry H. White. Following the ceremony a supper was served, the couple returning later to this city.

To comply with the five-day marriage law, Mr. Keller obtained the marriage license from Town Clerk Wellstood several days in advance. The bride gave her age as 26, and Mr. Keller said he was 35.

Mr. Keller was born in Baden-Baden, Germany, and is an American citizen. After hotel training in Switzerland and England, he became assistant manager at Shepheard's Hotel in Cairo, Egypt. After three years in Rome at the Grand Hotel, he served as manager of the Hotel Savoy in London, entering the service of the Ritz system in 1910, when he came to New York.

Sisters and Brothers in Wedding.

A double wedding ceremony took place on Thursday evening at The Crossways, a Summer hotel at Sound Beach, Conn., when Miss Flora D. Benas married John D. Stephanidis, and her brother, John D. Benas, married the bridegroom's sister, Miss Corrina D. Stephanidis, all of New York City. The ceremony was performed by a priest of the Greek orthodox church, and was witnessed by a large party who motored from New York.

Vernon—Huntington.

Howard W. Vernon of Brooklyn and Miss Susan D. Huntington, a sister of John Pettit Huntington of Norwich, Conn., were married quietly yesterday at Northampton, Mass., in the presence of members of the families and a few close friends. Miss Huntington has been a teacher in Smith College. Mr. and Mrs. Vernon will live at 15 South Portland Avenue, Brooklyn.

Bridegroom's Father Officiates.

Miss Margaret Dickson Bridges, a daughter of the late Rev. William J. and Susan Gist Bridges, and the last of her family, was married Thursday to Albert Blakeslee of Cold Spring Harbor, N. Y., by the bridegroom's father, the Rev. Dr. F. D. Blakeslee of Binghamton, N. Y., at the residence of Scott Foster, 175 West Seventy-second Street, New York. There were no attendants and only members of the family present.

Miss George Weds Wm. J. Widman.

Miss Marjorie Harriet George, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred B. George, and William J. Widman, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Widman of Detroit, Mich., were married last evening at the home of the bride's parents in Woodhaven, L. I. At the same time Mr. George, who is Chief Clerk of the Borough of Queens, and Mrs. George celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. The bride was a yeomanette during the war. Mr. Widman was an aviator with the 100th Aero Squadron. The couple will reside in Detroit.

Harry A. Franck, Author, Marries.

Harry A. Franck, author of "A Vagabond Journey Around the World," and Miss Rachel W. Latta, daughter of William J. Latta of Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, were married at the home of the bride's father yesterday. Mr. Franck and his bride first met while in France. He was a Lieutenant in the Intelligence Service of the army, and Mrs. Franck was engaged in war work. After his discharge from the army in Coblenz, on April 12, Mr. Franck made a vagabond walking tour of Germany, and is writing up his experiences.

The Rev. Father James J. Hall.

The Rev. Father James J. Hall, pastor for the last seven years of St. Aloysius's Church of Jersey City, died at 10 o'clock last night at the parish house, West Side and Kensington Avenues, that place, after being unconscious since Tuesday, following a second apoplectic stroke suffered in the last ten days.

Father Hall was born in Providence, R. I., sixty-three years ago and was for seventeen years pastor of the Church of Our Lady of Sorrow in South Orange, after which he went to Jersey City. At his bedside when he died was his sister, Sister of Mercy Mary Anna of Hartford, Conn.

John A. Leach.

DENVER, Colo., June 27.—John A. Leach, 76 years old, of Sedalia, Mo., who in 1873 founded the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, at Port Jervis, N. Y., died here last night of pleurisy. Mr. Leach had come here to attend the triennial convention of the brotherhood, resolved to maintain his record of having attended every convention of the organization. At the first meeting, at which eleven men were present, Mr. Leach was elected Grand Master. After many years service with the Missouri Pacific Railroad, Mr. Leach retired several years ago and had lived in Sedalia since that time. His home was a gift of the brotherhood.

SHONTS'S ILLNESS SERIOUS

Dr. Squier Says Condition Has Been the Same for Several Days.

The condition of Theodore P. Shonts, President of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, was said late last night by his attending physician, Dr. J. Bentley Squier, Jr., 40 East Forty-ninth Street, to be virtually the same that it has been for several days. Dr. Squier said that his patient had not suffered any relapse, as had been reported, but that his condition continued to be very serious. However, he thought that Mr. Shonts would recover if no unforeseen complications developed.

Mr. Shonts has been ill for about four weeks at his home, 930 Park Avenue, and last Sunday it was necessary for him to undergo an operation. His condition for a week or more has been such as to give his family and friends grave concern.

Gen. J. P. Hatch's Widow Dies at 82

Mrs. Adelaide G. Why You Are Paying War-Prices In Peace Times

The serious concern about the mounting costs of necessities was shown not long ago when twenty-six Democratic members of the Massachusetts legislature cabled to President Wilson that "The citizens of the United States want you home to help reduce the high cost of living which we consider far more important than the League of Nations."

A man's suit of clothes that cost $15.00 in 1914 costs $26.00 to-day; shoes that were $9.00 in 1914 cost $15.50 now; a woman's suit that cost $15.00 in 1914 is $24.00 to-day; every item in both men's and women's wearing apparel has nearly doubled in price, while food, shelter, fuel, heat, and light have soared to equally high levels. This condition prompts the Detroit News to declare that "what the eating, sleeping, and dressing world wants to know is whether the cost of necessities is justified?" The consumer finds it hard to understand, according to the Buffalo Evening News, "why six months after the end of fighting, prices instead of taking a fall, are forever rising."

THE LITERARY DIGEST presents this week in its leading article a comprehensive survey of the elements affecting present living costs; comparative tables showing the difference in prices of many articles in 1914 and to-day, the opinions of bankers, merchants, and manufacturers as to the future outlook, and the observations of editorial writers throughout the country on the situation. This article should be of practical value to every DIGEST reader.

"The Digest" Paves the Way to Prosperity

It goes without saying that you want to succeed in life or, if you are already successful, that you want to make that success greater and more far-reaching. There is no royal road to prosperity, it is reached by all sorts of routes, likely and unlikely, but there is a recipe, which, coupled with plenty of persistent application, is as apt to help you to fortune as anything known to humankind. It may be defined in one word—"education." Now, aside from the college variety, which few of us have had and the rest are too busy to think of, there remains only that obtained from intimate knowledge of men and events. To such knowledge there is no surer, saner guide than THE LITERARY DIGEST, greatest of news-magazines, the weekly upon which more than a million Americans depend for their information on the live issues of the day. This ever-increasing army represents our best and highest citizenship. Be wise and enlist in it to-day

PECORD IS NAMED TO REFEREE BOUT

Drexel Biddle and Rickard Will Act as Judges and Warren Barbour as Timekeeper.

BUSY DAY IN BOTH CAMPS

Dempsey Fells Jamaica Kid with Terrific Blow—Willard Is Satisfied with His Condition.

Special to The New York Times.

TOLEDO, Ohio, June 27.—Tex Rickard received from the Army, Navy and Civilian Boxing Board today a wire announcing that Ollie Pecord would be the referee on July 4. The two judges are Rickard and A. Drexel Biddle. The timekeeper will be Warren Barbour of New York, the former heavyweight amateur boxer. Jack Skelly of Yonkers is the alternate referee. The selections seem to please everybody. Pecord is the man desired by the State boxing officials, while Rickard will satisfy the demands of Champion Willard. Major Biddle has been prominent as an amateur boxer and patron of the sport for many years. The presence of Mr. Biddle and Mr. Barbour as officials gives the bout a distinction no championship bout has ever before received.

Pecord will receive $2,500 as a fee for being the third man in the ring. Toledo is overjoyed at his selection. He is 51 years old, and has been mixed up with the boxing game in one way or another for 24 years. In that time he has refereed more than 400 bouts. His full name is Oliver Thomas Pecord. He used to play professional baseball in the American Association and the Western and Southern leagues.

Jack Dempsey, the Colorado panther, knocked his toughest sparring partner, Jamaica Kid, kicking this afternoon in a hot bout at the challenger's training camp at the Overland Club on Maumee Bay. It was in the second round of their mixup and Dempsey and the Kid were going at it hammer and tongs so that Trainer Jimmy De Forest let the round run along for five minutes.

Dempsey Drops Jamaica Kid.

Jamaica Kid was trying to slam Dempsey for all he was worth. He started a savage right swing and it landed flush on the side of the challenger's face. Dempsey didn't like it. He started to rush the Kid and caught him with a left hook on the jaw. The negro's knees sagged and he went down. De Forest and Dempsey both caught him before he reached the canvas. Jamaica was groggy and staggering. That ended Dempsey's work for the day and it was the hottest pace he has set at boxing this week.

Willard liked the cool weather today and put on his purple full-length trunks while at work in the ring at the Casino. The champion boxed eight rounds, three with Jack Hempel, two with Joe Chip, two with Walter Monahan, and one with Bill Scott. Willard showed real speed against Hempel and Chip and danced around the ring at a lively gait when these two were making a strong play for the champion's face. Willard's smiling face and easy-going confidence have the Dempsey crowd puzzled.

Both camps were jammed with spectators. The crowds have reached such proportions that the camps are not large enough to accommodate them. They come from miles around in automobiles of many vintages. Mothers with babes in arms and girls and their escorts all done out in their Sunday best crowd to the camps to see the boxers in action. It was just like a crowd at the old county fair. They make a holiday of it, and the carnival spirit fills the air. Willard and Dempsey are taking in more cash from the curious who are willing to see them train than some of the old-time heavyweights received for scrapping in a championship fight.

Tommy Ryan, the old-time scrapper, arrived today and saw the fighters work this afternoon. He marveled at Willard's size, and was also surprised at the circus methods the present day fighters use when training. Benny Leonard, the lightweight champion, also joined the ranks of sightseers. There seems to be almost enough boxers and newspaper reporters and experts in town right now to almost fill up Rickard's colossal arena.

Willard Is Satisfied.

Willard is pretty well satisfied with his condition, according to his camp followers. Walter Monahan, his leading sparring partner, who has been with him in all his fights, said after the bouts yesterday:

"I don't care how hard Dempsey can hit. Jack will not hurt Willard with stomach punches. Dempsey will be the most surprised man in the world when he pops the champion in the stomach and doesn't get results. Dempsey will also get a shock when he finds how hard Jess can hit that will be very discouraging to the challenger, to say the least. Jess will be a greatly changed man when he begins to fight in earnest. You can judge very much on the way he acts in his practice bouts. Let me tell you Willard boxing and Willard fighting are two entirely different propositions. I don't think any boxer can inherit the ring blues any more quickly that by discovering that his blows do not harm his opponent and think that this will be the case with Dempsey.

"I figure," concluded Monahan, "that this and Dempsey's fatigue in constantly rushing at Willard, only to be thrown back, will soon undermine the challenger's confidence. In a short time his impunitive nature will be crushed and he will be ready for whatever Jess is pleased to hand him, providing that he isn't knocked out while he is still fresh."

Optimism Everywhere.

That may sound optimistic, but it is nothing compared to the kind of talk that one hears around Dempsey's camp. Jack Kearns, his manager, and Bill McCarney are cock-sure that Dempsey will be the heavyweight champion of the world one week from today. McCarney is one of the several followers of Dempsey who says that Jack will knock Willard cold in the first round. He isn't betting on that proposition, however, but is going to stake everything he has on a bet that Dempsey will win the fight in six rounds.

According to Kearns, Dempsey's manager, the challenger is the greatest scrapper that ever lived, an allegation which would be rather difficult for Mr. Kearns to prove. "He has youth and speed," says Kearns, "and is the hardest hitter and fastest puncher that ever lived. You can't beat that combination."

At Dempsey's camp they do not pay much attention to the arguments about Willard's weight and height and reach. They argue that Jack can overcome these with his speed and bulldog aggressiveness.

When Dempsey was told that Pecord had been appointed referee and that Rickard and Major Biddle would be the two judges, he said that he didn't think that there would be anything for the judges to do. As long as Pecord can count ten seconds that is all that Dempsey cares about. He has absolute confidence in his ability, and says this fight will end just as his other bouts have ended, in a hurry.

Won't Be Overtrained.

Dempsey scoffs at the fear that some of the experts here have that there is a danger of his going stale. Jack says that there is no danger of his being trained too fine. The challenger says that at no time in his fighting career has he ever been what fighters call "on edge." He has been trained right up to the limit, but has never gone over the mark. Jack will taper off his boxing activities next week, and today's bout with the Jamaica Kid was the last real hard scrapping he will do. The cut over his right eye has entirely healed, but the scar is still there, and yesterday when he boxed it was covered with vaseline, so the gloves of his sparring partners would slip off it easily. Big Bill Tate did not go into the ring against Dempsey today. Jack walloped him pretty hard around the stomach yesterday and Bill wasn't feeling any too well after that ordeal.

Dempsey's work at the training camp this afternoon was twice as flashy as the work of Willard. The champion's staff of boxers all act tired and worn out. The daily ordeal of having the champion's heavy arms weighing down on them and the force of his punches has slowed them up. With Dempsey it is just the opposite. Jamaica Kid is a fighter every second. Some of the boxing sharps remarked today that they believed that Jamaica Kid could take all of Willard's sparring partners into the same ring and beat them.

Dempsey was just as active as ever today. He worked harder while he had the gloves on than he has at any time this week. It was his last bout before he goes against Willard, and when he toppled over the Jamaica Kid today the perspiration was pouring off his face. The day's work was short, but it was red hot while it lasted. At times he walloped the Kid and Jock Malone so hard that he sent them staggering across the ring. Dempsey took more punches from his partners today than has been his custom. Both the Kid and Malone smashed him hard on the jaw, and Dempsey didn't seem particular about guarding this vital spot.

Dempsey will have only light work on the first two days next week, and he will rest for the two days before the fight. Willard is about finished, and his work from now on will be just enough to hold him about where he is. Those who back Willard to win are not worrying about his condition. They say it is satisfactory for a twelve-round bout.

RANDALL WIRES GOV. COX.

Prohibitionist Representative Calls Fight "Disgraceful Exhibition."

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Representative Randall, Prohibitionist, California, who yesterday introduced a resolution requesting Governor Cox of Ohio to prevent the Willard-Dempsey fight at Toledo, July 4, telegraphed the Governor today that "the enlightened public sentiment of this country is against this proposed disgraceful exhibition and looks to you to prevent it."

BOUT TO BE REPRODUCED HERE

Fighters in Local Ring to Show Willard-Dempsey Fight.

Charley Harvey has secured the 69th Regiment Armory, Twenty-sixth Street and Lexington Avenue, for the afternoon of July 4th, and has made arrangements to reproduce the Willard-Dempsey contest held at Toledo.

Harvey has engaged two well-known boxers, who will show each blow of the championship match exactly as they are delivered in the ring at Toledo. The different incidents occurring at the Bay View arena will be announced from the ring at the armory.

WAGNER TO START DRIVERS.

Will Officiate in All the Auto Races at Speedway July 4.

Fred J. Wagner will be the official starter for all the automobile races at the Sheepshead Bay Speedway on July Fourth. The veteran official was the unanimous choice of the noted speed merchants who will compete in the 100-mile Derby. Howdy Wilcox, who will meet Ralph De Palma in a special match race of three ten-mile heats for the championship of America, suggested several western starters for the special race, but quickly withdrew his suggestions in favor of Fred Wagner, who has handled the checkered flag in most of the important contests in the last twenty years.

Jules Goux, the sensational French pilot who finished third in the recent $50,000 Indianapolis classic of 500 miles, arrived in town last night and conferred with Manager James J. Johnston about entering the match with De Palma and Wilcox. Goux has cabled to France for an extension of time on his army furlough in order to flash his speed in the contests of the gasoline land fliers next Friday afternoon.

A large corps of workmen finished putting the Bay track in condition yesterday, and everything is now ready for the tuning up sprints of the drivers. Ralph De Palma, Joe Boyer, Dave Lewis, Eddie O'Donnell, and several stars who have been overhauling their speedsters at the track side garages, will move out on the two-mile oval today.

Up to date thirteen entries have been approved for the 100-mile classic. The Contest Board will pass upon about ten more today, and it is considered certain that the biggest field of speed demons that ever swung into action at Sheepshead Bay will start in the long grind for money and glory. Tickets are now on sale at all the hotel and ticket agencies in New York and Brooklyn.

TIGERS CHASE JIM BAGBY FROM MOUND

Score Easy Victory Over Indians, 7 to 1—Heilman Leads Attack with Home Run.

DETROIT, June 27.—Hughey Jennings's Tigers handed the Cleveland Indians a jolt here this afternoon, and the Fohlmen dropped another half game behind the Yankees, who were kept idle by rain. Today's victory, the second in succession for the Tigers, was an easy one, Detroit doing all its scoring in the first four innings. In fact, after the home team pushed two runs over the plate in the second inning the visitors did not seriously threaten. It was the third consecutive defeat for the Indians, who were downed by the White Sox Wednesday before opening the series here.

Dauss's great pitching held the Ohioans in check in all except the fourth inning, when the Indians managed to push over the one run that saved them from a shutout. The Detroit veteran held the Indians to five hits, and they were well scattered.

Jim Bagby, pitching for the visitors, was driven from the box in four innings, during which the Tigers got to him for six hits. Uhle, the Cleveland semi-pro pitcher, did not allow a hit in his three innings on the mound, and Tom Phillips pitched the eighth inning without allowing a hit. But the damage was all done before Bagby got away.

Harry Heilman, whose triple proved the deciding blow in yesterday's victory over Cleveland, led the attack on Bagby today with a home run. Young and Bush again starred in the field.

JONES JOINS YANKEES.

New Infielder Reports to Huggins—Two Games Today.

Johnny Jones, an infielder acquired from the Great Lakes Naval Training Station, reported yesterday to Manager Miller Huggins, to strengthen the Yankees. Jones was signed with Fred Hoffman, a catcher, and was ordered to report when he was honorably discharged. Hoffman was also expected to report yesterday but was delayed.

Everything was all set at the Polo Grounds yesterday for the Yankees to begin a tirade against the Boston Red Sox, but the elements knocked the scheduled pastime out of kilter, even before a start could be made. Shortly before noon anxious inquiry at the uptown baseball lot brought forth responses that there was every intention to start the scheduled double-bill at 1:30 o'clock. Then it started to rain and the officials timidly announced that the opening game had been abandoned, but that there was hope of starting the second game, despite the gloomy outlook. This hope flickered and was dissipated, however, when there was no visible break in the overhanging storm clouds.

There will be a double-header this afternoon, the first clash starting at 1:30 o'clock. Tomorrow a single game will be played and Monday the Red Sox's visit here will end with a double attraction, which will start at 1:30 o'clock.

The Yankees' position at the top of the American League column was improved yesterday, through Cleveland's defeat by the Tigers, and the White Sox defeat at the hands of the St. Louis Browns. The defeat to the Indians gave the Yanks a two-game lead on the Cleveland tribe, while the White Sox setback kept the Chicagoans further away from the leadership by one-half a game. The Sox are third, two and one-half games behind the league-leading Yanks.

MANN'S HIT BEATS CARDS.

His Double Gives Cubs Victory by Score of 3 to 2.

CHICAGO, June 27.—Mann's double following Flack's walk and Pick's sacrifice enabled Chicago to defeat St. Louis 3 to 2 today.

AMERICANS DEFEAT ALLIES.

Win Events When Paddock of California Takes Sprints.

PERSHING STADIUM, France, June 26, (Associated Press.)—Better weather, combined with a half holiday in Paris, brought a record crowd to the Inter-Allied games today. The spectators included many school children, who cheered the Yankee contestants as lustily as they did the French entries. American soldiers again filled the east stand of the Stadium and loudly applauded American winners.

C. W. Paddock of Pasadena, Cal., who won the first place in the 100-metre final, ran the distance in 10 4-5 seconds, which is within 1-5 second of the world's record and beat the French record by a fifth of a second. He forged ahead at the 75-metre mark and broke the tape two feet in front of Edward Teschner of Lawrence, Mass.

The American basketball team easily defeated the Italian five by a score of 55 to 17, the Americans showing excellent teamwork.

In the middleweight boxing preliminaries Egan of America knocked out Negri of Italy in the first round. The knockout came thirty-two seconds after the bell for the first round. In the lightweight boxing preliminaries Zoonens, the Belgian champion, beat Martin of Canada.

The Belgian soccer team defeated Canada by a score of 5 to 1.

MANY TO COMPETE AT MEET.

Metropolitan A. A. U. Contest to be Held This Afternoon.

Particular interest will attach to the outcome of the 220-yard dash at the annual Metropolitan A. A. U. junior track and field championships to be held this afternoon at Stevens Tech Field, Hoboken, N. J. Forty-six aspiring sprinters have entered for this race. Because of the heavy entry a number of trial and semi-final heats have been arranged.

The favorites are Gordon Milne, Loughlin Lyceum; J. Tackash, Glencoe A. C.; P. Friedlander, Glencoe A. C.; Arthur Rothschild, Kings County A. A.; W. Frick, Glencoe A. C.; Patrick Feerick, New York A. C.; J. Bonaparte, Salem-Crescent A. C.; Percy Verwayen, Salem-Crescent A. C., and G. A. Burwell, Alpha P. K. C. C.

A field of twenty-seven runners will strive for the two-mile title. Hans Schuster, a veteran distance runner, will make an effort for the title, together with Victor Voteretsas, Millrose A. A.; Alexander W. Feher, Hungarian-American A. C.; Frank Titterton, unattached; J. Wiberg, Swedish-American A. C.; Arthur H. Wilson, New York A. C.; J. Losgar, St. Anselm's A. C.; Al Hulsebosch, Paulist A. C., and Fred Travelena, Mohawk A. C.

Sixteen events are scheduled for decision. The greatest entry in the history of the games has been received. Altogether 287 individuals have sent in entry blanks, representing an entry list of 405. Representatives of thirty-five clubs in the Metropolitan district will vie for the team championship.

NO ACTION ON PROTEST.

Intersectional A. L. Will Render Verdict Monday Night.

A decision in the dispute which resulted when the Paulist A. C. and the Glencoe A. C. tied for the point trophy in the recent Intersectional Athletic League track and field meet will be rendered Monday night, when a meeting of the league officials will be held.

No action has as yet been taken on the protest submitted by the Glencoe A. C. This and other details of the case will be discussed at the coming meeting, when it is expected final disposition of the point trophy will be made.

HITS BY ROUSH WIN GAME.

Outfielder Helps Reds Beat the Pirates, 5 to 2.

PITTSBURGH, June 27.—Cincinnati defeated Pittsburgh today 5 to 2, mainly through the batting of Roush for the visitors. He made two singles and a double off Carlson, and a triple off Mayer. He also made two clever catches in centre field, one of them robbing Stengel of a homer. Luque relieved Fisher in the second, owing to Fisher's wildness, and held the Pirates safe all the way.

A. H. MAN WINS NET TITLE.

Defeats C. G. Gill for West Side Club's Trophy.

Alrick H. Man, Jr., former Captain of the Yale University tennis team, is this season's champion of the West Side Club, his victory in the final round of the Class A tournament having been gained at the expense of Commander C. G. Gill of the United States Navy, whom he defeated in straight sets, 7—5, 6—4, 6—4. Man's final bracket was won by the defeat of Frank H. Ross, while Commander Gill advanced by winning from John K. Winkler in two out of three sets. The West Side Club doubles title is now held by Ralph J. Gatcomb and Dr. E. W. Davenport, who won three out of four sets from Julian S. Myrick and William Alex Campbell in the final round.

FAVORITES JUSTIFY FAITH OF BACKERS

Four Choices Win on Sloppy Track at Aqueduct—Recount Captures Handicap.

Racing was a semi-amphibious sport at Aqueduct yesterday, yet favorites won in the four best-filled races, and in the two with a scant array of starters, respectively three and two horses, the one at the longest price won, to the glee of a select few who make it a rule to always back the outsider in a race when only a brace or a trio goes to the post.

Rain fell incessantly from a dull, gray sky and it was raining throughout the morning in town, yet 5,000 gathered for the sport offered by the Queens County Jockey Club. Wet but cheerful, fully 100 layers of odds were on the lawn. The anglers for memory wagers scattered bait in the way of odds and had plenty of nibbles. Only the tuneful strains of the band were bone dry.

However moist, the jockeys finished in clean jackets, for the spongelike sand at Aqueduct absorbs water and the soil is not picked and flung in gobs by the hoofs of the horses as on a clay track. A stretch of water as wide as a trout brook covered the course all around the inner rail and the finishes were in splashes that suggested a swimming race.

A. K. Macomber's Fruit Cake was the mermaid of the second sprint, for mares three years old and upward, and won by five lengths, but the spectacular marked the dash for the place between Ophelia and Quietude, wearing the "Barbarity" scarlet of A. H. Morris, seldom seen in these days, the former getting it by a neck.

Two year olds opened and closed the card. The first race was for fillies of that age, Phantom Fair romping in three lengths in the lead, while Betsinda, second, led Sweet Apple by two lengths. Merry Sinner, a filly of size and substance that dwarfed the others in bulk, was fourth, a length away. In the last race eleven faced the starter. It was a five-furlong dash for maiden two year olds. The damp throng made Brookholt an odds-on favorite. The son of Ballot proved faithful to his trust and won by a length easily, Furlough beating Bucklaide by that distance for the place. Rory o' More was a disappointment to many.

Questionnaire, after his good showing in the Brooklyn Handicap, was the favorite in the third race for three-year-olds. With only three to start, the test revealed that the Zeus colt is none too partial to sloppy going, for the pace throughout was furnished by Crystal Ford and Thunderclap. Off in front, Crystal Ford proved the right one for the winners to follow. Although Thunderclap made a strong finish, he was beaten by a neck. It was a beautiful race between the two throughout, both running in the middle of the track to avoid the water. Questionnaire, when he made his run at the turn into the stretch, was taken up on the far outside and some criticised Rice for not trying to splash through on the rail.

Only Recount and Woodtrap started in the Raceland Handicap, the odds slightly favoring the latter. But Andrew Miller's four-year-old led throughout, gliding through the water as though he had fins instead of hoofs, and captured the verdict by a length, the second of Ballot's get to win. Woodtrap, perhaps, laid too far out of it in the earlier part, for he closed rapidly in the stretch but had too much to do.

The lightweighted three-year-old filly, Dottie Vandiver, made the most of the 87½ pounds she carried and set a stiff pace in the fifth, a mile race with selling allowances. At one time she led by ten lengths, with Nightstick, who was off in front with the filly, always following the pace. Kilts, 2d, off third, and well fancied, dropped back as though he feared wetting his feet. In the stretch Nightstick collared Dottie Vandiver and, in a finish that brought the onlookers to their feet waving umbrellas, he won by a neck. The two were eight lengths in front of Snapdragon, 2d.

Paul Connolly of Philadelphia said at the track that he has sold the three-year-olds, Roi Craig and Wyndover, to Mrs. Payne Whitney, of the Greentree Stables. They will be put to jumping in preparation for the Harbor Hill and the other three-year-old races over the sticks.

OFFER NEW NET PRIZES.

Seabright Bowls to Replace Famous Achelis Cup.

When R. N. Williams, 2d, won the Achelis Cup at the tournament at the Seabright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club in 1916, one of the most famous trophies in tennis passed out of competition. It had been up for fourteen years, during which time the names of Wright, Larned, Alexander, Little, Clothier, Niles, Long, and Pell had been inscribed upon it, in addition to that of Williams.

Because of the prominence in tennis of the men who had their names on this cup, it achieved an unusual distinction. This the club wishes to maintain and to that end it has put up a new bowl for singles to be known as the Seabright Bowl, and a pair for doubles, these also to be designated as the Seabright Bowls. They represent not only the club's interest in tennis, but the friendly attitude toward the game of the whole community which has enjoyed in the past some of the most thrilling matches played in the East. They will be offered for the first time in this season's tournament starting July 28.

In announcing the decision to put new trophies in competition, Bernon S. Prentice, Chairman of the Tennis Committee, said, "These trophies are given under conditions somewhat similar to those governing the Achelis Cup. They are to be won three times, not necessarily in succession, and the holder in each case is to play through. The club and its friends welcome this opportunity to show their interest in tennis and it is our hope that these bowls may achieve a record as distinguished as that of the Achelis Cup.

"The committee is particularly interested in the doubles bowls because it is our feeling that not enough inducement has been given teams in the past to continue in the game season after season. Looking back over the records there appear only a few teams which played together any number of years—for instance, Ward and Wright, Hackett and Alexander, and McLoughlin and Bundy. When the immense number of players in the country is considered, it would seem as though this number should be much larger. It is our feeling that if there are trophies of some traditional interest, such as we hope the Seabright doubles bowls will acquire, that factor would be an incentive for teams to continue playing doubles year after year, when their members might have stopped tournament play in singles. Every one wants to see the doubles game developed and the Seabright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club is taking what is sincerely hoped will be a step for improving this branch of tennis."

The prizes will be in play for the first time during the tournament which begins July 28. This is one of the most important grass events in the country, as it always attracted the entry of players who are in line for the championship. Particular effort will be made this season to have a strong field and as the club has eighteen excellent grass courts in use there will be a splendid setting for the tournament. The committee includes Bernon S. Prentice, F. B. Alexander, George Bodman, Holcombe Ward, Hooker Talcott, Ford Johnston and Frederick C. Inman.

Regatta Today for Rowing Club.

The Metropolitan Rowing Club will conduct its thirty-ninth annual regatta on the Harlem River this afternoon. Four events were scheduled, including a novice single gig race, in which there are six entries; a mixed double gig, which has attracted ten pairs, and which will be decided in three heats; a centipede race, with six quartets, which will be run in three heats, and an eight oared shell race, in which three crews will strive for the laurels. In addition to the rowing races, a fifty-yard swimming race will be conducted. Eight members have entered for this race.

DECIDE TO REVIVE TITLE POLO PLAY

National Championships Will Be Played at Philadelphia, Beginning Sept. 15.

Polo has followed the major sports and decided to revive the national championships, which have been a blank since 1916. The game furnished so many players to the war that there was none left behind to play, anyhow, except men too young or too old for active service. At the annual meeting last Winter, the Polo Association voted to start up club tournaments but not to attempt to renew the national championships until the mixups, due to the war, had been straightened out. Now, however, the committee, at a special meeting called by H. L. Herbert and William A. Hazard, has voted to play the championships at the Philadelphia Country Club, Bala, Penn., beginning on Sept. 15.

The action was in accordance with a canvass by mail of the 300 clubs in all parts of the country. Two questions were asked: If it was advisable to revive the championships, and in that contingency should they be played, as has been the case since 1909, at the Point Judith Polo Club, Narragansett Pier, R. I. The ballot favored the taking up of championship play, but not until about the middle of September. The latter request automatically put the Point Judith field out of the running, as the season at Narragansett Pier ends on Labor Day.

The senior championship is now held by the Great Neck Polo Club, the winning team having been Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., J. Watson Webb, Malcolm Stevenson and Louis E. Stoddard. The junior title is held by Meadow Brook Third, which played F. S. von Stade, Raymond Belmont, Thomas Hitchcock, Jr. and Morgan Belmont. There was no finish for the open championship at Point Judith in 1916, rain having forced the final off the cards. The successful semi-finalists were Meadow Brook, F. S. von Stade, J. M. Waterbury, Jr., H. P. Whitney and Devereux Milburn; and Coronado, H. M. Heckscher, Harry East, E. W. Hopping and Malcolm Stevenson. A "rump final" was played at Meadow Brook late in the Fall, with a somewhat different lineup, which Meadow Brook won, but this is not counted on the Polo Association records.

The polo championships were started in 1895, at the Prospect Park parade ground, Brooklyn. There will probably be an invitation club tournament at Narragansett Pier in August, under the direction of P. S. P. Randolph, President of the Point Judith Polo Club.

SCHOONERS IN RACE TODAY.

Will Compete in Open Regatta on Long Island Sound.

OYSTER BAY, L. I., June 27.—For the first time in two years the members of the Seawanhaka-Corinthian Yacht Club will hold an open regatta on Long Island Sound tomorrow. In 1917, when the United States went to war, the Center Island Club managed to hold a few races for its Fish Class. Last Summer there was practically no entertainments at the club, and the organization made no attempt to hold any regattas. So far this Summer the club has held only closed regattas.

The feature of the racing tomorrow will be the first appearance of the big schooners. De Forest Hicks, Chairman of the Regatta Committee, stated today that both Miladi, the property of Captain George W. Scott, Larchmont Yacht Club, and Zahra, which belongs to former Commodore Howard C. Smith, would make their first appearance of the year. The new O yachts of the Larchmont Yacht Club also will sail.

In addition to the classes already announced, Richard Monks, Chairman of the Race Committee of the Indian Harbor Yacht Club, sent word yesterday that both the Indian Harbor Arrows and the one design class of the club would be at the starting line. These yachts as a rule never race excepting in the club regattas of the Greenwich Club. E. C. Benedict's steam yacht Oneida will be used as the committee boat.

YACHTS IN DISTANCE RACE.

Only Four Start Cruise to Albany and Return.

Only four yachts came to the starting line for the resumption of the annual long distance motor boat race of the New York Motor Boat Club yesterday, and according to the committee not a single open motor boat would start on the brush today. The yachts that started last night were all in the cruiser class. They were sent away at 7 P. M. The starters and their handicaps were as follows:

MARSTON, GARDNER, WARD, AND PEACOCK SURVIVE IN APAWAMIS GOLF TOURNAMENT

LOW SCORES RULE IN APAWAMIS GOLF

Max Marston Reaches Semi-Final Round by Easy Victory Over Lima.

JOHN M. WARD WINS MATCH

Garden City Player Defeats Gwathmey—Grant Peacock Downs Bermingham of Wykagyl.

Greens heavy with moisture, thereby encouraging bold play, in a measure accounted for the unusually low scoring in the first and second match rounds of the invitation golf tournament at the Apawamis Club yesterday. For instance, in the afternoon Max R. Marston of Baltusrol opposed to Charles F. Lima, Jr., of Mahopac moved along at a 72 pace, one better than par. He won, 7 and 6, and as a result will meet W. H. Gardner of Buffalo in the upper semi-final bracket today.

The other winners were John M. Ward of Garden City and Grant Peacock of Princeton, who will fight it out in the lower semi-final bracket. The first named defeated Gaines Gwathmey of the home club, while Peacock took care of T. V. Bermingham, the pride of Wykagyl.

To return to Marston, the Baltusrol golfer began the day by defeating W. F. Ladd of Rockaway, 4 and 3. They had to play through pouring rain, but Marston went out in 39, good enough to place him 3 up at the half-way point. After the match ended on the fifteenth green there was no thought of bye holes.

Marston Plays Well.

Later on, though, with the rain practically over, the golfers entered into their matches with more enthusiasm. Marston, excepting for a lapse on the first green where he had three putts, played rare golf against Lima. The New Jersey man saved a stroke at the third by running down a putt from the green's edge, for a 3, a stroke under par. He reached the turn in 36, where he stood five up.

A second shot to the eleventh left him a fifteen-foot putt which he sank for a "bird" 3, and another 3 at the twelfth ended the match. Marston was going so well that he decided to finish out the five holes. The only 6 on his card came at the long fourteenth where he fell a few feet short of the green on his third. Max also missed a two-footer at No. 16, but made amends with a "bird" at the 187-yard seventeenth. He had a ten-foot putt for a 3 to get a 71 at the home hole, but the ball hit the back of the cup and stayed out. His round of 72 was carved out as follows:

Out ..... 5 4 3 4 3 4 4 4 5—36
In ..... 4 4 3 5 4 4 4 4 4—36—72

Gwathmey and C. H. Paul of Gedney Farms had a keen match in the first round despite the rain. The Apawamis man "stole" the fifth hole in 2 with a long putt, but Paul retaliated at the sixth by chipping in with a mashie for a 3. The same player also won the twelfth in 2, laying his tee shot to within five inches of the cup.

Paul thought he had the long fourteenth hole won after his opponent pulled a drive to the rough. The Apawamis golfer finally laid a fourth shot with his mashie, stone dead, and got a half in 5. He won 2 and 1, getting a round in 72 to the other's 75.

Gardner In Fine Form.

Gardner played in his best form all day. In the morning the Buffalo golfer went out in 38 against F. R. Hill of Canoe Brook, while later on the former collegian went at even a faster pace when opposed to B. T. Allen of Fox Hills. Gardner stood 3 up at the turn, having gone out in 38, which included three putts on the first and ninth greens. Allen's putting was also weak, as he missed short ones at the first, third, fourth and ninth.

The match ended at the fourteenth green, where Gardner's card for the five holes showed one under 4's. They cut the fifteenth and sixteenth, playing the last two, and at the rate Gardner was traveling he might have had a 71.

After the fast pace set by Gwathmey in the morning his Apawamis friends rather looked to see him win again, but Ward, always a good match player, managed to wear the younger man down toward the end. At the tenth Gwathmey stood 2 up, but they were level at the sixteenth. He had a chance to square accounts on the home green, but rimmed the cup on a long try for a 3. That left Ward a winner by 1 up.

Peacock, who had gone at a 75 clip in the forenoon against D. W. Bulsberger, another Princeton entrant, went along practically at the same pace against Bermingham. The last-named found it impossible to play in old-time form, not having fully recovered his strength after a recent illness.

The summary follows:

First Sixteen.—First Round—B. T. Allen, Fox Hills, beat A. B. Ashforth, Garden City, 3 up and 1 to play; W. H. Gardner, Buffalo, beat F. K. Hill, Canoe Brook, 3 up and 2 play; Charles F. Lima, Jr., Mahopac, beat F. R. Holland, Wee Burn, 3 up and 2 to play; Max Marston, Baltusrol, beat W. F. Ladd, Rockaway, 4 up and 3 to play; Gaines Gwathmey, Apawamis, beat C. H. Paul, Gedney Farm, 2 up and 1 to play; John M. Ward, Garden City, beat C. H. Conner, Apawamis, 5 up and 4 to play; T. V. Bermingham, Wykagyl, beat H. D. Brewster, Scarsdale, 6 up and 4 to play; Grant Peacock, Princeton, beat G. H. Bulsberger, Princeton, 3 up and 3 to play.

Second Round—Gardner beat Allen, 5 up and 4 to play; Marston beat Lima, 7 up and 6 to play; Ward beat Gwathmey, 1 up; Peacock beat Bermingham, 3 up and 2 to play.

Brown, Apawamis, beat Captain J. L. Walker, unattached, by default; D. J. Herring, Princeton, beat A. F. Gray, Arcola, by default; W. S. Wonham, Apawamis, beat H. Van Gerbig, Jr., Greenwich, 4 up and 2 to play; P. S. McLaughlin, Scarsdale, beat B. S. Bottome, Fox Hills, by default; Prescott Metcalf, Apawamis, beat Pardee Erdman, Princeton, 5 up and 4 to play; R. Russell, Apawamis, beat W. P. Pickett, Crescent, 3 up and 2 to play.

Second Round—Scholle beat Driggs, 2 up; Herring beat Brown by default; McLaughlin beat Wonham, 2 up; Russell beat Metcalf, 2 up.

Fifth Sixteen.—First Round—A. W. Haigh, Scarsdale, beat J. B. Elmendorf, Apawamis, 4 up and 3 to play; W. Scully, Yale, beat C. M. Strater, Apawamis, 4 up and 3 to play; H. A. Allen, New Canaan, beat W. G. Bibb, Sleepy Hollow, by default; C. R. Gillett, Wykagyl, drew a bye; A. D. Tappan, Wee Burn, beat E. C. Holsten, Scarsdale, 5 up and 4 to play; Artemus Holmes, Wee Burn, beat E. W. Harris, Apawamis, by default; H. V. Conrad, Scarsdale, beat J. P. Tilden, Apawamis, by default; B. Van Gerbig, Apawamis, drew a bye.

Second Round—Haigh beat Scully, 6 up and 4 to play; Allen beat Gillett, 6 up and 5 to play; Tappan beat Holmes by default; Conrad beat Van Gerbig, 5 up and 4 to play.

JONES LOSES TO WHITNEY.

Youthful Golf Champion Defeated in Semi-Final Round.

NEW ORLEANS, June 27.—Nelson Whitney of New Orleans defeated Bobby Jones, Jr., of Atlanta, 7 up and 6, and Louis Jacoby of Dallas defeated Whitney Bouden of New Orleans, 3 up and 2, in the Southern Golf Championship semi-finals here today, and qualified for the final match of 36 holes to be played tomorrow.

The defeat of Jones, 1917 champion, was probably the most thorough, he has experienced in championship play. He was a trifle off his game, going out in 40 for the first nine of the afternoon round, while Whitney was out in 35, playing two holes under par. The turning point of the round occurred at the fifth hole, where Whitney made a sensational 20-foot putt for a "birdie" 2, and again at the sixth hole he made a phenomenal recovery out of a ditch on his third shot, and holed out in 4.

Jones was on the green in two, but lost the hole on three putts. From the ninth hole on, it was conceded by the gallery of 700 persons that Whitney had reached the finals.

The Jacoby-Bouden match was hard-fought throughout. Bouden made a gallant attempt to overcome Jacoby's lead of 4 up after the turn. Bouden won the tenth, but lost the eleventh, halved the twelfth, won the thirteenth, halving the fourteenth. Despite the fact that he drove two balls out of bound he halved the fifteenth. The sixteenth was halved in four, the match going to Jacoby. Jacoby shot at 74 in the morning round.

MRS. DALEY WINS TITLE.

Defeats Mrs. Baker for Women's Golf Championship of Boston.

NEWTON, Mass., June 27.—Mrs. E. W. Daley, former Southern champion, defeated Mrs. F. H. Baker, former Philadelphia district champion, today, in the final round for the Women's Golf Association of Boston Championship, at the Braeburn Country Club, 2 up.

Both players are members of the Oakley Country Club.

WILL MEET FOR NET TITLE.

Williams and Tilden in Final at Wilmington.

WILMINGTON, Del., June 27.—By their victories today, R. Norris Williams 2d and William T. Tilden 2d, both of Philadelphia, won the right to meet in the final round tomorrow for the lawn tennis championship of Delaware. The honor will go to the winner of the match, as George Church of Princeton, the champion, is unable to defend his title because of an injury received in an airplane accident.

In the fifth round today Williams defeated H. C. Johnson, Massachusetts champion, 6—4, 6—1, while in the semi-final he eliminated Stanley Pearson, Philadelphia, 6—2, 6—1.

Tilden defeated Carl Fischer in a fifth round match, 6—2, 6—0, and in the semi-final he disposed of Wallace Johnson in a hard fought match, 2—6, 9—7, 6—4, Pearson defeated Rodney Beck in the fifth round, 6—1, 6—1, and Wallace Johnson eliminated Craig Biddle, 6—3, 6—2.

Rain interfered with play in the doubles, only three matches being played. In the third round Harvey Lake and R. L. James defeated F. Thomas and K. Miller, 6—2, 5—7, 6—4. Lake and James were eliminated in the next round by F. E. Dixon and A. D. Baird, 6—2, 5—4, default.

R. Norris Williams 2d and H. C. Johnson entered the semi-final round by defeating Carl Fischer and Rodney Beck in the fourth round, 6—1, 6—2.

WALKER AND DEAN MEET FOR TITLE

Will Decide Individual Intercollegiate Golf Championship Today.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 27.—A. L. Walker, Columbia, and J. S. Dean, the young Princeton golfer, will meet tomorrow over the Merion Cricket Club course in a 36 hole match for the individual intercollegiate championship. Princeton won the team title in the 72 hole medal play, and has a better than even chance to capture all the honors by taking the match play crown also.

Walker won his way to the finals this afternoon by defeating T. B. Davis, Yale, in the semi-finals, 6 up and 5 to play, while Dean had little trouble in disposing of R. H. Wales, Harvard, in his semi-final match, 6 up and 5 to play.

In the second sixteen all honors go to Pennsylvania. There were three of the four players in the semi-finals from Pennsylvania, and the outsider, D. Jones of Harvard, was beaten by R. K. Hanson, who had advanced to the ultimate round by drawing byes in the lower half of the bracket.

After Walker had disposed of Davis in the second round played in the morning, interest was largely centred in Dean's match with Wales. Rain fell most of the morning and during the greater part of the afternoon, but in spite of the fact that the fairways and greens were slow, the important matches of the day were both well played and well contested.

Although Dean is better known in Philadelphia because he won the qualifying rounds for the Linnewood Hall Cup at Huntingdon Valley and the medal at the Wilmington Golf Club invitation tournament, Walker has a lot of backers for tomorrow's match in the finals. Walker won the Fox Hills tournament and was runner-up in the Metropolitan tournament. Both of the golfing achievements have stamped him as a high grade golfer.

When the Dean-Wales match in the semi-finals began this afternoon the rain was falling fast, and only a few followed the players around the course, but those who did saw an excellent match, in which Dean, in spite of the fact that he admittedly played safe, made an excellent medal score and deserved to win.

The summary:

First Sixteen.—Second Round—T. B. Davis, Yale, defeated R. M. Round, Pennsylvania, 3 and 2; A. Walker, Columbia, defeated H. S. Lake, Harvard, 5 and 4; J. S. Dean, Princeton, defeated Sid Scott, Yale, 3 and 2; R. H. Wales, Harvard, defeated F. W. Baker, Harvard, 3 and 2.

Second Sixteen.—Second Round—H. E. Calves, Pennsylvania, defeated E. P. Duncan, Harvard, 5 and 4; Daniel Rhoades, Pennsylvania, defeated Leigh Liggett, Harvard, 6 and 5; D. Jones, Harvard, defeated K. W. Thorington, Princeton, 3 and 2; R. K. Hanson, Pennsylvania, drew a bye in the last bracket and entered the semi-finals.

First Sixteen.—Semi-finals—Walker defeated Davis, 5 and 3; Dean defeated Wales, 6 and 5.

Second Sixteen.—Semi-finals—Rhoades defeat Calves, 2 up; Hanson defeated Jones, 1 up.

RAIN HALTS NET CONTESTS.

Three Local Tournaments Delayed by Weather.

Even the hardy women tennis players who appeared for their Middle States championship matches at the Orange Lawn Tennis Club on Thursday had to bow to the elements yesterday, and all local courts remained idle, with three important tournaments held up. In the event of clear weather the women's singles are to be played at South Orange this morning, with a full schedule of men's singles and doubles all afternoon, and an effort will be made to complete the entire tournament tomorrow.

At the Kings County Club, Brooklyn, the clay courts have been a lake for the past two days, and a number of singles matches, as well as practically all of the doubles of the Long Island championship, remain to be played over the week-end. The Manhattan Junior Championship at the New York Tennis Club was also brought to a standstill by the rain, with Travers Le Gros the first youngster to reach the semi-finals, through his two hard-won victories of last Wednesday. With the North Side championship beginning at the University Heights Tennis Club today, and the Eastern New York State tournament scheduled to open at Pleasantville July 5, some serious conflicts are likely to occur. The final round and one semi-final of the Harlem doubles also still remain to be played, this event having been delayed by the absence of Ichiya Kumagae and Harold Taylor in the South.

KNOTTY PROBLEMS SOLVED AT TENNIS

National Association Issues Manual to Aid Official Move for Effective Umpiring.

The United States National Lawn Tennis Association has issued an exceedingly useful manual for tennis umpires and other officials, edited by Edward C. Conlin, Chairman of the National Umpires' Association. An endorsement by President George T. Adee of the U. S. N. L. T. A. acts as a preface to the booklet, which contains the laws of the game, with special notes on difficult cases and decisions, full instructions for all officials, rules for conducting tournaments, making a draw, and handicapping, and the regulations covering all national tennis championships, as well as a significant article on "Publicity for Tennis Tournaments," by E. B. Moss of The Associated Press.

Among the "Cases and Decisions" are some points which may prove eye-openers to even the close followers of tennis. For instance, how many players realise that a server who fails to hit the ball but catches it in his hand is penalised with a fault, whereas if he lets the ball drop to the ground he is given another chance to make a fair service? This case is clearly covered by Law 8, which states that "if the server, in attempting to serve, miss the ball altogether, it does not count as a fault; but if the ball be touched, no matter how slightly, by the racket, or by the server, or anything that he wears or carries, a service is thereby delivered, and the laws governing the service at once apply."

An old decision given by James Dwight still stands, to the effect that a ball may be fairly returned by a racquet thrown at it, and entirely out of the hands of the player. This freak episode has actually taken place in tournament tennis.

How many players know that they may legally return a ball that strikes the back-stop or side-stop on the first bound, provided they hit it before it again strikes the ground? This makes possible a species of squash-stroke of no great difficulty under certain conditions but utterly at variance with the real technique of tennis. It would seem that such a ruling should not remain in the books, for with stationary back-stops and side-stops many an angle shot is possible on the rebound after a ball has been fairly and squarely killed, so far as the possibility of a return on the real first bound is concerned. The frequency with which such a shot can be made is easily demonstrated by any experienced racquet or squash player.

Law 21, which covers this case, reads: "If a ball in play strike a permanent fixture of the court (other than the net or posts) before it touches the ground, the point is lost; if after it has touched the ground, the point shall be played out." A simple case is then given, as follows: "A drive strikes in court, and on the first bound hits the back-stop. As it bounds back, and before it strikes the ground again, the player returns it into his opponent's court. Is it a good return?" The answer is "Yes," and it is an answer which will astonish every tennis follower who has been in the habit of considering any point as ended the moment the ball strikes the back-stop under any circumstances.

Mr. Conlin's own rules of "Lawn Tennis Etiquette" contain some sentences well worth quoting. The players are advised to "look neat and clean on the court," not to "tell the committee how to run the tournament—just to play in it," to "thank the umpire when the match is finished," and, above all, to "read, study and know the rules." For the gallery he has the following advice: "A tennis ball in play moves very fast, and other moving objects in his range of vision distract a player by making it hard for him to follow the ball's line of flight. Therefore, the ladies particularly should be careful to keep parasols and fans in the background."

"Do not applaud or give vocal expression of your feelings while a rally is on, but wait until the point has been played out and then applaud all you want to."

"Do not applaud errors; by that is meant that your approval should be given to good strokes only. Do not applaud a shot that goes out of court or into the net, even if it gives a point to the player you want to win."

"Do not coach the players. Never call 'Good,' 'Out,' 'Let it go,' 'Hit it,' &c., because thereby you are influencing a player's judgment, which is a factor in the outcome of the match."

"If you do not agree with the decisions as they are given, withhold your disapproval."

"Refrain from talking loudly while a match is on."

"Know your neighbors at a tennis match before you criticise a player; friends and relatives frequently attend."

The baseball fan will probably extract a smile from these suggestions, but to tennis followers, who have for years tried to live up to the unwritten laws of sportsmanship, the "Umpires' Manual" will prove exceedingly welcome and of real, practical help. The officiating in tennis matches is improving each season, although horrible blunders are still committed on occasion. Mr. Conlin's booklet should be a warning to all tennis players that they will be held strictly to the rules in the national tournament of next August, if not before.

ARMY ENLISTMENTS SHOW NO DECREASE

Announcement That Overseas Units Are Filled Has No Effect Upon Recruiting.

APPLICANTS SEEK TRAINING

Totals of All Stations, Officers Say, Exceed Other Peacetime Campaigns.

The announcement by the War Department that no more recruits would be accepted for service with the American Army in France and on the Rhine because sufficient replacements had been obtained to fill up all the units overseas has not reduced the number of applications received throughout the country by the Army Recruiting Service. Totals at all recruiting stations are exceeding all marks set in other peacetime recruiting campaigns.

"No cessation of interest in the campaign of the army to raise a new contingent of 50,000 men for the expanded army and as replacement troops has been reported anywhere in the country," said Major C. B. Howard of the Recruiting Service yesterday. "It was announced last week that the first contingent of 50,000 men had been enlisted, and orders were issued immediately by the War Department for the enrollment of a second quota of 50,000 men.

"The cancellation of the offer of service in the American units on the Rhine has turned so few men away from the stations that the numbers have hardly been noticed. Officers attribute the general response to the educational opportunities offered to the men in all other branches of the service and in all other fields, outside of the armies in France and on the Rhine. It seems to be an indication that the desire to serve in the armies in Europe was only secondary, and that the primary desire of all the men was to take the educational courses offered in all branches of the service.

"The offer of the army to allow any recruit to choose his field of service in this country, or in the Philippines, or any other field where we have units, except France, is still in force. The offer to permit any man to choose his branch of the service also is still in force. That the interest in these offers is still high is shown in the report that, on Thursday, 476 men were enlisted throughout the country, with fifty-one in this city."

Among more than fifty men who applied for enlistment at the recruiting station at 461 Eighth Avenue yesterday were two veterans who had served in the British Army. One was James Fay of 419 West Thirty-first Street, who said that he wished to enlist so that he could see more of the world and learn something of American Army methods. He showed honorable discharge papers from the British forces, issued after the close of the Boer war, and said that he was sorry that he did not enlist for the last war. He was enlisted for cavalry service because he told of giving up a job as a horseshoer at $38 a week so that he could join the army.

Another recruit who enlisted on honorable discharge papers from the British Army was Harry Finkelstein of Boston, Mass., who was mustered out of the Royal Engineers last February. He saw action at Cambrai, Mons, in Flanders, and was in several other battles. "Army life has got it all over being a civilian," remarked Finkelstein, as he signed up in the Coast Artillery Corps. "In addition I want to study mechanics, for I've had some experience as a machinists' helper."

40 High School Graduates Chose Service for Technical Training.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—The army air service has been chosen by more than forty high-school graduates of Greater New York this year as a technical institution of higher learning in preference to the technical colleges of the country. More than one-half of this number are financially able to attend regular institutions of learning, but all elected the army to gain knowledge that will fit them as aeronautical engineers at the end of a three-year course. The others are students who would be obligated to work their way through college and have chosen the army because their status will be exactly the same as the boys of independent means and completion of the course is assured.

An energetic campaign is being prepared by army officials to present the opportunities for higher education and technical aeronautical instruction to high-school graduates in all parts of the country. A number of aviation officers will be detailed for this work and educational boards will be requested to include such an officer as a speaker in the graduation program of public schools.

WOULD INCORPORATE LEGION

Bill Introduced in the House to Organize Ex-Service Men.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—The incorporation of the American Legion is sought in a bill introduced in the House today by Representative Royal Johnson of South Dakota. The incorporators named are:

W. S. Bean, (N. C.)	L. Lea, (Tenn.)
C. H. Brent, (N. Y.)	H. Leonard, (Col.)
W. H. Brown, (Conn.)	H. D. Lindsley, (Tex.)
G. E. Buxton, Jr., (R. I.)	O. Mills, (N. Y.)
B. C. Clark, (Mo.)	E. Meyers, (Penn.)
R. Derby, (N. Y.)	F. D. Oller, (Penn.)
E. H. Everidge, (Tex.)	W. G. Price, Jr., (Penn.)
M. H. Foreman, (Ill.)	O. A. Ritchie, (N. Y.)
Ruby Garett, (Mo.)	T. Roosevelt, Jr., (N. Y.)
F. A. Griffith, (Okla.)	A. A. Sprague, (Ill.)
R. B. Haines, (Me.)	J. J. Sullivan, (Wash.)
F. J. Herbert, (Mass.)	Dale Shaw, (Iowa.)
R. Hoffman, (Okla.)	D. G. Stivers, (Mon.)
F. E. Humphrey, (N. M.)	H. J. Tierney, (Ohio.)
J. W. Inser, (Ala.)	G. A. White, (Ore.)
B. S. Jenney, (Md.)	E. F. Hood, (Penn.)
	G. H. Wood, (Ohio.)

The chief purpose of the legion, according to one section of the bill, is set forth as follows:

"That the purposes of this corporation shall be to uphold and defend the Constitution of the United States of America; to safeguard and transmit to posterity the principles of justice, freedom, and democracy for which the members of the military and naval services of the United States contended in the war of 1917-1918; to maintain law and order; to foster and perpetuate a 100 per cent. Americanism; to inculcate the duty of the citizen to the State and nation, and to preserve and develop equality of right and opportunity in the United States; to promote the social and industrial welfare of the citizens of the United States; to make right the master of might both in domestic and international affairs, and to promote peace and good will among the people of the United States and the nations of the earth; to cement the ties of comradeship formed in service; to preserve the memories and incidents of the Great War, and to consecrate the comradeship of its members by their devotion to mutual helpfulness and service to the nation."

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Ed Wynn has been added to the cast of "Gaieties of 1919," which will open at the Forty-fourth Street Theatre next Tuesday night.

"At 9:45" will open at the Playhouse tonight, as originally announced.

Peggy Wood will be costarred with Donald Brian and Wallace Eddinger in "Buddies," which will open at Stamford on Aug. 4. Later in the season Miss Wood will be starred in a new play.

There will be no matinee of "La, La, Lucile" at the Henry Miller Theatre on AMERICANIZATION CLASS.

Men Get Citizenship Papers for Diplomas at First Commencement.

The first commencement exercises of the Americanization classes connected with the Bayonne public schools were held last evening at Roosevelt School, and the graduates received as diplomas citizenship papers. It was the most unusual graduation ever held in the State, and the ages of the graduates ranged all the way from 21 to 62, and fathers and sons who had studied in the same classes during the two-year term received diplomas together. A number of the graduates were unable two years ago to speak, read or write English, but are now able to do all three. In addition to English they were instructed in civics and history and in how to become citizens.

The speakers were Morton A. Sturgis, chief naturalization examiner; Judge James W. McCarthy of Jersey City; Judge John J. Freschi of New York; Preston H. Smith, Superintendent of Schools, and Lieut. Aaron A. Meinlker. In addition to the men who were graduated, a number of women, Italian, Polish, and of other nationalities, received merit certificates. They have been instructed in English, civics, millinery, dressmaking, and sanitation, and in many cases the teachers who visited the homes of the women who could not attend school held the baby while the mother practiced writing.

CHALONER TO VIEW FIGHT.

Leaving for Virginia, He Tells of His Immediate Plans.

John Armstrong Chaloner, who has been adjudged insane by the New York courts, but was allowed by Judge Hand to come to New York, under a writ of prohibition forbidding the authorities to molest him during a trial in the Federal Court, or before or after, leaves today for his Virginia home, is the time of his immunity from commitment has come to an end. Since his escape from Bloomingdale eighteen years ago, Mr. Chaloner has been living on his farm near Charlottesville. The Virginia courts have adjudged him sane, and have given him control of a certain amount of his property. During his stay in New York he has been at the Hotel Brevoort. Mr. Chaloner last night discussed his plans for the immediate future.

"My safe conduct being about to expire," he said, "I start for Virginia tomorrow morning, in my automobile, recently arrived from The Merry Mills, Cobham, Va.—a three days' trip. From The Merry Mills I go to Toledo, and occupy a ringside seat—front row—at the Willard-Dempsey fight. I am a strong believer in the manly art of self-defence, and believe such, know that the only way to advance the science is to have finish fights. All this talk about brutality in a fight to a finish is the offspring of ether of two things—ignorance or hypocrisy.

"I know from experience that there is absolutely no pain in being knocked out—one drifts off into a dreamless sleep—that's all. Gillard knocked me out in our encounter in the dining room at The Merry Mills on March 15, 1909, and I recovered before the count was more than half up, and rose and toed the scratch—so I know wherof I speak.

$636,175,000 FOR RELIEF.

Hoover Distributed 512 Shiploads to 17 Countries in Past Six Months.

The American Relief Administration distributed in the six months that ended May 31 last supplies to the value of $636,175,000 to the seventeen countries covered by its relief program, according to a report by Herbert Hoover, Director General of the Relief Administration, to the Supreme Economic Council and made public yesterday.

The supplies made up 512 shiploads, weighing 2,486,230 metric tons. In May 168 shiploads, weighing 738,000 metric tons, valued at $162,873,000, were delivered, compared with 561,000 tons, worth $147,800,000, in April. Port stocks, the report continues, amounted to 166,777 tons on May 31, and on April 30 to 201,000 tons.

Mr. Hoover further reported that the railway, coal, and inland waterway administrations carried on under the Relief Administration in Central and Eastern Europe are progressing satisfactorily. Exchanges of local surpluses of native food and other commodities arranged by the Relief Administration showed considerable increase during May and represented 100,000 tons not included in the foregoing totals. Four million undernourished children in Europe are now included in the special child-feeding program of the administration.

Referring to the final withdrawal of American agencies from the relief areas, Mr. Hoover said: "I am confident that if we meet no interruption through delay in peace we shall reach completion of this task with the harvest without any preventable loss of life."

SOUGHT TO KILL ALFONSO.

Anarchists Said to Have Plotted His Death at Reopening of the Cortes.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Rumors of an anarchist plot to assassinate King Alfonso of Spain in the course of the procession accompanying the reopening of the Cortes Tuesday were responsible for the sudden change of the scene of the ceremony from the Chamber of Deputies, where it is usually held, to the Senate House adjoining the palace. The State Department today received official dispatches from Madrid to this effect. The anarchist plan is said to have been to attack the King while he was en route from the palace to the Chamber.

Press dispatches from Madrid on Tuesday said that the change in the scene of the ceremony was occasioned by a desire to spare the Queen fatigue, as she was slightly indisposed because of the extremely hot weather.

Elsie Janis Gets Medal from 69th.

In appreciation for the work she did overseas to cheer up the Americans in the firing line, Elsie Janis last night received a gold medal of appreciation by the members of the "Fighting 69th," officially known in the A. E. F. as the 165th United States Infantry. Major George Laurence pinned the medal on the actress just after the performance of the minstrel and entertainment show at the Central Opera House. Miss Janis was the headliner in the performance last night, which was given for the benefit of the wounded of the regiment. The minstrel and entertainment performance was the same show with the same actors that exhibited back of the trenches in France.

MORE FRENCH OFFICERS HONORED BY PERSHING

Distinguished Service Cross Given for Heroism While Serving with American Forces.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—The War Department gave out today the following list of citations for the Distinguished Service Cross which contains the following names:

Captain FRANCIS DUTHIL, French Army. For extraordinary heroism in action near Haumont, Oct. 14. Captain Duthil volunteered to accompany a raiding party of the 28th Division. On reaching the German wire, the patrol became confused and disorganized. Realizing that the party was in great danger of being caught in a heavy barrage, Captain Thives quickly reorganized the patrol, working under heavy fire, and continued to lead the raiding party until he was seriously wounded.

Lieutenant DE MANDAT GRANCEY, (deceased,) French Army, attached to the 107th U. S. Field Artillery. For extraordinary heroism in action near Pimeties, Sept. 6. He went to an advanced observation post, and, when our front line temporarily withdrew, stuck bravely to his position rendering valuable service until he was killed by the intense enemy machine gun fire. His heroism was an inspiration to all near him.

Lieutenant FERNAND MALBE, French Army. For extraordinary heroism in action near Gennes, Oct. 5. After two of his tanks had been destroyed Lieutenant Malbe continued to lead his tank section in a desperate attack on the machine gun nests at the crest of hill 252. His entire disregard of personal danger in successfully carrying out his mission under the terrific enemy fire made it possible for our troops to reach the objective and hold the position.

Lieutenant BUISSON, French Army. For extraordinary heroism in action near Massif Blanc Mont, Oct. 3-5. During attacks by the 2d American Division, he continually distinguished himself by acts of courage, and by his devotion to duty. When his Captain was killed he assumed command of the tank company, and with extraordinary heroism in the face of heavy fire accomplished the mission entrusted to him.

Other awards are:

Captain Albert F. Baxter, 353d Infantry, Fairmont, Neb.; First Lieutenant Royal H. G. Smith, 353d Infantry, South Gorman, Maine; Sergeant Thomas W. Murphy, Co. C, 54th Infantry, New Haven, Conn.; Sergeant John Hussey, (deceased,) Co. I, 328th Infantry, Holyoke, Mass.; Sergeant Frederick J. Hawke, Co. L, 354th Infantry, East Greenwich, R. I.; Sergeant Claude E. Cavenes, Co. B, 356th Infantry, Bess May, Texas; Corporal Joseph C. Hahn, Machine Gun Co., 354th Infantry, St. Louis, Mo.; Corporal Thomas Stirling, Machine Gun Co., 354th Infantry, Denver, Col.; Private First Class Fred Forbis, Co. D, 354th Infantry, Holt's Simmit, Mo.; Private First Class Clifford C. Kidd, Machine Gun Co., 354th Infantry, Denver, Col.; Private Fred W. Smith, (deceased,) Machine Gun Co., 354th Infantry, Denver, Col.; Private Lee L. Sandman, (deceased,) Co. F, 353d Infantry, Barrington, Ill.; Private Dwight E. Lamson, (deceased,) Co. C, 353d Infantry, Little River, Kan.; Private Quincy R. Seymour, (deceased,) Co. M, 353d Infantry, Rantoul, Kan.; Private August Hansmann, Co. M, 90th Infantry, Glen Ullin, N. Dak.; Private Olaf Brekke, Co. C, 58th Infantry, South Fergus Falls, Minn., and Private William J. Hurse, Co. M, 118th Infantry, Goodhope, Ill.

JEWEL THEFT MYSTIFIES.

Detectives Find No Clue to Robbery at the Biltmore.

Although more than 100 detectives and lawyers have been working for two weeks in attempts to discover the persons responsible for the disappearance from a safe deposit vault in the Biltmore of jewels valued by Mrs. Clarence Millhiser at more than $250,000, thus far they have been unable even to determine how the jewels were removed from the vault. All theories and suspicions have failed the police and the private detectives, and all admitted yesterday that no person had been detained in connection with the loss.

E. B. Miller, manager of the Biltmore, who had offered $10,000 reward for information that would lead to the recovery of the jewels, would not say yesterday whether any persons had reported to him, but it was learned from other sources that he had received no information of importance. The lawyers in the case would not discuss a report that a legal fight would be made on the point that the liability of the hotel for any loss was limited to $10,000. Denis O. Cohalan of counsel for Mrs. Millhiser, would make no statement yesterday, nor would he give a detailed description of the jewels.

CHURCH 100 YEARS OLD.

Gov. Smith Attends Celebration at Church of Sea and Land.

Governor Alfred E. Smith was the principal speaker last night at the celebration of the centennial of the building of the Church of the Sea and Land at Market and Henry Streets. Dr. H. G. Mendenhall presided and other speakers included Robert L. Moran, President of the Board of Aldermen; the Rev. Dr. Henry Sloane Coffin, of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church, and the Rev. Alfred Moore, pastor of the Church of the Sea and Land.

Situated in the most densely populated part of New York the church is antedated only by St. Paul's Chapel. It was first occupied by the Market Street Reformed Protestant Dutch congregation, which disbanded in 1860. The Presbyterians took over the building in 1865. It received its name from the fact that many sailors found a welcome in the old church and for many years have attended services there when their ships happened to be in New York.

FIXES RECTOR'S ALIMONY.

Referee Decides Restaurateur Can Pay Only $100 a Month.

Joseph D. Kelly, who was appointed referee in the Supreme Court to determine the amount of alimony George W. Rector, restaurateur, can pay under a divorce decree obtained last year by Mrs. Bertha B. Rector, reported yesterday that Rector's income is now only $1,500 a year. The report states that in 1913 Rector entered the last restaurant business which bore his name, at 49th Street and Broadway, and got a third interest in the profits for so long as the place bore his name.

His earnings ran from $3,400 to $3,600 in the years to 1916, but in 1917 he got $30,000. The business dropped his name on June 30, 1918, up to which time he received $8,000 for the six months. His income from property valued at $40,000 is only $1,500, and he can pay only $100 a month alimony, the referee decided. He has to drive his own car. Mrs. Rector received $360 a month alimony before the trial.

President-Elect of Brazil Leaves for Toronto and Ottawa.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., June 27.—President-Elect Epitacio Pessoa of Brazil left here at 8:45 o'clock tonight for Toronto, after a day spent in sightseeing at Niagara Falls.

President-Elect Pessoa and his party crossed to the Canadian side this afternoon, escorted by a delegation including Mayor Stephens of Niagara Falls, Ont., and a representative of the Governor General from Toronto. The party will go to Ottowa, the Dominion capital.

Woman of 80 in Airplane Flight.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Mrs. Martha H. O'Neill, 80 years old, of Gettysburg, Penn., today experienced the thrills of her first flight in an airplane. She had won the right to make this flight by selling the largest number of Victory bonds in the recent campaign in her home town. Today she was a passenger in an army airplane piloted over Gettysburg battlefield by Lieut. Fred Nelson of the Aviation Supply Depot staff at Middletown, Penn.

Chief Kenlon Heads Fire Engineers.

CAMELS meet your fondest cigarette fancies in so many new ways—they are so unusual in flavor, so refreshing, so mellow-mild, yet so full-bodied—that you quickly realize their superior quality, and, become a Camel enthusiast!

Camels are unlike any other cigarette you ever smoked. Their expert blend of choice Turkish and choice Domestic tobaccos gives you so many delights. It not only assures that wonderful smoothness and refreshing taste but it eliminates bite and harshness! And, you smoke Camels without any unpleasant cigaretty aftertaste or unpleasant cigaretty odor!

No matter how fond you become of Camels! Smoke them liberally! They never will tire your taste! The blend takes care of that!

Compare Camels with any cigarette in the world at any price!

FAMOUS ACE RETURNS.

Capt. Kindley Brings Home Two Hard-Earned Decorations.

Captain F. E. Kindley, next to "Eddie" Rickenbacker, America's greatest ace, returned yesterday on the transport Tiger, which brought 2,546 troops into port. Captain Kindley, who is officially credited with downing twelve German planes, was in command of the 141st Aero Squadron, which was also on board. He wore the Distinguished Service Cross with oak leaf, and the Croix de Guerre. Although in one encounter his goggles were shot from his face and his plane riddled with bullets, the flier was never injured.

Soldiers who returned yesterday on the Italian steamer Regina d'Italia, which brought 1,770 men, told of troules with coal passers, which delayed the boat. When the soldiers left Marseilles, they fully expected to be home several days ago, but they met their first disappointment at Gibraltar, where the coal passers had struck for a cent a day increase in wages. Learning that there was no likilhood of a settlement the soldiers raised a purse and soon engaged enough passers to coal the vessel. At Ponta Delgada, the chief of the coal passers had died, and his comrades refused to work for three days out of respect for his memory. Once more the soldiers collected a purse and lured away enough mourners to coal the Regina. The ship started westward only to develop boiler trouble, which delayed her still more.

Other transports to dock yesterday were the Zeppelin with 4,238, the Mobile with 5,068, and the Santa Clara with 1,554 soldiers on board.

SMASH ALL RECORDS FOR FOREIGN TRADE

Figures for Fiscal Year of 1919 Will Show Highest Mark Attained in Nation's History.

$7,000,000,000 IN EXPORTS

June Shipments May Bring Total to That Figure, While Imports Will Be Almost $3,000,000,000.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Total exports and imports during the fiscal year of 1919 have exceeded all records in the nation's history. It is possible that the exports by June 30 will have reached $7,000,000,000 for the year, and it is certain that the imports will have passed $3,000,000,000 in value by that date, the first time imports have reached that objective.

Exports for the eleven months of the fiscal year 1919 ended on May 31, including foreign merchandise exported to the value of $130,165,012, totalled $6,306,745,405, or $16,697,101 more than the total for the entire fiscal year ended June 30, 1917, the biggest year heretofore, and $387,034,026 greater than for the entire fiscal year ended June 30, 1918.

To reach the total of $7,000,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1919, the exports for this month must total $693,254,595. In May, the latest month for which complete figures are available, the total was $606,579,596. Whether the total of $7,000,000,000 is reached or not, it is assured that the exports for the fiscal year 1919 will approximate that sum and will establish a new record.

Imports for the eleven months ended May 31, 1919, reached $2,802,363,071, and with the imports for June added, thus completing the fiscal year, it is assured that the imports for the year will exceed $3,000,000,000. In 1917 the total of imports was $2,659,355,185, and in 1918 it was $2,945,655,403.

The following table shows the exports and imports by groups for the eleven months ended May 31, 1919, and May 31, 1918:

COMMODITIES PRICES

Increase in Those of Foodstuffs a Feature of the Week.

In spite of the comparatively small number of changes, Dun's list of wholesale commodities prices this week again showed a considerable excess of advances over declines. Forty-one of the sixty revisions were upward, while last week the same number of advances was shown in a total of fifty-six changes. This week's increases in foodstuffs prices outnumbered the declines by nearly three to one.

The following list gives the minimum wholesale prices quoted on selected standard commodities this week. They are corrected to yesterday, and with them are given comparative prices for last week and the corresponding week a year ago:

	This Week.	Last Week.	Year Ago.
Apples, com., bbl.	$6.00	$6.00	....
Beans, m., c., 100 lbs.	11.75	11.75	$13.[illegible]

*Government maximums. †Nominal.

Flour prices continued steady in the local market for provisions during the week. There was no rise in bacon quotations, either, but hams were held higher. In the Chicago market live sheep produced the only decline. Live hogs and beef were higher, as was Middle Western lard. Mess pork and short ribs did not change.

The best butter and cheese were a little higher in the local dairy products list, but the under grades held steady at last week's levels. Slight increases also took place in the quotations on nearby fancy and the best Western eggs. Each is now 10 cents a dozen higher than at this time in 1918.

For the second week in succession there were no listed fluctuations in the fresh and dried fruits. Also for the second successive week all the revisions in the listed vegetables were downward. Choice medium and choice pea beans were lower. The price of cabbage broke 25 cents a barrel, following a drop of 75 cents a barrel last week. The biggest decline, however, was in rutabagas turnips, which dropped from $4 a barrel to $2.50.

The list for teas was bare of changes, but sharp advances were reported to have taken place in the leading Brasilian coffees. The rise in No. 4 Santos was reported to be 3 cents a pound for the week, but the prices quoted in the list were nominal. All of the changes in the spices were upward, they including black and white Singapore peppers, mace, and nutmegs.

Grain prices were weak. No advances were shown in the list, but corn, oats, rye, malting barley, prime timothy hay, and long rye straw all went down. In the combined lists for drugs, chemicals, dyestuffs, and oils, ten advances contrasted with five declines. Among the few features was the break of $1.50 a pound in jobbing lots of opium. This drug is now held at $9 a pound, compared with $22 at this time a year ago. Save for a drop in tin, all of the changes in the metals were upward. Among the advances were lake and electrolytic coppers, spelter, and lead. In the miscellaneous changes tallow advanced and hemp declined.

While there were no declines in hide prices, the number of advances was smaller this week than for some time. No. 1 country steers and No. 1 kips were the only items to rise. The leather list was also bare of declines, but the only listed advance was in union backs, tannery run. The revisions in the naval stores consisted of a rise in pitch and quite a sharp setback in the price of turpentine. Raw silks were generally higher, with new record prices established by some of them, notably the Japanese varieties.

Price tendencies in the textiles continued upward. A good demand and a lack of ready merchandise boosted burlap values still further during the week, and the re-entrance of first hands into the gray goods market as sellers was in part responsible for the upturn in several constructions of these fabrics. The demand was steady for goods wanted for shipments ranging to the end of the year.

Thanks Navy Purchase Head.

In a letter concluding its business transactions during the war with the Navy Department, note was made by a local woolen house of its appreciation for the prompt, business-like methods of those in charge of the purchases for this branch of the service. Such a tribute from the trade to a Government bureau is considered a rather remarkable thing, owing to the complicated methods employed in other branches and the dissatisfaction which they cause. A system was built up by the Navy during peace time, however, which worked just as smoothly when the war greatly increased the amounts to be bought.

In Favor of Collar Increase.

The report that the collar manufacturers were considering an increase in the price of their product finds, it seems, a favorable response in the retail trade. One furnisher stated yesterday that the increase would be welcomed by the retailers, who at present do not feel they are getting a sufficient margin when they sell them at 20 cents. This retailer pointed to the expense of handling and laundering of soiled collars and other items that cut down the net profit. He mentioned as typical the case of one customer who, in selecting a shirt priced at $2, wanted to take the pins out to "see how it looked."

Gray Goods Still Going Up.

Higher prices and active buying of print cloths were again the features of the local gray goods market yesterday. Liberal sales of 38½-inch 64-60s were reported at 16¾ cents for deliveries running to the end of the year, and late in the afternoon nothing was to be had under 17 cents. For shipment in July, August, and September 39-inch 68-72s sold at 19½ cents, but toward the close the mills showed the asking price up half a cent. For the same delivery 39-inch 72-76s were sold at 22 cents, and 38½-inch 60-48s brought 14¼ cents. In other quarters of the market prices also tended upward, with the demand ranging from fair to good.

Knitting Yarns the Cheaper.

Comment was made in the local market yesterday concerning the relative price weakness of cotton knitting yarns, as compared with those used for weaving, in spite of the recent improvement in the wholesale demand for cotton underwear and hosiery. It was further asserted that, on the basis of cotton cost, knitting yarns are lower than they should be—as much as 4 or 5 cents a pound in some instances. It was pointed out that while spot cotton closed at 34.95 cents a pound on Thursday, No. 12 single knitting yarn was quoted at 54 cents a pound. A year ago Thursday spot cotton was quoted at 32.95 cents, yet No. 12 yarn was held at 56 cents a pound at that time.

Helping Out a Beginner.

The corset trade is rather noted for the good spirit of co-operation among its members, both buyers and sellers, but there is one salesman who is regarded as the best example of this spirit. The story goes that, whenever he runs across a beginner in the selling game offering a competitive line, he introduces himself, and then asks the buyer, as a favor to himself, to look over his rival's line, which he will always describe as "a good one and worthy of your attention." In the trade it is said he possesses more loving cups and similar bits of silverware than an Olympic champion.

Exports of Woolens.

Representatives of the woolen trade who have studied the chance for exporting some of their product report that the opportunities were never greater than at the present time. In the South American countries, it is explained, the demand is good and would be greater only shipping facilities at the present time are not the best. With improvement in this direction, exports ought to grow to respectable proportions. Houses selling Summer cloths are especially interested in what Latin America offers as a field for their products. One of the leading figures in the industry just returned from Europe expresses the opinion that if domestic business here was not so big, efforts to sell the various countries, and even England, would be rewarded with very satisfactory results.

Make Claims for Silk Hose.

An executive of a local house that does a big export business with South Africa said yesterday that numerous claims are being received from that market as a result of the poor merchandise delivered on orders placed in this country. Especially numerous have been the "kicks" regarding the silk hosiery received and, according to the executive in question, it is probable that this branch of the export trade has received a permanent setback in South Africa as a result of the attempts of unscrupulous firms in this country to "put something over" on their customers. A sample complaint, received from an importing concern in Johannesburg, said that not only had the goods shipped to them not been up to sample, but that many pairs of hose had been received in so damaged a condition that they could not be sold. Practically the entire shipment complained of was made up of stockings of second quality or worse.

Likes Five-Day Week Idea.

Apropos of the movement recently begun by the Associated Dress Industries of America to have the dress manufacturers close their places of business all day on Saturday during July and August, the suggestion was made here yesterday that the industry might benefit from a five-day week all the year around. While the suggestion applied chiefly to the shops, no reason was advanced as to why offices and showrooms could not be closed as well. The contention was advanced that the manufacturers would find their employes more efficient were a permanent five-day week adopted. The number of hours worked a week would not be changed under that arrangement, and it was contended that the production on a five-day week basis would exceed that now turned out in five and one-half days. Objection to Saturday work appears to be based on the allegation that many of the workers, more particularly the women, come late and "quit" early on that day, and that during the few hours they are in the shops their attention is so diverted by thoughts of what they are going to do later that their efficiency is lessened and production suffers.

Against Opening New Accounts.

While there is some shifting around of business in the local clothing trade owing to the difficulty which buyers are finding to place their full orders with their customary sources of supply, some of the representative houses are not committed to the usual policy of taking on new accounts. The reason for this is that the time is thought very inopportune to deal with newcomers in the way they believe they ought to be dealt with. For example, the new account that understands all its needs will be attended to is apt to have that impression corrected when deliveries are late and the full percentage of business placed fails to show up. At the basis of the contention that only the old accounts should be supplied, is the thought that the best policy under present conditions is service to the customary trade.

Dry Goods Export Demand Better.

Despite the fact that some of the South American countries are a bit slow with orders, quite a little improvement in the demand for American dry goods for export was told of here yesterday. Brazil was reported to be buying considerable quantities of 40-inch voiles, both in plain colors and figured patterns, but mostly from second hands. The call from the Argentine is improving, but it is expected that a month or two will still be required to get commercial matters straightened out there. The high prices asked for goods by first hands here, coupled with the amount of merchandise still to be had from second hands, are said also to be holding back trade with Argentina. Colombia is at present regarded as "the gem of the ocean" among Latin American markets. A number of buyers from that country are now here, and among other things they are buying sheetings, drills, and a general assortment of cotton wash goods.

THE CONDITION OF TRADE.

The trade reviews of the week continue to report increasing retail distribution, with the demand for certain commodities almost passing the supply. Dun's says:

With the signing of the peace treaty, which is now imminent after months of waiting, gateways of commerce that have long been closed will be reopened and broader international trade relations permitted. Behind the domestic business revival that is vigorously in progress there is not only the practical assurance of another year of agricultural prosperity and the present exceptional retail distribution in this country, but also Europe's dependence upon American markets for products needed during the reconstruction era, and it is significant that the export call is already expanding in many quarters.

The result of the enlarging home and foreign demands is clearly seen in the increasing scarcity of supplies of various articles, notwithstanding the rising tide of production, and reports of goods being virtually withdrawn from sale are becoming more common as manufacturing capacity is engaged farther ahead and still higher prices appear inevitable. Remarkably heavy bank clearings continue the rule in almost all parts of the country, the total this week at sixteen of the principal cities in the United States amounting to $6,908,669,627, an increase of 18.1 per cent. over those of this week last year and of 42.8 per cent. as compared with the same week in 1917.

Bradstreet's says:

Trade currents are very strong—broader and deeper, indeed, than at any time since this country entered the war—collections leave very little to be desired, and crop prospects, taken as a whole, are better than a year ago. Manufacturing and industry, it is true, lack the appearance of feverish activity of a year ago, when war demand was supreme; but with allowance made for the fact that demand today is purely for peaceful purposes, the industrial situation, barring some sporadic strike symptoms, is really excellent. There are, indeed, evidences that in wearing apparel (including shoes), jewelry, furniture and household furnishings, agricultural implements, lumber, and a long list of other products used in everyday life, demand is treading close upon, if not actually passing, supply.

BUSINESS RECORDS

In Town.

ED. REMUS & CO., INC., importers and exporters at 25 Church Street.—Judge A. N. Hand appointed Einar Chrystie receiver on the application of Zalkin & Cohen, attorneys for Charles M. Riedell, a stockholder, and Secretary of the Creditors' Committee. Liabilities are $187,710, and assets, $215,178; surplus, $17,468. The company claims to be solvent, but unable at present to meet maturing obligations. A committee of creditors was appointed recently by banks to protect the company. It owes $173,630 to twelve different banks, which hold as collateral $192,000. Ed. Remus, the President, went to France in February to straighten out affairs in that country and to obtain further business, and expects to sail for New York on July 5. His brother said that sufficient capital will be brought in to pay off all obligations and to continue business. Later in the day a petition in bankruptcy was filed against the company by these creditors: Mart Waterman & Co., Inc., $2,000; Gerhard & Hay, Inc., $10, and Norwegian-American Securities Corp., $10.

KLEIN LEGGING CO.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Samuel and Joseph Klein, doing business as the Klein Legging Company at 822 Broadway, by these creditors: J. E. Murgett & Co., $547; S. Meltzer, $400, and Moe Heller, $100. Liabilities are $20,000 and assets $6,000.

BENJAMIN SCHILLER, jobber in woolen goods at 123 Hester Street.—Two petitions in bankruptcy have been filed against him, one by these creditors: George Scheinberg, $500; Harry Brinn, $600, and J. Einhard, $500. The other by these creditors: Daniel Getz, $526; C. Conowitz, $1,192, and F. Neider, $750. It was alleged that on June 20 he made an assignment to Maurice L. Shaine for the benefit of several creditors and to Solomon Brinn for the benefit of all the creditors, the true facts of the assignment being unknown to the petitioning creditors. Liabilities are $60,000 and assets $20,000.

SIDNEY MARKS, a salesman, of 580 West 172d Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $1,100 and no assets. Of the liabilities $900 is to Julius Baskin on notes given for the purchase of a moving picture house at 1,045 Westchester Avenue.

ARTHUR BEREL, Jr., a salesman, of 640 West 172d Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $5,625 and no assets. The largest creditors are Hill Brothers of Norwich, Conn., $5,000.

PHILIP ATKINS of Hunter, N. Y., manager of a restaurant, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $2,794 and no assets. There are six creditors in New York City.

LOUIS GOLDSTEIN, dealer in plate glass and mirrors at 231 and 233 Bowery, has filed schedules showing liabilities of $15,004 and assets of $22,487, consisting of stock, $2,520; accounts, $20,633; trucks, $150; cash in bank, $127, and cash on hand, $7.

NATIONAL SECURITIES CORPORATION.—Deputy Sheriff Murray sold at auction yesterday the right, title and interest in securities of the par value of $18,398,400 under an execution against the National Securities Corporation in favor of the Bankers Trust Company. The purchaser was the Power Securities Corporation. The sale included 149,984 shares of the common stock of the Idaho Power Company, par value $14,998,400; 1,500 shares of preferred stock of the same company, and 500 shares of the Electric Investment Company, $50,000.

Weekly Failure Report.

Bradstreet's reports 112 failures in the United States during the week, against 91 for the previous week, and 190, 290, 278, and 292 for the corresponding weeks of 1918 to 1915. The Middle States had 30, New England 15, Southern 20, Western 24, Northwestern 10, and Far Western 11. Canada had 5, against 11 for the preceding week. About 89 per cent. of the failures had less than $5,000 capital, and 7 per cent. had from $5,000 to $20,000 capital.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Trading Expands and Prices Rise When Call Money Rates Go Lower.

Money rates on the Stock Exchange came down yesterday, and the stock market, possibly in celebration of this fact, improved both as to volume and the movement of prices. Trading quickened so much that the total turnover amounted to 1,208,000 shares, as compared with only 892,000 shares the day before, and the market developed some good advances, which, however, were mostly confined to the popular industrial specialties, a dozen or so of which scored gains ranging anywhere from 3 to 8 points. The market was what professional traders call "spotty," for the great bulk of the activity was held within a rather narrow list, and while there were times when stocks looked particularly strong, there were others when conditions did not appear so favorable. Perhaps it might have pleased the general run of brokers more if interest had been more diversified, with fewer evidences of organized action in particular stocks and more signs of public interest.

As for the ease in money rates, that was explained by bankers, who pointed out that the banks had put themselves in funds to meet the month-end requirements on Monday and were simply allowing the money to find occupation over Sunday by lending it in the demand market. If that proves to be the case then money rates on Monday should be high, or at least higher than they were yesterday, and it is doubtful if the supply at the beginning of next week is as large as it was yesterday. The idea that all possible money stringency has been averted is not generally entertained by those who should know most about the situation, and, in fact, there are many who are convinced that the era of cheap money on the Stock Exchange has passed, not to return for some little time.

There is a chance, of course, that there will be some easing directly after the first of the month. The corporate requirements for June 30 and July 1 will be only temporary and within a very few days most of this money should be back in the banks, whether it is redeposited by those who receive it or is spent by them and redeposited by others. Also it is pretty well established that the Railroad Administration will meet its July 1 obligations in cash instead of in warrants, and it is also believed that the administration will liquidate some of its back debts, too. This should make for more plentiful money stocks in the banks because the railroads are very apt to pay off bank loans as soon as they are put in funds. But whether all this will operate to lower materially collateral demand loan rates is another matter. Many bankers believe it will not, that collateral loans will not again be negotiated at low rates for some time, or until a rather long list of other demands are satisfied.

News developments included numerous highly favorable crop reports from unofficial sources. The crop situation is likely to attract more attention for the next month or so than it has been receiving thus far this season. The important Government reports will be out early next week, and it is possible that the stock market may receive some stimulation from these displays, although it would be somewhat unusual for it to do so this early. However, with the heroic speculation beginning to lag the professional accelerators may endeavor to make use of prospective bumper crops to revive the popular demand for stocks.

The weekly reviews of trade were again very enthusiastic, using even more glowing terms of description than were used last week and predicting a tremendous wave of activity as soon as the Peace Treaty is signed.

Exchanges moved more in favor of the Allies yesterday after several days of movements against them. This probably reflected only the shifting technical position, just as it has been doing recently. The neutral exchanges also improved slightly, but not enough to cause comment and hardly enough to make noticeable quotable differences.

Ford Stock Being Sought.

Reports from Detroit are to the effect that there is inquiry for minority shares of the Ford Motor Company, the statement that this is true being attributed to one of the Directors. There have been many rumors here that General Motors had been endeavoring to purchase the Ford Company. Each time, however, the rumor has been denied. If there is an endeavor to accumulate minority stock it may mean that the step is paving the way for a purchase of a controlling interest or perhaps absolute ownership. Henry Ford is at present the majority stockholder while among the minority holders are several who broke away from the Ford Company several years ago. General Motors is looked upon as a logical purchaser of the company, and the reports of negotiations persist despite denials. The increase in the capital of General Motors, it is pointed out, could not have been undertaken with any other end in view than increasing the scope of the organization.
